gunboats have captured four vessels in the A Turkish monitor bombarded Satanow two hours. - Roumanian force will constitute the right wing of the Russian army. - The Chief Rabbi at Constantinople has ordered prayers to be offered for the success of the Turks. - The steamship Dakota is ashore on an island in South Wales; crew and passengers safe. - The President is reported as expecting big results from his policy in the South. - The Western delegation will arrive at Richmond Friday evening. -- The Permanent Exhibition at Philadelphia was opened at Philadelphia yesterday; President, Gen. Grant and Governor Hartrauft were present. - A destructive explo. sion occurred at Fall River; factory and other buildings destroyed; one body - The Czar is alarmed at Polish movements; he evidently fears an attempt at revolution. - A tribe has risen in the Caucasus. -- No recent fighting at Kars. - New York markets: Money easy at 2@21 per cent; gold active at 107@1071; cotton firm at 10 15-16@11 1-16 cents; rosin firmer at $1 90@1 92; spirits turpentine firmer at 36

Spirits Turpentine.

- Shelby voted the "dry" ticket. -- The fruit crop in Macon is very promising.

- Snow Hill elected entire Demo-- D. A. Covington elected Mayor

- Statesville elects Democratic - Mr. John McCall, of Bladen,

- At Lincolnton it is a tie between the "wets" and "drys."

- The office of Raleigh tax collector is worth $1,500.

- An old negro in Halifax county amputated his own foot.

* Reidsville depot received 125 tons of guano in about six months. - A meeting is called at Wades!

boro to consider the Cheraw and Salisbury - Hon. Neal Dow spoke at New-bern Wednesday night. Speech strong, but - A lamp exploded in the dwelling of Col. Kedar Bryan, of Magnolia, setting fire to curtains and table. Dr. Wm. Little, of Raleigh, has been elected physician to the penitentiary in place of Dr. Hill, deceased. - Macon court lasted three days. Only twenty five cases on civil and criminal docket, but the population is small.

- Dr. Blacknall, of the Yarbrough House, Raleigh, will dine the Chapel Hill seniors on the 9th of June, and give the students a "hop" on the night of

- The Charlotte Observer says Zenas Porter, of Mecklenburg, stood 126 yards from a tree on which sat a hawk, and with a pistol, the barrel of which was only five inches long, put a ball through the body of the bird.

- Orphan's Friend: Danbury is as picturesque a place as was ever found by Dr. Syntax himself. It is perched on a high hirl and overlooks the Dan, where the noble river is held in check and made to behave by lofty rocks and mountains.

- J. B. Palamountain, of Tarboro, has been elected M. W. G. Chief Patriarch of the Grand Encampment I. O. O. F., of North Carolina, and Andrew J. Burton, editor of the Weldon News, has been chosen Grand Master of the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. - Magnolia Record: The following is the result of the municipal election held in this town on Monday, the 8th inst. : Mayor-W. T. Hannaford; Commissioners -F. A. Newberry, H. Hollingsworth, J. M. Hartseil, J. F. Croom, J. D. Wilson and J. H. Groves. -Mrs. Milton, of Mecklenburg, made an assault upon Mrs. Bechtler, first with her fists and next with a knife. She was bound over in the sum of $100 amid tears and sympathy. She is handsome, and twenty men stood ready to go on her bond, according to the Observer.

- Raleigh Observer : A telegram was received in the city yesterday evening from Franklinton, N. C., announcing the sudden death near that place of Mr. Carter B. Harrison. Mr. H. was for many years a resident of this city, and was highly esteemed for his many good qualities as a man

- Magnolia Record: We understand that W. B. Coston, of Pender county, committed an assault upon Mr. J. K. Bannermann, at South Washington, a few days ago, which resulted quite seriously. The assailant struck Mr. B. with a piece of timber, and cut an ugly and serious gash

- Wilson Express: Mr. Jep Lind. say, of Nash county, was found dead in his bed last Friday morning, and in the even-ing Mr. J. W. Vaughn, of the same county, was found dead in the door of his residence. Heart disease is thought to have been the cause of the death of both. Both parties lived in Cooper's township.

- The Charlotte Observer says of the Greensboro election: Mr. Silas Dodson. of the McAdoo House, was elected Mayor, and Messrs, Eldrige, Yates, Cunningham, Sikes and Echols, Aldermen. We are also told that no political question entered into the contest, but that the ticket elected was regarded as the "wet" ticket.

