The Prize Suit for the Capture of Richmond - A $3,000,000 Claim Gone Glimmering.

Special Dispatch to the Baltimore Sun.

WASHINGTON, May 18. The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in General Term, today, decided the celebrated suits of Admiral Porter and the officers and men of the North Atlantic squadron for prize money on account of the capture of Richmond. In 1874, nine years after the conclusion of the war, snits were entered in the courts of this District in behalf of the officers and men of the North Atlantic squadron, claiming in the aggregate United States troops were with them about $3,000,000 in prize money for the part taken by the squadron in the capture of Richmond. Included in these suits were claims for bounty money for every man captured on the Confederate flotillas and batteries at the rate of $200 per head, and also bounty for all ships and batteries destroyed by the Confederates on the York and Pamunkey rivers to prevent them falling into the hands of the Union forces. Prize money was also claimed on account of the capture of the Texas and Beaufort, Confederate men-of-war, and in the bill the value of these two ships was appraised at $892,121. The court then unanimously reversed the former proceedings and dismissed all the libels. The libellants still have the privilege of appealing to the Supreme Court of the United States, but if they should conclude to do so

[Baltimore Sun of Saturday.] After two or three days of comparative quiet the corn market took a sudden jump yesterday, and marked an advance of 21/42 cents per bushel at the close of the day. Western corn for immediate and May delivery closing at 67 cents, and for June at 671 cents, with more buyers than sellers. The advance is said to be due to an improvement on the other side, which stimulated buying orders from the West. At New York corn advanced 1 cent, and at Chicago 14 cents per bushel. The markets for wheat and flour were more steady, without any material

The Episcopal Diocesan Convention is in session here. Rev. John B. McConnell, colored, of the Emmanuel Church at Memphis, delivered an impressive sermon last night, it being the first instance in the United States of a colored clergyman preaching to a white congregation in an Episcopal Church. This is the more significant from the fact that Bishop Quintard, who presided over the convention, was a chaplain in the Confederate army.

The principal work of the day was the consideration of various reports from the committee of Revision of Church Discipline, and fair progress was made. The reports of the committee conform almost entirely with the agreement of the Pittsburg commissioners on all disputed points. The constitution, elementary principles and preamble, on which the work is based, are those used by the Methodist Protestant Church since

As two cases are of importance to the public, we give a synopsis of them. Branch & Co. vs. W. R. R.-This was a suit to recover a penalty for failing to ship cotton received by the Company, under an act of the Legislature providing that it shall be unlawful for freight to remain unshipped for more than five days, and fixing a penalty of twenty-five dollars for each day said freight remains unshipped. The freight in this case remained at the company's depot for nine days. The Judge upon the evidence rendered his decision in favor of plaintiffs, giving judgment for one hundred dollars. The Railroad Company appealed. Messrs. Connor & Woodard appeared for plaintiffs and Hon. W. T. Dortch for defendants.

Branch & Co. vs. Wiley Tomlinson. This was a suit on a note in which the defendant waived his personal property exemptions. Judgment was rendered on same, execution issued, and defendant claimed his exemptions, but the sheriff refused to allow it upon the ground that the defendant having waived his exemptions in the note could not claim it afterwards. The Judge rendered his decision in favor of the plaintiff, holding that the waiver was valid. Defendant appealed. Connor and Woodard for plaintiff and Kenan & Murray for defendant.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION YESTERDAY.

Parade of the Wilmington Light Infantry, the Cape Fear Light Artillery-Other Organizations in Line -Oration by Hon. Edward Cano

well, &c. The 20th of May, the anniversary of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. as dear to North Carolinians as the Fourth of July is to the patriots of the whole country, falling this year on Sunday, the Wilmington Light Infantry and the Cape Fear Light Artillery, who also lay claim to the 20th as their anniversary day, celebrated yesterday, instead, with becoming and appropriate ceremonies.

The Cape Fear Light Artillery Company, under command of Capt. H. G. Flanner, the Wilmington Light Infantry, under command of Capt. Walter Coney, the Veteran Corps, under command of Capt. Henry Savage, the last ante-war Captain of the Wilmington Light Infantry, the honorary members and the gentlemen composing the choir for the occasion, formed in procession at the Armory on Front street at half past 3 o'clock, from whence they marched to the Dawson Bank building, where the members of the Produce Exchange fell into ranks; thence to the corner of Front and Princess streets, where they were joined by the Mexican Veterans, under command of Lieut. James Reilley, of the Cape Fear Light Artillery, himself one of the Veterans; thence to the Bank of New Hanover, where the members of the Board of Trade took their place in the line, and thence up Princess street to the Evans Block, where the Historical and Scientific Society were received. The whole column then, under command of Major M. P. Taylor, of the Second Battalion of N. C. State Guards, who was mounted, with Lieut, N. H. Sprunt, of the Wilmington Light Infantry, as Adjutant of the day, moved up Princess Corps were fatigue caps, each of the corps, some twenty in number, looking every inch a soldier, while the Mexican Veteraus bore aloft an old United States flag, the property of Col. J. L. Cantwell, which was the first national ensign that floated inside of the City of Mexico upon its capture by the United States troops. The whole column in procession, as they took up the line of march for the Opera House, headed by the "Drum Corps," with the beautiful banner of the Wilmington Light Infantry, presented to them by the ladies of Wilmington, borne aloft, made a very fine and imposing appearance.

Arriving on the pavement in front of the Opera House the military halted, came to ous civic organizations marched into the the orator and reader of the day, the Chap. lain, the gentlemen of the choir, composed of Messrs. W. H. Northrop, C. H. Robinson, J. I. Metts and W. F. Hargrave, and others had been seated on the stage, Capt. A. L. DeRosset announced that Rev. Geo. Patterson, Chaplain of the Wilmington Light Infantry, would open the ceremonies with prayer.

