The Speakership-The South. [Special Dispatch to the Gazette.] WASHINGTON, July 31.

The question of the speakership is beginning to develop new and very important combinations. It has leaked out, for instance, that the Democrats of the South took advantage of the recent postal convention at Old Point Comfort to send up as delegates men who were prominent in Southern politics for the purpose of quietly talking over the plan of securing the Speakership for the South. A great number of very prominent men were thus brought together, and when the routine postal business was concluded they discussed the Speakership and the general interests of the party. With very few exceptions all the Southern States were represented. So far as can be learned of the secret caucus it appears that the delegates representing Southern interests determined if possible to throw a Southern man into the Speaker's chair. The two they now have in mind are John Goode, of Virginia, and A. M. Scales, of North Carolina.

Marshal Bob Douglas. [Special Dispatch to the Gazette.] WASHINGTON, July 31.

While Marshal Bob Douglas retained here to answer charges of the Department of Justice, the duties of the Marshal's office are entirely neglected in North Carolina, and from all appearances the illicit distilleries are holding high carnival. Douglas was recently requested to dismiss all the deputies he had in his employ, preparatory to filling their places with better men. This he did. His deputies were given their discharges on July 1, and he has been patiently waiting since then to know whether the government meant to retain him before making any new appointments, and expecting each day to be informed one way or the other. He has been given to understand that the office must henceforth be kept out of politics and run on strictly business principles, and he has signified his willingness to obey. None of the charges against him have been sustained; on the contrary, they have been successfully refuted and now comes the strongest sort of evidence that the interests of the government are actually suffering by his being kept from his post. To-morrow a written statement will be furnished the Secretary of the Treasury, showing how the illicit distillers are taking advantage of the demoralized condition of the office to ply their trade. It is in evidence among other things that they have boldy invaded campmeetings to sell their whiskey.

"Let Us Have Peace."

WASHINGTON, July 29. A delegation of citizens from the Edgefield and Ellenton Districts of South Carolina, composed of Republicans, both white and black, and of Democrats, has recently called upon the President. A Split Among the Bonapartists. London, July 31.

The Reuter dispatch from Paris stating that L' Ordre, the official journal of the Bonapartists, publishes a letter signed by M. Rouher and others repudiating M. de Cassagnac's militant policy, and proclaiming their adherence to President MacMahon, is erroneous. M. de Cassagnac is the leader of the moderate Bonapartists. The Rouher party demand impossible concessions from the Cabinet. M. de Cassagnac's paper is at war with the Gaulois and Ordre. The latter is M. Rouher's organ.

Arrested on Suspicion.

Henry Wilkes, colored, who has already had a slight acquaintance in police circles, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of vagrancy and acting in a very suspicious manner. Officers Davis, white and colored, had their eyes upon him, as he was lounging about the market, and he seems to have become aware of the fact, as he suddenly disappeared. The officers gave chase and got on his track, but Wilkes, who proved himself to be an expert in dodging, darted in and out of the various alleys between Market and Dock and Front and Water streets, until they finally came upon him snugly ensconsed in a niche in the one farthest removed from the starting point. He was thereupon seized and carried to the guard house.