- Concord Sun: Gaston Court began yesterday, Judge Cloud presiding. Several capital cases are on the docket for trial. Among the number is Leroy Gray, from this county, for rape. From what we can learn of his case we are inclined to think that a few years railroading, if not acquittal, will be the result.

THE MORNING STAR.

VOL. XX.---NO. 43.

Wayne county, was on his way home a few days ago from Fremont, and when within a half mile of home, about 8 o'clock at night, he was knocked out of his cart and robbed of $4 80. There is no clue to the perpetrator of the dastardly act.

cond Tuesday in June a grand match of cock fighting will take place in Norfolk beween well known sportsmen and chicken

- Orphan's Friend: Jonesville

on the Yadkin side of the Yadkin, and

Elkin on the Surry side and on Elkin

River, make one beautiful town, connected after the interests of their schools, and the children are in good hands. O how re-cotton factory, and enterprise always im-proves the appearance of a country.

publishes this: A correspondent writing us from Jefferson, Ashe county, where Judge Schenck is holding court this week, encloses the following, which is a copy of an order just issued by His Honor:

To the Clerk of - County:

AT CHAMBERS,

TENTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT.

You are ordered not to obey any writ of certiorari issued by the judge or clerks of the Circuit or District Courts of the United States in North Carolina, which may command you to certify to those courts for trial any criminal case where the parties are indicted for breaches of the peace in your

Refer the officer serving any such writ

THE CITY

Prof. Agostini.-Pic-nic notice.

CRONLY & MORRIS. - Auction sale.

Monday next for a trip to Europe.

Mayor's Court yesterday morning.

of new hose for the fire department.

GRANT, HINTON & Co.-Fertilizer.

Mr. Jacob N. Mohr will leave on

- There was no session of the

- We are glad to hear that the

- The city authorities ought to city has just received two thousand feet enforce the dog ordinance with more vigor.

There should be more revenue or fewer

- The Cornet Coucert Club ap peared yesterday, for the first time, in the beautiful new hats, with red plumes, which

- We learn that there was a large attendance at the German pic-nic at the Wilmington Gardens on Wednesday after noon and night, and that those who parti-

- Messrs. C. S. Ellis and C. N.

Chestnut, both former residents of this city but now of Savannah, were made residen

members of the Georgia Historical Society of Savannah, at a meeting on the 7th inst.

By the way, Mr. Ellis is now on a visit here.

in session at Salisbury, has elected Mr. R.

J. Jones, of this city, as Grand Treasurer, and the Grand Encampment has elected him Secretary and Treasurer. Mr. J. L.

Dudley was elected Senior Warden of the

Fidelity Lodge No. 67, Queen Esther

Lodge No. 30, and Star of Liberty Lodge

No. 63, colored Independent Order of Good Samaritans and Daughters of Samaria, held a Convention in this city during the present week, commencing Monday night, the 7th and adjourning Wednesday night, the 9th, inst. The business that called them together was successfully and satisfactorily performed. There were a great many delegates from Charlotte and other places, who returned home yesterday morning, "with," as one of them expresses it, "their hearts full of thanks to the white and colored citizens of Wilming-

The smithville Amateurs Invited to

The Wilmington public will be glad to learn that an invitation has been extended to the amateur performers of Smithville, who gave two such excellent dramatic entertainments at that place last week, for the benefit of the families of the lost pilots, to visit Wilmington and give one of their performances at the Opera House. There is every reason to believe that the invitation will be accepted, and that the proposed entertainment will be given some time during the coming week. It will be left altogether to the option of our visitors to say how the proceeds shall be applied, but it is thought probable that they will be donated to the

We can safely assure our friends here

THE PILOT FUND.

for the relief of the families of the lost pi-

The following subscriptions to the fund-that a rare treat is in store for them.

lots have been received at this office:

pilot fund.

Visit Wilmington.

- The Grand Lodge of I. O. O. F.

they have recently purchased.

cipated had a splendid time.

Grand Encampment.

Good Samaritans.

MUNSON.-Trunks, &c.

Local Dots.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

D. SCHENCK,

Judge Superior Court.

Assigned to Tenth District.

- Judge Schenck is in earnest. A Monday.

- Norfolk Landmark: On the se-

WILMINGTON, N. C., FRIDAY, MAY 11, 1877.

MEMORIAL DAY. MAY 10TH, 1877.

