WILMINGTON, N. C.:

THURSDAY September 6, 1877 EVENING EDITION.

DOUGLAS, THE MARSHAL. Our contemporary, the Charlotte Observer, is doing real service in devoting so much space to the career of Robert M. Douglas, United States Marshal for the Western District of North Carolina. Its issue of Sept. 1 contains a long and carefully prepared statement, dated Asheville, August 27th, sustained by certificates, of the utter and hopeless inefficiency of the son of the illustrious Douglas. We cannot doubt that this incompetent official would have long ago suffered decapitation if he had been the sor of some obscure man. Every Amer ican citizen, and specially, every United States official, should be made to stand upon his own individual merits, and not to be tolerated when found incapable or corrupt because his father was great and had rendered the State some service. The evidence as to Douglas's inefficiency is too voluminous for our columns, as we prefer always to se cure in each issue our usual variety, unless the occasion for a change is local or imperative. The Observer remarks editorially:

"The facts set forth bear the seal of au-thenticity, and clinch the charges which have been frequently made of gross frauds and mismanagement in the affairs of this district. The proofs are convincing, and leave no room to doubt that Marshal Douglas, if not corrupt, is thoroughly incompetent to operate the important office which he holds. The writer of this communication has had access, as is evident, to all the papers bearing upon the case, and the accuracy of the statements made, fortified as they are by affidavits, cannot be successfully questioned.'

The evidence offered is identical with that which has been in the hands of the present Administration for some time. It appears to be sufficiently ample to have required Mr. Hayes, long ago, to summarily dismiss Marshal Douglas. But this he has not done. More than a year ago the Grant Administration was -apprised of his short-comings. No defence was made by the Republican press, so clear and flagrant "were the oppressions, misconduct and frauds."

The correspondent of the Observer

"The mass of testimony, consisting of affidavits taken in the locality, and of extracts from the records of the courts of the district, reported by Special Agent Hester, are said to disclose frauds upon the Trea- has been forgiven." sury which will probably aggregate more than $100,000. These frauds were perpetrated, not only by deputy marshals, but are traced into the Marshal's office. Besides these frauds, the grossest misconduct of deputies is alleged."

The main points established by evidence in the hands of the Department of Justice, appear to be these:

1. That the deputy marshals and drunken U. S. Commissioners hold fictitious courts, arrest or pretend to arrest fictitious persons, and summon imaginary witnesses, and in fact make up cases on paper, make out were made that were afterwards ignored by the grand jury. Several thousand persons were bound over against whom no true bills have been

3. That a fellow operating under two names, and acting both as deputy marshal and secret service agent, charged 5,244 miles in executing one subpæna. He was also paid for the same service as secret service agent. The Asheville correspondent says:

"This same man occupied a desk in the narshal's office at Greensboro, and was snown there as Anchisi, and yet was permitted to prove an account under another name which was included by the marshal in his account current for the term of the court. This same man was permitted to go from court to court which followed each other in close succession twice a year, and prove witness attendance and mileage from New York to Greensboro and back to New York, and then from New York to Statesville and back to New York, and from New Yerk to Asheville and return. Altogether he appears to have received pay from the marshal of the western district of North Carolina for attendance at fifteen lifferent terms of the court for one hundred and four days, and ten thousand five undred and seventy two miles travel."

All this is a matter of evidence. and the Attorney General is in possession of the same.

4. That a Deputy Marshal, one F C. Clark, swore to a false account before the U. S. Commissioner at Greensboro, in that he charged for false mileage, for false; arrests that were never made, and for attendance upon the U. S. Commissioner's Court at Greensboro in five cases, and at Salem before the U. S. Commissioner's Court, at the same time and on the same days. .

"Thus, in his ubiquitous character, he arrested eight persons, and makes up five hundred and sixty-five miles in four days, and attends court before one commissioner and arrests five others on the same day, and tries them before another commission er, at another town thirty or forty miles distant, and makes up seven hundred and twenty-eight miles, and then makes out a bill against the Government for $387.64, and swears that it is correct and true; that the miles charged were actually traveled, and all the services mentioned were ren-

we conclude when we are assured that all this is sustained by the most ample evidence, which for months ney General of the United States? Must we conclude that it is the purpose of the Administration in the face of established corruption and repeated delinquencies, to shield the guilty ones? Can it be possible that a Marshal shall be retained when it is patent to a whole State that he is absolutely and unqualifiedly incompetent and grossly negligent, if not particeps criminis? Where is the civil service order? Where is the reform promised in such well-sounding words that electrified the whole country? Is the promised reform to end in nothing but empty and idle words? Mr. Hayes has done well in many things. But he will do himself great discredit, and visit a heavy affliction upon the people of North Carolina, if he retains in office men of questionable characters and of manifest incompetency. Let Marshal Douglas be invited to retire. No man has a right to rest his case upon the record of his father, but upon his own personal merits. No official has any right to seek safety by "being propped by ancestry," and being "allied to eminent assistants." He should be a man every inch of him, and,

