Hampton at Home. Special to Charleston Journal of Commerce. COLUMBIA, April 6.

The reception of Gov. Hampton to-day was the grandest ovation ever accorded any public officer, and creates an epoch in South Carolina history.

The band of the 18th United States Infantry headed the column. There were eight companies and sundry clubs and societies in the procession.

The special train bearing Governor Hampton and the committees and organizations en route, who accompanied Gov. Hampton to Columbia, arrived here at 3.15, and was received at the depot amidst salvos of artillery and deafening cheers. An immense concourse of citizen soldiery, firemen, citizens, ladies and children, greeted the Governor upon his triumphant return, the demonstration far exceeding that of "Hampton's Day" in Columbia during the campaigu, in point of numbers.

A profusely and appropriately decorated phæton, with four magnificent bays attached, conveyed Governor Hampton, Ceptain W. B. Stanley, Colonel F. W. McMaster, Colonel J P. Southern, and Master Willie R. Catheart, to the stand erected in front of Carolina Hall, and occupied in part by Judges Willard and have been found by the Grand Jury of the Colonels Haskell and McMaster, and a number of prominent citizens. Gov. Hampton then addressed the immense crowd in pretty nearly the same strain he did the Charlotte people, which we published yesterday. Governor Hampton, who was much fatigued by his journey, retired amidst prolonged cheers; and the immense throng of civilians and soldiery quietly dispersed. The utmost quiet and order attended the ceremonies throughout.

Chamberlain Will Not Yield.

NEW YORK, April 6. The Post's Washington special says Governor Chamberlain left here this morning for South Carolina. At a conference between Chamberlain and some of his friends last night, he informed them that he had determined, after reflection and consultation with prominent Republicans, to hold on to his office and not to surrender or leave the State House until ejected by civil process, as Governor Wade Hampton has given a pledge to the President that neither himself nor his friends will resort to violence. Chamberlain said he was confident he could maintain himself as Governor for some time to come and prevent Hampton from being recognized as Governor by the legal Legislature. The Republicans, he said, had an admitted majority in the State Senate, and unless Hampton can get control of this body he will be powerless to eject Chamberlain, the State Constitution providing that the Legislature shall be the sole judge of the election of Governor.

In a conversation to-day with your correspondent, Senator Patterson said, in explanation of this departure from the policy announced by Chamberlain a few days ago, that the Republicans of South Carolina had decided not to give up the contest until there was some definite action in regard to Louisiana. Packard, he said, intended to stand firm for his rights, and events might occur in Louisiana which would cause a re-action in the country in regard to the President's Southern policy and arouse a sentiment in the Republican party which would compel the administration to change front. This was a forlorn | Cape Fear Lodge. hope, but the Republicans of South Carolina intend to cling to it until it is swept away. If Packard is deposed, then Chamberlain will give up the fight in South Carolina.

Patterson's whole conversation was in striking contrast with his utterances on Tuesday when he called on Wade Hampton and assured him that he would render what assistance he could to make his administration a success.

Raleigh Observer; His Excellency, Gov. Vance, was notified yesterday of the arrest and incarceration in Lincoln County jail of one George Proctor, aleas Preston Carter, a noted horse thief from Chester, South Carolina. Gov. Hampton has been written to and informed that the criminal awaited his requisition.

A Reminiscence of the Closing Scenes of the War.

The Raleigh News is publishing a series of reminiscences connected with the surrender of Raleigh, among which we find the following relative to a young Wilmingtonian, Mr. Theodore C. James, at the time a Lieutenant in the Confederate service. While on a visit to Raleigh in 1865, shortly after the surrender, we heard from various citizens of the place substantially the same statement of the affair as given by the writer in the News:

officer named James, a lieutenant in the Confederate service. Lieutenant James was attached to the provost marshal's office, whether as chief or as an assistant, the writer does not now distinctly remember. He had lost an arm in the service, which fact doubtless accounted for his transfer to a less arduous position. His amiability of character, added to, the gentlemanly manner in which he discharged his duties, had rendered him quite popular with our citizens. Early on the morning of the surrender Lieutenant James, while returning on horseback from a visit to lady friends in the northeastern part of the city, was met by some of Kilpatrick's cavalry, who, observing that he wore the uniform of a Confederate officer, summoned him to an unconditional surrender. James peremptorily refused, and drawing his side-arms, prepared to defend himself. He was, however, overpowered by superior numbers and taken prisoner. It was soon after Kilpatrick had so summarily disposed of the unfortunate young Texan, that a squad of men arrived on the ground with Lieutenant James in charge, and reported him as having violated the rules of war by open resistance since the surrender of the city. Kilpatrick looked sternly at the young officer, and, in an imperious tone enquired:
"Who are you?" "My name, sir, is James—Lieutenant James, of the Confed erate service," was the reply. "Why are you not with your command? What are you doing straggling about? Are you a spy?" enquired Kilpatrick, "I am no straggler or spy either; I am attached to the provost marshal's office in this city, answered James. "Ah, indeed," said Ki patrick, "so much the worse for you, sir; you must have known of the surrender of the city, and yet, as I am informed, you showed fight when my men attempted to arrest you." "I did tempted to arrest you." not know of the surrender," said James. "I had been visiting, and supposed from the action of your men that a skirmish was going on between your advance and some of General Hampton's rear. Such being my impression I defended myself as best I could. I would do so again, sir." have just hung a man for an offense similar to yours, sir," said Kilpatrick. "Very well, sir," said James, "you have me in your power, hang me if you like." This last remark caused a thrill of terror among the bystanders. The writer felt sure that the reply would be an order for another execution. Kilpatrick paused a moment and looked James full in the face, the latter returning the gaze in a bold and defiant manner. It was a fearful pause. We trem-bled for our young friend. Presently the answer came, and with it a load of dreadful suspense was removed from many trembling hearts. "No," said Kilpatrick,
"I'll not hang you." "Orderly," he continued, addressing the man in command of the squad, "take charge of this young man until further orders." In obedience to this order, James was taken from the ground. Amid the great excitement of the occasion the writer lost sight of him after this, but was pleased to learn that he was released in a few days on parole.'

Criminal Court.

The following cases were disposed of by this Court yesterday: State vs. Ida Evans, charged with larceny. Case continued for the prosecution

State vs. Thomas Johnson, charged with larceny. Defendant found guilty and sentenced to confinement in the State Penitentiary for ten years. State vs. William Price, charged with larceny, who was convicted, but recommended to the mercy of the Court; judgment suspended on the payment of costs.

State vs. 'Alonzo Elri alias Alonzo Johnson, charged with larceny. Defendant found guilty, but declared insolvent. This defendant, under the name of Thomas Johnson, had already been convicted in one case of larceny and sentenced to the Penitentiary for ten years.

State vs. John Melvin, charged with larceny. Defendant found guilty.

State vs. Martha Williams, alias Martha Melton, charged with larceny. Defendant found guilty and sentenced to the Penitentiary for five years.

State vs. Washington Nois, charged with arceny. Defendant found guilty.

In the case of Tamer Jones, charged with assault and battery, on trial at the close of our last report, a verdict of not guilty was returned.

Mistook Their calling.

A one-legged tramp, claiming to hai from the Crescent city, leisurely sauntered into the City Court room Friday, evening, during the session of the Board of Aldermen, and inquired if that was the guard house. Being informed to the contrary, he shook his head ominously, and, gazing wofully upon the assembled "Fathers," said 'Ah, I see! another 'Returning Board, fixing up the results!" and he then proceeded to give his opinion as to the late addition to our machinery political. His brilliant and scathing oration was finally cut short by an order from the Mayor to take himself below. He protested bitterly against this treatment; said they had Returning Boards in New Orleans and also in Columbia, where he had but recently been so-journing, and how should he be expected to know that they were not in vogue here also. His protests, it is needless to add, were unavailing, and the indignant individual was escorted to the guard room by two policemen.

Fire in Brunswick. We learn that the distillery of Messrs. Dock & Applewhite, in Brunswick county about four miles from Brinkley's station, on the W. C. & A. R. R., together with about 80 casks of spirits turpentine, 150 barrels of rosin, 400 new spirit casks, &c., was entirely destroyed by fire on Friday last. The fire was caused by the boiling over of the charge in the still. The loss is estimated at $3,000, upon which there was no insurance.

The James Heaten Cases,

On Wednesday last one of the cases against James Heaten, Clerk of the Superior Court, for misdemeanor in office, was called in the Criminal Court and the defendant failed to answer, whereupon a forand his sureties. Subsequently the defendant appeared in Court and through his counsel, M. London, Esq., made an excuse to the effect that at the time he was called he was unavoidably absent in the discharge of his official duties as Judge of Probate. There was on duty, at Raleigh, a young The counsel for the prosecution demanded an affidavit to that effect, which was afterwards introduced by his counsel, and two deeds were produced and handed to His Honor, Judge Meares, which defendant claimed he had been engaged in proving, conveying the impression that he had been to the residences of the parties interested to take the necessary privy examination. After argument the Court finally ordered the forfeiture of bond stricken out.

