A Dangerous Traveling Companion. Among the passengers who left St. Louis for the East Wednesday night was a large, well-built gentlemen, whose restlessness annoyed everybody in the sleeping-coach. He retired to his berth without taking off coat, collar or boot, and fell into a dose. While the train was speeding toward Mt. Vernon, Ill., at the rate of thirty miles an hour, the porter heard a loud noise in the car and discovered that the queer passenger was walking up and down between the berths and making a great racket. The porter went up to him and asked him to go back to his berth. The passenger was a raving maniac. He glared at the porter with blood-shot eyes, and in a porter with blood-shot eyes, and in a frenzy of rage felled him to the floor, and, leaping upon him, attempted; to stab him with a bowie knife. A desperate encounter followed, during which the porter was terribly wounded. The conductor sprang to the rescue, but the lunatic struck him in the face with a heavy goblet and snapped a derringer at his head, the pistol missing fire. With a terrible curse, he struck the conductor with the butt of a pistol and then fled into the drawing-room car, locking the door behind him, smashing the mirrors on WILMINGTON MONEY MARKET Wilmington Building Stock,......... behind him, smashing the mirrors on the walls, and leaping headlong from the platform. Save the Peach Trees. [Salisbury Examiner.] The borer worm is at work on a large scale in this immediate vicinity; the first indications of their operations is the curling of the leaves. This destruction of peach trees is easily overcome by scraping away the dirt from around the roots and sprinkling a thick lay of a mixture of equal por-tions in bulk of soot & salt, and it would be well to add a little ashes.