Honors to the Dead who Nobly Fought and Nobly Bled for the "Lost Cause"-Tributes of Speech, Tributes of Music and Tributes of Flewers-Ode In Memoriam, &c.

raisers of North Carolina and Virginia. The money wagered aggregates $2,000—ten battles at $100 each. The fighting will last four days, and each party will show thirty-one cocks. The sports anticipate a grand season. The forfeit money was put up last Monday. Yesterday, in accordance with the custom inaugurated in our city by the Ladics' Memorial Association, the people of Wilmington once more turned out in large numbers, on the anniversary of the death of the lamented Stonewall Jackson, to do honor to the Confederate dead who lost by a splendid bridge and watered by two noble rivers. These clever people look their lives in the grand, heroic, but unsuccessful struggle for Southern independence, as well as to those who have since, in the freshing to find one town with schools in peaceful shades of private life and in the lively operation. Elkin has also a large consciousness of duty well performed, passed from earth and joined their comrades in another sphere of existence. conflict between him and Judge Dick as to authority is imminent. The Raleigh News

THE DAY opened brightly and was in every way auspicious to the proper carrying out of the programme of the mournful occasion, being neither too warm nor too cool.

BUSINESS SUSPENDED. Commencing about soon, the stores and other business houses were very generally closed, and business was nearly entirely suspended for the remainder of day. The wharves after the dinhour were almost deserted, and the streets presented more the appearance of Sunday than one of the days of the week when business is generally at its

DISPLAY OF BUNTING. The flags over various private buildings were at half-mast during the day. Among which we noticed that of Messrs. Green & Flanner, Lemmerman & Conely, Mr. P. Heinsberger and the STAR office, and also that on the Democratic pole on Front street. Early in the forenoon the flags of the various vice consulates were displayed, which was followed by those of the foreign shipping in port, the rigging of the several Norwegian barques being literally covered with bunting. At 12 o'clock the flag over the Vice Consulate for Norway, Sweden and Denmark was dropped to half, mast, which was the signal agreed upon, and was immediately followed by a like proceeding on the part of the barques, their flags remaining at halfmast during the remainder of the day. The other shipping in port also had their flags at half-mast during the afternoon.

DRAPED IN MOURNING. Many of the stores and other business houses were draped in mourning, among which we noticed those of Messsrs. C. D. Myers & Co., R. M. McIntire, Thos. H McKoy, Col. J. J. Hedrick, Sol. Bear & Bros., T. W. Brown & Son, P. Heinsberger, Julius Samson, M. M. Katz, Brown & Roddick, J. C. Stevenson, and Zimmerman &

THE PROCESSION. At the appointed hour the procession was formed on Market street by Capt. John T. Rankin, Chief Marshal, and his Assistants, and took up its line of march for the Cemetery, the procession including the Ladies' Memorial Association, the Children's Memorial Association, the children of various schools, all bearing wreaths of flowers and evergreens, boquets, banners, &c.; the Wilmington Light Infantry, under command of Capt. Walter Coney; the Cape Fear Light Artillery, under command of Capt. H. G. Flanner; the officers and soldiers of the Third N. C. Infantry, the carriage containing the Orator and Chaplain, other organizations, carriages containing citizens, people on foot, &c., the Wilmington Cornet Concert Club discoursing sweet music appropriate to the occasion.

AT THE CEMETERY. Arriving at the Cemetery, where an immense throng of persons in carriages and on foot had preceded it, the procession filed into the Confederate lot, where the ceremonies were commenced, the choir first rendering the beautiful Memorial Ode written in part by the lamented Edwin Fuller. a few hours before his death, after which the Chaplain, Rev. James B. Taylor, delivered the following touching and appro-

PRAYER : We adore Thee, O Lord, as the King eternal, immortal and invisible; the only wise and true God. Before Thee the angels veil their faces, and in Thy sight the very heavens are unclean. What, then, is man that Thou art mindful of him, or the son of man that Thou visitest him? We bless Thy name that though Thou art infinitely exalted above us, and though we are sinners before Thee, that Thou dost condescend to listen to our petitions. We thank Thee for the Throne of Grace, to which we are invited to come boldly, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help. We rejoice that we are permitted to look up to Thee on this solemn and interesting occasion, and we pray that for the sake of our Lord Jesus Christ, Thou wilt graciously smile upon us, and bless us, and cause Thy face to shine upon us. Send Thy holy food and raiment. We thank Thee for our facilities for moral and intellectual development, and for all the capacities for enjoyment with which Thou has endowed us. We thank Thee for this land in which our lots have been cast. Thou hast blessed us as individuals and families, and as a community. When we would think of our temporal blessings they are more than we can number. And especially, O God, would we praise and thank Thee for those richer, spiritual favors, which come to us through the Cross of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. We bless Thee for a Saviour and those whom we have loved and lost. Follow with Thy blessing these solemnities and services in which we are engaged at this time and in this place. Bless us in all that shall be said and done. Command Thy favor upon each one now before Thee. Bless all the people and the families of this community. Bless our State and land. Bless the President of the United States, the Chief Magistrate of this Commonwealth, and all that are in authority. Make our Senators wise and our rulers righteous, and may all the various classes in our country pursue that righteousness which exalteth a nation, and forsake that sin which is a reproach to any people. May the pure principles of morality and religion prevail all over our country, and send out, we beseech Thee, Thy light and truth into all lands. We implore all these rich mercies in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord. "Our Father," &c.

