WILMINGTON, N. C .:

SATURDAY MORNING, April 28, 1877.

. GROWLERS. Let justice be done though the heavens fall. Fair play is a jewel If such a thing were possible w would rejoice if all who censure the President for his Southern policy, or who deny him any credit for good intentions and pacific action, could ex perience during the next four years what another policy would bring forth which was inspired, controlled, directed by Ben Wade, Wendell Phillips, Don Cameron and father, Morton, Chandler, Blaine, Taft, Gar. field, Kilpatrick, Logan, Packard Chamberlain and others of the band. They would learn by 1880 to render anto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's. They would look over into that other part of the country where peace and law, liberty and content prevailed, and such a hankering after the flesh pots of that delectable land would overtake them, they would mutiny, swear by their beards, and then die of sheer disappointment and

But unfortunately all are in the same boat. The sun must shine upon the just and the unjust. If trouble comes from defying or abusing the President all must share in the evil consequences. But it would be a just retribution if those who do not like Mr. Hayes' manner of dealing with civil affairs were subjected to just such experiences as the opposite policy would have entailed upon the country. We give him credit for having done much better than the country expected. We give him credit for having restored civil liberty to two sovereign States. We give him credit for keeping the military in thorough subordination to the civil authority.

U. S. NAVY.

"We print elsewhere a statement of the present force of the Navy, and the bare fact that it is only superior to that of Portugal in its material is the most bitter commentary on Grant's administration which could be pronounced by his bitterest enemy. During his term of office over two hundred millions were appropriated for its support, and as the result we have a fleet of antiquated vessels, and an armament inferior to that of any other Naval Power upon the globe."—Norfolk Landmark.

No man can read such a statement as this without a feeling of mortification. And yet the charge is true. Our navy is a disgrace to a great nation. It is a standing reproach to the Republican party who have controlled the Government for seventeen years. A first-class navy is necessary. A great power like the United States needs a navy only second in magnitude and effectiveness to that of England. If we had distant colonies like our mother country, we would require a navy as large as her navy.

We are for putting our navy in the very best condition. It ought to be made twice as large as it is, and placed upon the most efficient footing. Our commerce, our growing in splendid fleets. No nation ever yet lost its liberties by the despotism and conspiracy of its navy. Let the navy be largely increased and rendered thoroughly effective by liberal appropriations, which should be judiciously and honestly expended.

As to the army, cut it down. We have really but little use for any such constant menace of civil freedom. The history of the world only proves how dangerous to liberty is a standing army. Our people need not to be reminded how near Grant came destroying a Republican form of government on this continent through the arbitrary, violent and unconstitutional use of that great arm of the service. In time of peace we have really no use but for a mere handful of soldiers; in time of war the army would really prove but a nucleus, as the country would rely for its defence upon its citizen soldiery.

We would have men educated at military schools and would keep up West Point to the highest possible standard, but we say reduce the army to the lowest standard compatible with the actual needs of the country. The liberties of the people are much safer without than with a standing army. Soldiers are machines, and their duty leads them to obey authority. If that authority is despotic or usurping, it is all the same with the machines. They move as the hand directs.

"The only way to employ troops effect-vely at the South is to have them there under the command of a soldierly President ike Grant. To have them there under the civilian instincts of a President like Hayes or Johnson is worse than farcical-it is fa-It is fortunate, therefore, for their own credit, that the troops are withdrawn, so long as the President's policy is what we know it to be. Grant secured order at the South in one way, and it seems to us likely that Hayes will secure it quite as well the other way."—Philadelphia Record.

This paper is Republican, but not of a very bitter kind. We are surprised to see it so complacently referring to the way "Grant secured order at the South," by usurpation and violation of the Constitution, and yet having no words to condemn such conduct. It evidently approves of the bayonet rule for the South provided only that Grant is the man to use it-he knows "the only way to employ troops effectively." It does really appear as if the ordinary Northern Republican knew nothing of the underlying principles of our government. He would care nothing for violations of the great sacred palladium of our liberties so they but subserved party ends. The above was published, not last year, but on the 24th inst. The sort of "order" that "Grant secured" is like that which reigned at Warsaw of old; like that which reigns in Turkish provinces among the persecuted Christians. But, happily Hayes is President, and the Man on Horseback is nobody.

The Rev. Wm. Henry Scott, the colored Methodist preacher reported murdered, and over whom the New England Conference set up such a dismal howl, has recently been interviewed by some gentlemen, an account of which appears in the Charleston News and Courier. He is described as of good height, spare built, and quite genteel looking, withal presenting the appearance of a Methodist minister. He was born in Darlington county. Here is a part of the questions and answers:

Q. Have you ever been interfered with on account of your politics? A. Never, sir. Q. Has your intercourse with the white people in this State been agreeable? A. Always been so, always; I brag on that. During the KuKlux excitement I was in the midst of them near Oro and on the borders of Lancaster, and they never inter-fered with me. Q. How are you pleased with the white people here? A. Very well; have always got along with the

He said further that he was satis fied with Hampton, and believed he would do right.

The May number of the North Carolina Farmer strikes us as specially good. This judicious and well arranged publication has twentyfour well filled departments. The editor, Jas. H. Enniss, Esq., is a good agricultural caterer. He selects short, pithy articles that he knows will be read. A distinguished gentleman of this place said to us not long ago, "I do not read your long editorials, but your short pieces-your clippings, which are excellent, I enjoy hugely and always read." This in one sense was not encouraging. But we took comfort, as we try to make the STAR lively and entertaining by editing in the true sense of that misunderstood term. To select well is an art-the result of experience, tact, taste, culture. The farming public have an excellent publication in the North Carolina Farmer, which is cheap at $1 a year. Published at Raleigh, N.C.