"Spider like, Out of his self drawing web he should give That by force of his own merit he makes his way.' Partisanship is almost certain to degenerate into rancor, and sectionalism is the hot-bed of injustice, oppression and vulgar abuse. The New York Times, the ablest of Republican papers, is one of the most vicious. The chief element in its nature is bitterness, as the main feature of its character is batred of the South. It cannot do justice to any man born in the South, and when "God's hand touches" a poor child of Adam, and he dies, even then with a hyena-like proclivity it hunts him in the grave. If you doubt the correctness of this charge, read the following nauseating

"Raphael Semmes is dead at the age of 68. Had he followed the trade of piracy against a less generous people he would have died twelve years ago. The foreign power which gave him the means to sink, burn and destroy the merchant vessels of the United States has paid for its disregard of the law of nations; the domestic rebellion which furnished him an excuse for taking up the trade of murder and robbery

We invite the attention of our readers to a prospectus of a new monthly magazine, to be published in Wilmington, to be entitled "The South Atlantic," and to be edited by Mrs. Cicero W. Harris. The price will be $3 a year. Mrs. Harris has much-literary enthusiasm, and is well known in the State by her contributions to Our Living and Our Dead. She has decided intellectual cleverness, and will enter upon her new enterprise with uncommon zeal and spirit. We certainly wish her the most unbounded success. We hope the reading people of the State, and of the South generally, will give this literary adventure a prompt and generous support. We believe the whole field, in the South, is now unoccupied, and we can not see why one well conducted literary periodical can not be well sustained.

We are glad to learn that the first number will present a strong array of writers. It will contain the opening chapters of a serial story by John Esten Cooke, author of "Surry of Eagle's Nest;" an original poem by Paul Hayne; a translation from the German by M. V. Lauier, Esq., in verse; a biographical sketch of Raphael Semmes, by his friend and comrade, Capt. Jno. N. Maffitt, and a sketch of the University by K. P. Battle, Esq., the President. There will be other contributions from practiced pens.

We are pleased to learn that Dr. G. W. Bagby, Wm. Hand Browne, Jas. Barron Hope, Prof. Hassell, W. C. Kerr, State Geologist, Paul II. Hayne, John H. Boner, Dr. Selden, Norfolk, Judge Cantwell, Col. Jas. G. Burr, and others, have pledged themselves to furnish the South Atlantic with papers from time to time,

THE PERIODICALS. The London Quarterly for July contains i very interesting table of contents. We have not found time to read all the articles, but can commend as exceedingly enoyable and edifying the following papers 'The First Lord Abinger and the Bar," a somewhat depreciating notice of the most successful of all English advocates, better known as Sir James Scarlett. The article is nevertheless full of interest, and abounds in reminiscences of distinguished lawyers. "Recent Discoveries in Art and Archaeology at Rome;" "Oxford Gossip in the Seventeenth Century," a paper of remarkable inter est, based upon the letters of the celebrated Dean Prideaux, who is exhibited in a not very enviable light; "The Science of Electricity as applied in Peace and War," and "The Ridsdale Judgment and the Priest in Absolution," a vigorous and formidable attack upon the Ritualists of England. Price 24. Leonard Scott Publishing Company,

October, we have not had time to read through. It is a periodical of decided ability and has a unique place among the abler and more thoughtful publications. We give the following resume of the good things in store for him who will read: Professor Sheldon Amos, Professor of Jurisprudence and International Law in the University of London, contributes "Modern Armies and Modes of Warfare;" Mr. Wm. M. Grosvenor contributes "The Communist and the Railway," showing the true interest of the workingmen; Mr. Simon Sterne contributes the "Administration of American Cities," advocating reforms of the utmost importance to property holders; Alexander II. Stephens contributes "The Letters of Junius," repudiating every claim to their authorship. "The President's Southern Policy" is the title of a contribution which clearly and ably defines and defends it. This article tends toward peace and quiet, and the permanent stability of business. Dr. Francis Wharton contributes "Judicial Partisanship: Queen Caroline's Case," showing that, like the Colorado beetle and potato bug, the mistake of depending on the impartiality of Judges, in extreme partisan cases, is not exclusively American. The recently published memoirs of De Quincey, now attracting general attention, are reviewed by John H. Ingram, of London. In the department of "Contemporary Literature" will be found notices of recent American books written by competent critics on this side of the water, and of English, German and Italian books written by like competent critics residing in London, Berlin and Florence respectively. In the Art Department we find Hamerton's eleventh letter. The notes on current

The railway trunk lines also report that they have forwarded more goods this week than is usually the case thus early in the season. A noteworthy feature of the dry goods business will be three important auction sales next week of French and Italian silks, velvets and other costly foreign importations. As for the export trade, all things considered, it could not well be more satisfactory."