Rev. Mr. Patterson then made a brief but impressive petition to the Throne of Grace, invoking a blessing upon the proceedings, which was followed by the singing by the choir (Prof. Van Lear, as Musical Director, being at the piano) of the "Old North State," with some variations from the original, which was received with great applause, the audience rising to their feet and joining in the chorus to the last stanza, amid the wildest enthusiasm, waving of hats, handkerchiefs, &c.

Capt. DeRosset then announced that "Old Lang Syne" would be sung as a special compliment to the Mexican Veterans, to revive in some manner the memories and recollections of the past deeds of valor and heroism in which they had been participants. This was befittingly rendered by the cheir, assisted by Prof. Van Lear, after which Capt. DeRosset very gracefully introduced the orator of the day, Hon. Edward Cantwell. .

Judge Cantwell's address was a long able and eloquent one, abounding in facts, statistics and historical reminiscences of the Wilmington Light Infantry Company from its first organization in 1853 up to the present time, which, however, were of such a character as to render an intelligent synopsis almost impossible, while the entire address was too lengthy for our columns. The address was frequently applauded during the course of its delivery, the concluding portion of which we give is follows:

"I cannot conclude this address without acknowledging my own sense ol its imperfections and omissions and regretting the necessity I am under of invoking your indulgence. I have not drawn upon your sure you will not willingly suffer to pass with me into oblivion. I am constrained 4.35 yesterday evening, Washington mean with me into oblivion. I am constrained to omit many which are even nore interesting. At the risk of being tedious, I shall now ask your attention vhile I attempt to recall the brightest vision of our ante-bellum days. How often on the tented fields of Virginia, fluttering above the white winged canvas, or toying in the breeze with the Stars and Bars, through the silent watches of the starlit nights, pacing with the solitary sentinel, when that sentinel's beat marked off the boundary lines of a Confederacy; on the prison floors; in the bitter cold of Lake Erie; gleaming in the unsheathed bayonets of hostile columns, moving to the fray; in long and cruel marches by the dark Potomac, over sloppy roads; on the rampart crowned with cannon, wreathed with the battle smoke or sheeted in its flame, a guileless little maiden's face has risen on the soldier's eye like some exhalation of the mist, glassing all the hues of glory, and luring him on to those inspiring toils by which man masters men.

"As on the driving cloud the shiny bow,
That gracious thing made up of tears and light,
Mid' the wild rack and rain that slants below,
Stands smiling forth unmoved and freshly bright!

As though the spirits of all lovely flowers.
In weaving each its wreath and dewy crown,
Or e'er they sank to earth in vernal showers.
Had built a bridge to tempt the angels down. I congratulate you, Capt. Coney, on the fine appearance and discipline of your command. I trust you will never find the merchants and people of Wilmington, and especially the ladies, any less generous in their courtesy or less cordial in their attachment to your company than they were accustomed to be in your predecessors' days. Down amid the tropics, beneath the fervid skies of the equator, the aqueducts of Mexico arch her thirsty vales; from the mountains to the city they carry on their shoulders to the humblest dwellings of the people the pure life-giving waters of the Sierra Madre. And so we should learn to regard your company and this organization. It comes down to us from the historic past; it links the present generation of our young men to their predecessors. "Our living heroes and our dead;" our lowliest needs and our loftiest aspirations. Across a desert slough and a dark valley, crowded with shadows and death, it brings to Wilmington through clouds and mists, fringed with the rainbow hues of morning and fed with heaven's own sunshine, overleaping cascades and difficult hills, the fresh pure air and breath of patriotism. Soldiers, I do not ask you to-day to maintain your reputation, nor shall I repeat promises for your future conduct; your past history is the best guaranty for the future.

Fellow-citizens, I shall make you no appeal in behalf of this company. It is as though a man should plead to a mother in behalf of her offspring. Its sun will never set; its natural force will not abate until freedom itself shall die. We shall not see it expire until that living public spirit, which has characterized this community in every emergency of its existence, shall also disappear and forever.

A reference in the earlier part of the address to the probable reorganization of the German Volunteers at a not distant day, brought down the house.

At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Jos. M. Cronly was introduced, who, in a very clear and distinct voice, read the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, which was duly applauded at its close.

The ceremonies were then brought to a close by the singing of "Carolina's Sons a front and present arms, when the vari- are Ready," composed in honor of the Wilmington Light Infantry by Hon. building, the military bringing up the George Davis, while they were on duty at Bolles' battery, near Fort Fisher, in 1861, The Opera House was well filled, quite a | which was full of fire and patriotism and

TO ALL, PARTICULARLY INVALIDS, spring is a trying season. Indications of sickness should at once be attended to. Fatal diseases muy be caused by allowing the bowels to become constipated and the system to remain in a disordered condition, until the disorder has time to develop itself. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, is an old and truthful saying. Therefore, we advise all who are troubled with the complaints now very preyalent-headache, indigestion, disordered liver, want of appetite, nausea, or feverish skin, to take, without delay, Schenck's Mandrake Pills, We know of no remedy so harmless and decisive in its action It at once strikes at the root of the disease and produces a healthy tone to the system. People never need suffer from any disease arising from a disordered condition of the liver if they would take this excellent medicine when they feel the first indications of the malady. Families leaving home for the summer months should take three or four boxes of these pills with them. They have an almost instantaneous effect. They will relieve the patient of headache in one or two hours, and will rapidly cleanse the liver of surrounding bile, and will effec-tually prevent a billious attack. They are sold by