The choir then rendered an appropriate dirge, at the conclusion of which Chief Marshal Rankin introduced Mr. John C. James, the orator for the occasion, in the following words:

Ladies and Gentlemen: I have the honor of presenting to you Mr. John C. James, the Orator of the Day. He needs no intro-duction to a Wilmington assemblage. Born and reared in our midst, he himself has witnessed many of the scenes that cause us to assemble here to-day to honor and perpetuate the names of our noble dead, and his heart throbs in unison with ours as we sigh for the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still.

Mr. James then, in a firm, distinct voice, which enchained the attention and interest of his large auditory, delivered the follow-

ADDRESS. Ladies of the Memorial Association Ladies and Gentlemen:

Once again has your solemn procession wended its way to these gates to celebrate this festival of our patriotic dead, and with floral offerings to commemorate the sweet savor of their sacrifice. He who would lightly judge this imposing demonstration as a mere outward show, to testify to our passions, or to inflame the heart with the fires of prejudice, little knows the depth and wealth of the sacred devotion which inspires us. In the sadness of desolation this has been to us a dear and blessed privilege, and now that the clouds of sectional oppression which hovered over us and obscured the free sunlight of our liberties are beginning to break, I thank God the privilege is valued still. And it should be our earnest prayer that the passions and heat of the hour, and the grossly materialistic influences of the age, may never detract from the pure and ardent de votion with which we should here do tribute to those who shed their life-blood in behalf of an eternal principle, and in our cause. Time was-and it has recently been, my friends—that the utterances of a speaker on occasions like this have been narrowly watched by the genius of enmity, and al that malice and rage could convert to our apparent detriment—or, failing in actual fact, all that a feeling of hatred could invent to our disadvantage-has been, with insane jealousy, interpreted and used to our political embarrassment and oppression But I sincerely thank Heaven, and congratulate you, that whatever else may have resulted from recent national events, the true attitude of the South has been clearly and indisputably manifested, and the barriers of misunderstanding-if not those of hatred -have at last been broken, and the enemies of our section must behold us as we are, and not as they would interpret us. We have in this wrought out our own salvation, and little thanks are due for assistance from any quarter. Freely, then, may I speak of the patriotic devotion of those enshriped in dust beneath us, and of the now phantom host who fell in soldierly harness, and with no fears for your embarrassment may I declare they died in defence of the most sacred principles known to Republican institutions—the right of self-government and for constitutional liberty. Should we hesitate to proclaim this fact, then would we be unjust to the memory of the brave hearts that perished in this cause, of their martyred leader, JACKSON, and of their great captain, LEE whose unexampled renown will be the theme of ages after our poor little bodies have crumbled into dust. If we so honor death for such a principle—while we faithfully acquiesced in the defeat of the particular experiment in its behalf—how truly will our estimation as citizens be enhanced so long as it holds a fundamental rank in the ethics of patriotism. And even were the principle collateral instead of fundamental, in our relations to this our reunited government, the same happy effect would ensue. A people capable of an unreserved. hearty and unequivocal devotion to principle have in them the true elements of good