After the above action was taken, however, facts came to the knowledge of the counsel for the prosecution which caused them to ask for a rehearing in the matter. they claiming that deception and fraud had been practiced on the Court, and that defendant had been guilty of perjury. The case came up for consideration vesterday morning, when counsel for defendant stated to the Court that if there had been any fraud or deception practiced he had not been a party to the same. Several witnesses were examined as to the whereabouts of defendant at the time he was called in the case referred to, and a party to one of the deeds produced in Court, and whose wife defendant had been supposed to have visited for the purpose of examination in relation to the document, testified on the stand that no such examination had taken place, and that Mr. Heaton had not to his knowledge, or that of his wife, visited his house for that purpose. It was shown, however, that defendant did visit the house of one of the parties to the other deed, but it was strongly intimated by the counsel for the prosecution as their belief, from all the circumstances, that the visit was made after it was found that he had compromised himself and his bondsmen by being absent when called for. Mr. London made a brief argument in defence of his client, and Hon. D. L. Russell, for the prosecution, animadverted strongly and severély upon the action of Mr. Heaton in the premises, asserting as his opinion that he had been guilty of as cool and deliberate perjury as had ever occurred in any court "since the morning stars sang to-

At the close of the argument His Honor ordered that the judgments striking out the forfeiture be stricken out and the forfeiture be reinstated, and that the case take its regular course. George Rignold in Henry V.

It turns out that the report to the effect that Mr. George Rignold, the eminent tragedian, had decided not to visit this place, was a mistake. His agent, Mr. G. W. Middleton, arrived here last evening, and makes the announcement that Mr. Rignold will appear at the Opera House in this city on Saturday next, April 14th, in his favorite character of Henry V., a colossal specacular performance, with all the costumes, properties and mechanical appliances from Booth's Theater, New York. His troupe embraces forty-five -dramatic artists, with sixty auxiliaries on the stage. Speaking of Mr. Rignold's appearance in New York, on the 9th of February, the Home Journal of

There was also excellent acting, and brilliant and imposing as were the accessories. they did not overpower the personalities of the artistes. "Henry V.," as the handsom-est King of England, the prince of good fel lows, a hero in war, and a true knight in peace, was admirably represented by Mr. George Rignold, of London. This was the actor's first appearance in this country. He won enthusiastic applause, was repeatedly called before the curtain, and made a de cided success. He is sure, with his good looks and princely and martial bearing, to be the idol of the ladies.

A Desperate Prisoner.

Thomas Johnson alias Alonzo Elri alias Alonzo Johnson, colored, who was convicted of larceny in two cases yesterday, and sentenced in one to confinement at hard labor for the term of ten years, cut up some very ugly capers in Court, demonstrating the fact that he is a desperate and dangerous fellow. He was very defiant, impudent and insulting and finally had to be placed in irons. It was thought at one time that he might attempt to escape, or even to spring over the railing and try the experiment of clearing out the Temple of Justice and taking matters into his own hands. He will be kept ironed in his cell until his transfer to the penitentiary takes place.

Personal. We had the pleasure of a visit from Adjutant General Johnston Jones, who is on an official visit to our city. He is the editor of the Raleigh News, and is rendering efficient service to North Carolina in both of his fields of labor. We welcome him to Wilmington, and trust he will have an agreeable time.

Mr. Theodore Hobgood, connected with that excellent and prosperous weekly, the Wilson Advance, called to see us. We were glad to hear such a favorable report concerning our sprightly weekly contemporary.

Attempt to Rob a Corner Stone.

An attempt was made some time during Friday night to break into and rob the box deposited in the corner stone of Giblem Lodge, corner of Eighth and Princess streets. By means of a chisel two or three feiture of bond was entered against him of the bricks had been partially removed, and it would not have required, perhaps, more than two minutes additional labor on the part of the thief to have accomplished his object, as but very little remained but to remove the zinc covering to the box in order to get at the contents. It is taken as a matter of course, that the thief was by some means frightened from his purpose just in the nick of time. The officials of the Lodge will pay a reward of $10 for information that will lead to the detection of the party who attempted this outrageous