The Charleston papers say Rignold plays one character perfectly. That country, needs such a strong naval he equals Joe Jefferson or Raymond.

There are many croakers in the land. They must talk or write, and like Sydney Smith's victim, "they must talk about what runs in their head." We have no fears that the Southern Democrats in the 45th Congress will be untrue to themselves and their constituents. We believe Mr. Randall will be the Speaker, and not Mr. Garfield or any other Republican. We do not believe that the Southern Democrats will surrender themselves to Tom Scott or Tom anybody else who merely represents bloated corporations. We trust the press will be specially on the alert, and if any Southern Democrat has the faintest smell of the monopolists and subsidizers on his garments, to sound the alarm, and hang him high

"The Southern Democrats in the next House are going to try to secure control of two important committees, namely, the Appropriation committee and the committee on the Pacific Railroads, the object being to secure important Southern improvements and the Texas Pacific subsidy. He is a strong advocate of the Texas

Rev. Dr. John Miller, formerly pastor, we believe, of one of the Presbyterian churches at Petersburg, Va., and son of the Professor John Miller, of Princeton, who had a famous controversy with a distinguished Episcopal minister, is now on trial for neresy. He published a book which some grave divines of his church hold not to be orthodox -that is, as Charles James Fox would say, not "their doxy." The New York World says:

"It is quite noticeable that the citizens, rich and poor alike, have a great deal of affection and respect for Mr. Miller. He is an old man. He was born in New Brunswick, and his father was one of the earliest Professors of the Theological Seminary. Besides, the accused, though maried, (his wife is a daughter of ex-Governor McDowell of Virginia), is something of a recluse, and whatever differences he may have with his brethren are matters of conscience and honest conviction."

The cook who caters for the variable appetites of the students at Christ Church College, Oxford, in England, receives a yearly salary of $1,500, whilst the distinguished gentleman who fills the chair of Professor of Poetry receives the truly magnificent sum of $500 per annum. Shades of Shakespeare and Milton, of Chaucer and Spenser! Verily, a nation of beef eaters, who prefer to reward him who fills the stomach rather than the man of genius who feeds the mind, throws a halo around the name of England, and sends his winged words throughout the nations. But England is not the only country that neglects its writers and believes in muscle.

If the President had selected a Cabinet composed of Garfield, Cameron, Morton, Wade, Taft and Chandler, the despair of the country would have been absolute. Not one solitary ray of light would have streaked the lurid sky-not one sickly bud of promise would have been found in the wide political field. He did not select men of that type or school, and the country has joy, hope and rest. Peace prevails, and good men every where breathe freer. And yet partisans are too bitter and too unjust to give the man who avoided the evil and selected the good the slightest praise for his admirable conduct.

Mrs. Murtaugh sued the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for the death of her son which occurred on that Road. She wanted $20,000: she got $2,900. If she was entitled to any damages she was surely entitled to more than $2,900. Was not that dear son worth far more to her than money? And yet a jury thinks $2,900 salve enough to cover the bleeding heart and cicatrize all

The question of dividing Virginia into two Episcopal Dioceses is to be discussed at Staunton in May, when the Convention meets. The Whig opposes the division.

Gracious! how warm those Virginia papers are for their favorites. The Whig and Petersburg Post are making a square fight for Mahone.

There is a certain rather scurvy politician who has Ben Wade in the balances and found to be a compound of bluster and bumbug.

John Kelly swears he saw Tweed's confession and it contained the charge as already published.

WAR DECLARED AT LAST.

Full Text of the Czar's Manifesto. St. Petersburg, April 24.

The Czar's manifesto to the Russian army and people was promulgated to-day. The following is the

"Our faithful and beloved subjects know the strong interest we have constantly felt in the destinies of the oppressed Christian population of Turtey. Our desire to ameliorate and assauge their lot has been shared by the whole Russian nation, which now shows itself ready to bear fresh sacrifices to alleviate the position of the Christians in the Balkan peninsula. The blood and property of our faithful subjects have always been dear to us, and our whole reign attests our constant solicitude to preserve to Russia the benefits of peace. This solicitude never failed to actuate us during the deplorable events which occurred in Herzegovina, Bosnia and Bulgaria. Our object before all was to effect amelioration in the position of the Christians in the East by means and reprobation. The Boston Herald | of pacific negotiations, and in concert with the Great Powers, our allies and friends, for two years we have made incessant efforts to influce the Porte to effect such reforms as would protect the Christians in Bosnia, Herzegovina and Bulgaria from the arbitrary measures of the local authorities. The accomplishment of these reforms was absolutely stipulated by anterior engagements contracted by the Porte toward the whole of Europe. Our efforts, supported by the diplomatic representations made in common by the other governments, have not, however, attained their object. The Porte has remained unshaken in its formal refusal of any effective guarantee for the security of its Christian subjects, and has rejected the conclusions of the Constantinople conference. Wishing to essay every possible means of conciliation in order to persuade the Porte, we proposed to the other cabinets to draw up a special protocol, comprising the most essential conditions of the Constantinople conferences, and to invite the Turkish government to adhere to this international act, which states the extreme limits of our peaceful demands. But our expectation was not fulfilled. The Porte did not defer to this unanimous wish Christian Europe, and not adhere to the conclusions of the protocol. Having exhausted pacific efforts we are compelled by the haughty obstinacy of the Porte to proceed to more decisive acts, feeling that our equity and our own dignity enjoin it. By her refusal Turkey places us under the necessity of having recourse to arms. Profoundly convinced of the justice of our cause, and humbly committing ourselves to the grace and help of the Most High, we make known to our faithful subjects that the moment foreseen when we pronounced words to which all Russia responded with complete unanimity, has now arrived. We expressed the intention to act ndependently when we deem it neces sary and when Russia's honor should