How great has been the blindness of our fellow-countrymen that they have failed to see that year after year, as throughout the South we have made these our annual pilgrimages to the shrine of our fallen braves, and held these commemorative festivals, tism. At what nobler shrine than martyrdom in defence of country could we seek to perpetuate the fires of patriotism 1 And wisdom of true statesmanship will look to this school for the future defenders of our common country. The unfalfering heroism, the stern endurance and the patient suffering of the Confederate soldiers, added lustre to the American name, and is surrounded with a halo as effulgent as the glory of Lacedæmon. Strip the age of its prejudice, temper hatred with justice, or but smooth the bitterness of recollection with the iron hand of time, and the fact will be hailed in the light of universal admission. England's glory is all her own, so that, in the computation of English honor, your true Englishman glories alike in the heroism of his Saxon and Norman ancestors, and upon the rosary of his pride recounts the achievements of York and Lancaster without regard to the color of the rose, and exults in the possessions of his country independent of geographical lines. "Once an Englishman, always an Englishman," and no Mason and Dixon's line could serve as a barrier to affection and blessed Spirit into our hearts, that we for his countrymen. And "when in that may fear, and love, and trust Thee. We elder day to be a Roman was greater than thank Thee for our homes and friends, and a King," the boast of that mighty people was in the prowess of their countrymen, whether under tribunes, empire or repub-lic. France—the wonderful, the recuperative-oft distracted by civil disagreements.

still proudly points to the gallantry of all her children, and in the days of the republic holds as a precious heritage the achievements of the empire. And so, too, the people of all this land have ever held in common esteem and veneration-even while their sectional strife waxed hot and blood flowed fast and free-the heroism and achievements of the founders of the republic in that memorable struggle in which their freedom was wrought and our country established. And when our chil-dren's children bave succeeded us to enact their parts in the drama of life, will not a country made pure and great by the contribution of Southern patriotism and Southern patriotism and Southern patriotism.

government which incited these gallant defenders in grey to lay their lives upon the altar of that aspiration? It requires no prophetic eye to see, that once the cloud of this maddened sectional hate, now so slowly dispelling, shall have been swept from the national heavens, with what eagerness will the scarce equaled military genius of our Jackson be claimed as American accomplishment, and to enrich American glory. And high upon the tablet of fame will be written the great achievements, and greater Christian virtues, of our immortal LEE! And, my friends, time will bring more abundant retri-bution than this. The future historian will as surely do justice to the statesmanship and devoted patriotism of JEFFERson Davis. To my mind he now looms up as the sublimest picture of the age. Still pressed beneath the iron heel of governmental ostracism, he is yet pierced with the unmerited shafts of insane, reproach. He was our leader; to him we intrusted the sceptre of our destinies—this is his crime and in our defeat he was made to bear what were deemed our political iniquities. Julius Casar, the relentless conquerorpagan though he was—shed tears of sincere grief when the head of Pompey, his enemy and rival, was presented to him; he punished the assassins, caused the remains to be interred, and reared a temple over the grave of the heroic victim. But the victorious, christian American government chuckled at its indignity to this patient antagonist in chains, fettered like a common felon while a prisoner of war! And for our sakes is he still punished. But behold how he has stood amid the tempest of passion and calumny which has raged around

"As some tall cliff that lifts its awful form, Swells from the vale and midway leaves the storm, Though round it; breast the rolling clouds are spread, Eternal sunshine settles on its head."

It has been said of us that we of the South are great hero worshippers, and have the infatuation of all enthusiasts, in that it once we accord this worship, we are loth ever thereafter to think indifferently of the object. If by this is meant that we reverence greatness though divested of position; that we esteem and venerate the possessor of distinguished qualities though he be not the dispenser of public patronage; that we accord an unreserved and deferential appreciation to valor, even in the humblest of our sons, and recognize the existence of merit, from whatsoever quarter it may spring,-then indeed should we rejoice in the application. And sad would you and I be to see the day when the gallant deeds est appreciation in Southern hearts. Not to the rank and file of any army, marshalled in any human cause, has been permitted more brilliant individual heroism, or greater individual fortitude, under excessive pri vation. I crave your patience for but one illustration of this valor, as typified in an organization near and dear to us, people of Wilmington. Do you see that scarred, tattered and faded old flag yonder? It is the battle flag of the Third North Carolina Reg-iment of Infantry. The wealth of the world could not buy it, and there are hearts now that would die to defend it from sacrilege. Its texture is rent by hostile bullets; its original staff was shot away in the very hands of the brave men who bore it upon the bloody fields where it oft waved in triumph, and its olds even now bear the dull stains of the blood of some of its followers. When hese ceremonies are completed, that cherished old flag, in the hands of the faithful remnant of survivors, will droop its folds, in sad and honorable salute to departed valor, over the graves of such of its followers whose remains have not found obliteration in the general dust of the battle-field, and do rest here in this quiet spot. That flag, on the fatal third of July, upon the bloody heights of Gettysburg, was the subject of as knightly a deed of bravery as ever graced ancient or modern times those fearful heights - bristling with bayonets and cannon, three lines deep,-the gallant Third had been ordered with its brigade to charge. Amid the storm of bullets and cannister, color-bearer after color-bearer had been shot down until the last survivor of the guard halted from a wound at the foot of a neighboring tree. At this juncture a young Lieutenant rushed from his position in the line, caught the flag fast falling from the nerveless grasp, and waving it in proud defiance above his head, dashed up those fatal heights full in advance of the entire ine. There are living witnesses who will never forget this magnificent spectacle, as, oblivious for the instant of their own peril, all eyes were centered upon this gallant young officer proudly advancing amid a tempest of lead which hurled death everywhere around him. It was a sight long to be remembered, and happy am I to relate that though the command was finally compelled to retreat with a loss of more than wo thirds of its entire number, the brave man escaped the charge unharmed. Tell me, my friends, was this spectacle of individual bravery ever excelled? Or does history present to our mind a more gallant outburst of irrepressible individual hero-Can the deeds of such men ever be forgotten? Will they not rather live forever in song and in story? Oh! you poor, half-starved Confederate soldier! Fighting for the most part without pay, and with no hope of compensation—oft shoeless and hatless, ragged and hungry—yet buoyed by a mighty principle and devotion to the state which monarchs might envy and call forth blessings on their heads from admir-sight even when she invokes the vision of Leonidas in the pass of Thermopylas,

