Mr. Seligman's reputation is good. He was the president of the Rapid Transit Commission, is a member of both syndicates, has been a leader in Republican councils, is the first vice president of the Union League Club, a prominent member of the Chamber of Commerce, and the president of Professor Adler's Ethical Society. He has also been a member of the Board of Education, and honored in other ways, not only by his own people, but by the whole community. He was the only gentleman with whom ex-President Grant dined in this city during his recent visit, although flooded with invitations. He is connected with every charitable institution of almost every sect. His brother James is a director of the Fifth Avenue Temple Emanuel, and Jesse is the president of the Hebrew Benevolent and Orphan Asylum Society, the largest Hebrew society in the Patting Hilton on the Back-Other Tavern Intellerants. NEW YORK, June 19.

A reporter who visited Long Branch to-day to ascertain what was thought of Judge Hilton's action, could obtain no information until he assured the hotel proprietors that their names were not to be used. Then they, with one accord and unanimously, sustained Mr. Hilton's action, and hoped that it was the beginning of a movement that would drive persons of that nationality from first-class houses. They said that nothing was worse for a house than to gain the reputation of being a Jew house, and they did not doubt that Mr. Hilton would reap profit by driving them out of the Grand Union Hotel in Saratoga. Very many guests coming to Long Branch houses asked, "Do you take Jews?" and on being told that they did, went away. O six leading Long Branch hotels, two will not take Jews at any price, and four will under some excuse or other prevent them from becoming guests. The reporter found the feeling very decided and the anti-Jew talk very Directly contrary was the opinion expressed in the principal New York hotels. In nearly every instance Hilton's action was declared an insult to a race that promptly pay their bills and are as desirable a class of guests as could be asked for.

Orders to the house of A.T.Stewart amounting to hundreds of asands of dollars have already been withdrawn by prominent Hebrew houses, which have heretofore been among the best and promptest customers of the establishment. It is believed that no Hebrew merchant will henceforth patronize either the dry goods business of the Stewart estate or any of the hotels under llilton's management.

The Crisis in France.

Paris, June 22. A dispatch from Rome says the Pope has issued an order to the French clergy, directing them to abstain from all interference with French politics. The Pope has also replied to a communication from the Count de Chambord, refusing to give the Count any advice.

A cable from Berlin says the relations between Germany and France are increasing in coolness so much that a reserve is perceptible in all communications from the former Power. Prince Hohenlohe, German Ambassador at Paris, has been instructed to restrict his intimacy with MacMahon and hold aloof from clerical cliques.

The German Government, despite the pacific assurances of Decazes. mistrusts the clerical monarchy tendency of De Broglie's Cabinet. Although no signs of a serious storm are yet apparent, the French Minister ought to pay close attention to Germany's diffident reserve, and accept it as a warning.

Reported Plot to Blow Out the Suca Canal.

NEW YORK, June 22. A cable from Cairo says there is considerable excitement, and the Egyptian Government is seriously alarmed, over the discovery of a conspiracy to destroy the passage of the Suez Canal by blowing in the bank with nitro glycerine at a point between Ismaila and Port Said. Most stringent measures of precaution have been adopted to foil the conspirators. The Khedive has appointed a commission for the canal, with General

Tooops will patrol the banks and every possible effort made to prevent the carrying out of the plot. The English Government is also alarmed, and has requested the Khedive to watch the canal with renewed vigilance. It is probable the English Government will be called upon to dispatch troops for the protection of the canal. Thus England wil have a pretext for occupying Egypt

A Devilish Plot Unearthed.

MONTREAL, June 22. A horrible plot has been revealed Several reckless ship laborers, mad dened with drink, yesterday went to a number of the powder dealers, and endeavored to purchase several cases of dynamite, offering to pay cash. The dealers refused to sell, unless they brought orders from responsible parties. It is discovered to-day that there was a design to blow up the steamships, whose agents had refused to pay the wages demanded.