CURRENT COMMENT.

- Don Piatt thinks one great difference between capital and labor is this: The government can compel the poor man to go to battle and sacrifice his life, but does not touch the rich man's hoard without usurious compensation. During the war between the States, it was frequently said that a father would send his sons to fight without grumbling, but the minute his "niggers" were required to work on fortifications he felt that this was a hollow and dying world. Augusta Chronicle, Dem.

-The effects of President Haves' visit to Vermont are shown by the unmistakable change of Republican sentiment in his favor. The Congressmen are, one after another, coming around to the support of his course, and their conversion is a pretty sure indication of a similar change of hearts in their constituents. Thus, Congressman Hendee says to a correspondent of the Globe: "It is understood through Vermont that I support President Hayes-civil service reform, Southern policy and all. When it was first broached it looked like a bitter pill, but after I had thought the matter over and examined the reasons given by the President, I became fully convinced he was right and ought to be sustained."- Baltimore American, Rep.

Russian Changes of Position-Result of the Turkish Victory at Karassan The Autumnal Rains Net in-Defeat of the Turks Absolutely Necessary to the Russians-Relative Posttions of the Opposing Armies-The Pope's Health Improving-Russiau Batteries at Schipka Pass Silenced.

&c., &c. London, Sept. 6. The Times' Vienna dispatch says, the Russians have abandoned the upper Lom line, and have withdrawn their right wing on that side, which was at Popskoi, to a line where they can keep in contact with the forces guarding the road from Osman

Bazar. Mehemet Ali has gained an undoubted strategical success in his victory at Karassan. All depends on how he will use it. The Daily News correspondent, telegraph ing from Gorgova, Sept. 1st, shows that the Turks, as the result of the victory at Karassan, have occupied a large mountain forming the key of the Rasgrad position, and commanding almost equally the Lom and the Kare Lom, and the Russian positions at Obaka and Gagova.

. The correspondent says, acting solely on the derensive, the Czarcwitch will have little difficulty in keeping his present line intact, with the possible exception of the loss of the Gagova position. On the other hand the Turks are much too strong to lie inactive in the face of an inferior Russian force, and the chances are great that the valley of Kara Lom will soon be the theatre of a decisive battle of large proportions. A subsequent telegram shows that the Russians have evacuated Gagova and retired to Polomarka. The Times' Bucharest correspondent says the Turks and Egyptians pursued them thither.

The Times' Bucharest dispatch, September 5, says "the autumnal rains have begun; it has been raining here continually since last night.'

The Times' leader urges very strongly that England should offer mediation with the concurrence of the other neutral powers. The offers of mediation could be based on the recommendation made by the Constan tinople conference.

In the same connection the Daily News Bucharest correspondent says "peace, is impossible until the Turks are completely crushed. The war has become a dynastic one for the Romanoffs, as much as the Franco-Prussian war was for the Napoteons. If the Czar entered Moscow after concluding an unsatisfactory peace, it would have to be at the point of the bayonet. This should be as well known abroad as it is in Russia. LONDON, Sept. 6.

The Russian success at Lovatz places Osman Pasha in the awkward position of having a hostile force on both of his flanks. An attempted withdrawal might result in the destruction of his army, unless the Russians are compelled to weaken their forces on that side, in order to meet Mehemit Ali's advance from Rasgrad. The latter seems to place the Czarwitch's army in a position very similar to Osman Pasha's.

If the Turkish accounts may be trusted and they seem to be confirmed in these par ticulars by Russian admissions, a Turkish force has crossed the Lom and reached the neighborhood of Obirterni, while another force has crossed Kara Lom to Polomarka. These corps are understood to be operating against Bicla, but they jeopardize the whole Russian campaign east of Yantra, as well as the communications with Tirnova. A Times special from Rome says the health of the Pope is improving.

Washington, September 1. A Constantinople dispatch, not through regular channels, says the Russian batteries at Schipka Pass have been silenced, a Turkish shell having exploded the Russian powder magazine.