Achilles at the siege of Troy, or the great Napoleon on the bridge of Lodi? Here no fate of armies depended upon the act,

but it was the spontaneous and patriotic

"Their's not to reason why, Their's but to do or die," was the powerful ever-present sense of duty. Their political education embodied the rooted principle of a first allegiance to the State which bore them, and when she called it was as the voice of a mother to her children—sacredly to be obeyed, and with joy and alacrity. No reward could they hope for but in the good of the State. Such men, displaying such bravery and achieving such mighty victories, in the midst of such physical privations, would have proved invincible if success could have been made a possibility in a game of ten to one. Yes, and

"Some of these dropped by the wayside;
Some while on picket were shot,
Some of them fell in the skirmish,
Some of them died in the hospital,
Nor father nor mother were there,
To lift up the fainting spirit
With blessings and with prayer;
Some languished in Northern prisons,
Wearing their lives away. Some languished in Northern prise Wearing their lives away. Dying in captivity, Hoping, yet all in vain, Hoping to breakithe prison bars And breathe free air sgain; Yearning for wives and children, Yearning to be caressed, Or longing with broken spirit, Longing to be at rest."

It is not that we love war that our hearts flow in such melody of admiration at the martial deeds of countrymen, but that we glory in their ready prowess when stern necessity calls for acts of valor. Our warm Southern natures find delight in the oheerful intercourse of glad, friendly peace, and we would be the last in all this broad land

And you, wild winds, the story bear, And trembling leaves, both green and sere, All this in plaintive tones declare Above.

WHOLE NO. 3,046 to desire it broken. But peace has its dangers as well as war, and oftentimes less preferable. In constantly breathing the atmosphere of trade, do we not become exposed to the temptation to barter that honor without which the soldier cares not to live? And how frequently in peaceful contests are tears, groans, supplications, and even lives, coined into gold in our insatiable pursuit of individual accumulation! The baser passions of envy and trickery so often, too, become the parents of shameless fraud. The materialistic principle of the times, though in enmity to the higher emotion of self-sacrifice, is yet promotive of that passion for luxury which energates a nation. Even Sparta, which owed its invincibility to the frugal lives of its citizens under the rigid enforcement of its laws-that little State which held its own in gallant conflict against the world-bade adieu forever to its greatness on the intro-duction of luxurious habits. Argus, with his hundred eyes—some always affording watch while the others slept—was lulled into a fatal repose by the lascivious measure of Mercury's lute. My friends, are these examples of history and poetic fable without their warning? If we would aspire to he always patriotic and to make a be always patriotic, and to make our country great in its defenses as well as in its beaceful victories, then we must as manfulmeet the dangers of peace as those of war. Ladies of the Memorial Association, since your last celebration one noted among the surviving Confederate band has escaped the dangers of peace after passing through those of war. That he surmounted them with valor and met them with successful resistance, the testimony he has written in the hearts of his friends bears indelible record,

