othy Doolan, of Barrydownderry, in the county of Clare, farmer, being sick, wake on my legs, but of sound head and warm heart—Glory be to God!—do make this, my first and last will and ould and new testament. First, I give my sowl to God, when it plazes him to take it—sure no thanks to me, for I can't help it then—and my body to be buried in the ground my body to be buried in the ground at Barrydownderry Chapel, where all my kin have gone before me, and those that live after, belonging to me, and buried, peace to their ashes, and may the sod rest lightly on their bones. Bury me near godfather and my mother, who lie separated altogether at the other end of the chapel yard. I lave the bit of ground containing eight acres—rale old Irish acres—to my eldest son Tim, after the death of my eldest son Tim, after the death of his mother, if she lives to survive him. My daughter Mary and her husband, Paddy O'Reagel, are to have the black sow that's going to have twelve black bonifs. Teddy, my second boy, that was killed in the war in Ameriky, might have got his pick of poultry, but as he is gone I'll lave them to his wife who died a week before him; I bequeath to all mankind fresh air of heaven, all fishes of the sea they can take, and all the birds of the air they can shoot. I lave to them all the sun, moon and stars. I lave to Peter Rafferty a pint of potheen I can't finish, and may God be merciful to him.

"He Played to Win.

Le Figaro tells a neat story of the last days of the Homburg gaming-tables. A German officer paid a visit to the trente-et-quarante table one day, and beginning with a very small stake, happened to light upon a series by which he won $20,000 in half an hour. The veteran gamblers predicted that he would be tempted back to try his fortune, but day after day passed with-out his entering the casino. At the end of three months his regiment having received orders to march, on the following morning he sauntered into the room, and taking a double florin from his pocket, staked it on the black and lost. All the gamblers expected that he would double the stake, and in the course of an hour loose all that he had won when he was there before. he had won when he was there before. But he turned on his heel and walked out of the room, muttering, "I never have any luck at this game."

Millionaire Winans's Great Organ. [From the Baltimore Gazette.]

[From the Baltimore Gazette.] "I'm building," Mr. Thomas Winans said, in showing the reporter through his mansion in Baltimore, "an organ that will be one of the largest in the United States when completed. It will have 5,000 pipes, ranging in size from 34 feet to three quarters of an inch. It is to be composed of five organs, solo, swell, orchestra, pedal and high pressure, and will be worked with an air pressure of four and eight inches. The room in which this organ is being built is the full height of the house, and has windows at the top house, and has windows at the top filled with slats by means of which the music can be thrown in any desired direction."