Committed for Larceny. Thomas Weeks had a preliminary examination before Justice Gardner, yesterday, on the charge of stealing a silver watch and a pistol from J. G. Wagner, Esq., of Masonboro Township, and Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, a few days ago, an account of which appeared in the STAR at the time. The evidence was conclusive as to the guilt of the prisoner, he having sold the watch to one colored man here in the city, and placed the pistol in the hands graph, was educated at Randolph of another colored man to sell for him. The Macon College, and Mr. Morse was latter, whose name is James ----, sold the weapon to a Mr. Howard, stating that he paid ten dollars for it some months ago. He acknowledged before the Court, however, that this was a false representation, as the pistol was given to him by Weeks to sell. The defendant was ordered to give a justified bond in the sum of $500 for his appearance at the next Criminal Court, in default of which he was committed to jail. Weeks is a brick mason by trade and could make an honest living if he were so inclined. He exinced during the examinatiod the most supreme indifference as to his fate, and went out of the magistrate's office

The Giganticus Irishicum.

Under this head the Transcript, of Peoria, Ill., gives some incidents connected with the late visit of the Western excursionists to this city, which we have copied below. There are some errors in the article which will be found corrected in brackets at the points where they occur:

"Give a dozen gentlemen, a thousand miles away from home, all intent on having a good time, the number of jokes and good things which will be perpetrated is legion, and too good to be lost, which fact leads us to tell a story which is not a story, but a literal truth. At one of the stopping places of the late Southern excursion, among the most hospitable entertainers of the party was a gentleman whom we will call Judge Wright. The Judge is a man of wealth, This means Kidder and possesses among other evidences thereof a beautiful residence, surrounded by a garden blooming with flowers. He also possesses a noble kitchen garden. [This is all Wright.] Moreover, he has a hobby for horticulture and floriculture, and takes great delight in exhibiting his flowers and plants to any visitors who may be able to appreciate their beauty and usefulness. [This is Kidder again.] Among the Peorians in the party was another judge [Cochran], whom we will not name, but whose fondness for and acquaintance with the flowers of the field and vegetables of the garden are well known. What more natural than that the two judges, with tastes so similar, should make each other's acquaintance, or that the home judge should take his visiting brother to see his garden and its beauties? Of course there were many plants and flowers which were new to our Peoria friend, and his newly made acquaintance was very kind in naming and describing them. As the pair had nearly completed the circuit of the garden, the attention of Peoria's judge was attracted to a plant just emerging from the ground. Its form was strange to him. He could not recollect that he had ever seen anything like it before, and his interest in the new species was greatly excited. He plucked a leaf and twisted it in his fingers, and put it to his nose and surveyed it care. fully with his eyes, but was unable to determine its local habitation or assign it a name. 'Judge,' he finally said to his host, 'pray tell me, what is this new plant of which I do not remember to have ever before seen a specimen?' The other judge looked at him with a curious expression of doubt and astonishment, as if he were in some way being made the victim of a practical joke; but, seeing no signs of levity upon his companion's face, he slowly re-plied, 'It is the potato, sir.' 'The Carolina potato?' queried our Peoria friend. 'No replied the other judge, 'the Irish potato of common life.' How the story leaked out, and how, until the next joke, the Peoria judge was frequently, inquired of as to his knowledge of the Giganticus Irishicum, the Accordingly he ordered the porter to knock the bung out for that purpose. The porter (possessing no little mother wit) replied "Knock de bung out and he'll buss;" to which the clerk rejoined, "Well, let it burst." The bung was knocked out, and the result proved the correctness of the darkey's theory. The removal of the stopper was the signal for the bursting forth from the vacuity of a shower of molasses, with which the good natured clerk was sprinkled from head to foot, rendering it necessary for him to seek his quiet abode and effect a change of clothing, profoundly impressed with the idea that "sweet are the uses of adversity," especially when they come in the shape of a shower of molasses.