'messenger of lead," he fell in action, and with peaceful armor on. One more grave for your attention—one more name to the angelic Roll of Honor. By your fostering care and devoted perseverance is this spot whereon we stand en-riched by the dust of those uncared-for Confederates whom the war left sleeping in Oakdale. This is your Ceramicus to rescue from oblivion these gallant dead. Here have you reared that enduring statue which. from its prominence and sublimity, arrests the passer-by and attests the character of the forms sleeping beneath this sod. Long will this magnificent, faithful sentinel preserve his silent, impressive watch, amid the quiet beauty of this peaceful City of the Dead—withstanding the storms of ages in his unbroken vigil. He will thus tell of the unfaltering devotion of those noble women who triumphed over all difficulties to mark this spot, and in his mute and soldierly eloquence will forever proclaim that

Snatched from our presence by the dread messenger of disease as suddenly as if a

"Cold in the dust those perish'd hearts may lie, But that which warm'd them once can never die."

CONCLUDING CEREMONIES. The address concluded, another ode was rendered by the choir, followed by the doxology, in which all joined, the benediction by the Chaplain, and the reading of the Roll of Honor by the Marshal, after which came the floral offerings, music by the band, and a solute by the Wilmington Light In fantry, when the graves of the deadheroes in private lots were decorated and the multitude dispersed.

BANNERS, DECORATIONS, &C.

Near the entrance to the Confederate lot was a beautiful arch, trimmed with evergreens and flowers, and draped in moss, bearing the inscription, in letterings of cedar, "It is Holy, for it Droops above the Dead," from the "Conquered Banner," surmounted by the battle-flag which belonged to Capt. H. G. Flanner's Battery during the late war, which had been transformed for the occasion, by the ladies of the Memorial Association, into the national ensign of the Confederacy.

The banner carried by the pupils of Misses Kennedy and Hart's school bore on the front a cluster of pansies and rosemary, surrounded by the sentence, "I pray you, friends, remember!" in allusion to the concluding quotation of Hon. George Davis in his memorial address of last year. The reverse, of gray and blue, in imitation of the Confederato uniform, contained the representation of a furled Confederate flag, and the inscription, "Devotion, not Victory, Hallows the Tomb."

The magnificent statue which adorns the Confederate lot was appropriately decorated, and at the close of the ceremonies the mound at the base was one mass of flowers, the result of the numerous floral offerings. It has been estimated by many that the number on the grounds was considerably larger than on any previous occasion. There were many notable banners, decorations, &c., of which we have neither the time nor space to speak.

MEMORIAL ODE. At the invitation of the ladies of the Memorial Association, Dr. M. J. DeRosset prepared the following beautiful, touching and appropriate Memorial Ode, suited to the occasion, which, however, was not included in the ceremonies: In Memorium. BY M. J. DEROSSET, M. D. Again the vernal flowers blow, And deck the hills and vales below In beauteous forms and tints that glow With Life. These bring, and scatter o'er each grave. Neath which lies dust a hero gave For those he vainly sought to save

Let matrons come, and maidens fair, Perfume with flowers the ambient air That laves the mound and hillocks where We weep. Let the sweet incense circling rise In hallowed cloudlets to the skies, Whither the soldier's spirit flies From sleep.

From Strife.

And you, ye living remnant stand, Around your comrades, sacred band. Once more, in weeping for the Land In woe. Unfurl those banners, torn and scarred, ('Tis all the ruthless hand hath spared), Wave here the folds that never feared The foe.

For these, our heroes, in the might And panoply which come from right, Bared their bosoms in the fight, Sublime! For us they gave their hearts' blood free,

Asked not for recompense, but we Embalm their deeds in memory And rhyme. Go, tell the story far and wide,

How our loved ones fought and died, Tell it to men, with swelling pride

RATES OF ADVERTISING. Contract Advertisements taken at propor

Ten lines solid Nonparell type make one square.

A Case of Subornation of Perjury.

A colored man by the name of J. D. Davis, who, we believe, has been acting as sort of detective, was arrested and carried before U. S. Commissioner VanAmringe, esterday morning, on the grave charge of subornation of perjury. The evidence elicited the fact that the accused endeavored to pursuade a man by the name of Sullivan to swear to some pay rolls in the United States District Court, he to represent himself as being one John Fisher, who was a witness in a certain case tried at the late term of that Court, and who had run away, the two to divide the profits. Sullivan, who was justly indignant at the vile proposition, informed Davis that he had mistaken his man and straightway went before the District Attorpey and made him equainted with the facts.

Davis was ordered to give a justified bond in the sum of $300 for his appearance at the next term of the U. S. District Court. in default of which he was committed to Thermometer Record.

The following will show the state of the thermometer, at the stations mentioned, at 4.35 yesterday evening, Washington mean time, as ascertained from the daily bulletin issued from the Signal Office in this city: Augusta,......71 | Montgomery,.....75

Charleston, 68 | New Orleans, 75 Corsicana,77 Norfolk61 Galveston,75 Punta Rassa,74 Indianola,73 | Savannah,......68 Jacksonville,76 St. Marks,78 Key West,76 Wilmington, 65 Mobile,.................78

- A telegram from the Signal Office at Smithville, dated 9:15 P. M., yesterday, says: "The barque Forsete is aground on the bar, but will probably get off on next tide-water." -

No Opium! No Morphia or other dan-gerous drug is contained in Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup, for the relief of Colic, Teething,&c. CETY EXEMS.

part of nature without suggestion of artificial appli-cation, is bestowed by that unique cosmetic, Gou-rand's Olympian Cream. Price in Large Bettles, reduced to One Dollar. For sale by J. C. Munds.

GOOD SENSE.—"Why are your biscuit so deli-cious," asked Mrs. A. of Mrs. X. "Besause I'll have none other than Dooley's Yeast Powder in the house," was the reply. This commendation is echoed throughout the land. It is full and running over in weight, and the article itself perfectly pure and strong. All grocers keep: and strong. All grocers keep it.

All nervous, exhausting and painful diseases speedily yield to the curative influences of Pulvermacher's Electric Belts and Bands. They are safe, simple, and effective, and can be easily applied by the patient himself. Book, with full particulars, mailed free. Address Pulvermacher Galvanic Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

OFER 2,400,000 SAMPLE BOTTLES OF BOSCHERS GERMAN SYRUP have been distributed free of charge in this country to those afflicted with Consumption severe Coughs, Pneumonia, and other Throat and Lung diseases, as a proof of its wonderful quality in curing these dreaded diseases. The demand for this medicine is immense, Regular size 75 cents. Phree doses will relieve any case.

BOOK BINDERY .- THE MORNING STAR BOOK Bledery does all kinds of Binding and Ruling in a workmanlike manner, and at reasonable prices. Mer chants and others needing Receipt Books, or other work, may rely on promptness in the execution of

TRANSFER PRINTING-INKS .- Invaluable to railroad companies, steamship companies, banks, merchants, manufacturers and others. They are enduring and changeless, and will copy sharp and clear for an indefinite period of time. Having just received a fresh supply of these inks, we are pre-pared to execute orders promptly and at moderate

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

M. CRONLY, Auctioneer. BY CRONLY & MORRIS.

Underwriters' Sale. THIS DAY (FRIDAY), AT 10 O'CLOCK, A. M., we will sell, at our Sales' Rooms, under inspection of the Agent of the Underwriters, for and on account of whom it may concern—

1 ANCHOR,
1 HAWSER.
1 HAVER.

And immediately after our usual sale of Household and Kitchen FURNITURE.

Tubs LARD, Cases MATCHES, &c., &c., &c. Excellenza Cotton Fertilizer,

NO HUMBUG-ON CROP ONLY A FEW TONS LEFT.

Apply for prices and terms to GRANT, HINTON & CO.
my 11-1tD&W Grocers and Com Merchants.

Pic-Nic. THE SCHOLARS OF PROF'R AGOSTINI'S

DANCING SCHOOL, their Parents and Invited Guests, are requested to meet at the Hall promptly at 8 o'clock To-Morrow Morning. The Train will leave Front Street Depot, at 9 o'clock sharp.

Leather Trunks. DACKING TRUNKS.

TRAVELLING BAGS, VERY LOW AT MUNSON'S. my 11-1t

Festival.

THE LADIES OF FRONT

STREET M. B. CHURCH WILL HAVE A STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL, at the MEGINNEY HALL on FRIDAY NIGHT. my 9 2t W&F nsc

Wanted. BY A YOUNG MAN AND HIS WIFE, ONE UNFURNISHED ROOM, with BOARD, in a pri-

Address, stating terms, Post Office. my 10-2t*

vate family, in five minutes' walk of the Market-

Seasonable Styles. DELT AND STRAW HATS ! NEW SHAPES IN LADIES' STRAW HATS

HARRISON & ALLEN, Wholesale and Retail Hatters.

Apollinaris Brunnen AND Hunyadi Janos Bitterwater, In Original Packages constantly on hand.

W. J. BUHMANN. Agent, Lippitt's Row, my 6-cod tf Sn We Fr South Front St.