Mr. President: I am happy to greet you on behalf of the citizens. I throw open the gates of the city to you; here is the key; I hope you will re-

After this ceremony of presenting him with the freedom of the city, the President was conducted to the carriage provided for him, which was drawn by four magnificently caparisoned horses.

The line of march was then taken up with mounted police in front, followed by General Cheatham and aids, Gov. Porter handed each a beautiful boquet, the President's bearing the inscription, "Ohio's greeting to Ohio's Statesman and Wade Hampton-Ohio's greeting to South Carolina's Statesman." The procession halted in front of the Capitol, which was surrounded by a vast throng of people, and Gov. Porter from the steps of the Statehouse delivered the opening address.

assembled at Mechanics' Hall at 11 o'clock and organized by selecting Senator Hoar as permanent President. After the appointment of committees, Mr. Hoar delivered an elaborate address, in the course of which he reviewed the Electoral Commission, which he said must be judged by history; but for that Commission the country would have suffered a terrible convulsion. He touched upon the financial question and rejoiced that so large a majority of

He endorsed the Sherman resumption law, which he declared would bring about specie payments in 1879 if no adverse legislation should be effected by Congress. In the meanwhile, with a prosperous West and a prosperous South, he believed there would be an end to the labor troubles in America. He also defended the President's policy. Resolutions endorsing the President's policy were o'clock, a colored man by the name of Tom Stanford, who had been drinking to success, was acting very disorderly on the street on Second, between Mulberry and Walnut streets, and had attracted a large crowd of idlers to that vicinity. Officer B. R. King, who happened to pass that way, spoke to Stanford and tried to prevail upon him to go into his house, which was close at hand, and behave himself, upon which he started off, but upon reaching his gate he took out a large knife and commenced whetting it on the fence, at the same time using some threatening language, and then went down into his lot, which is located in the declivity at that point, acting in such a manner as to trighten his wife badly, and finally picked up a piece of board, which he had broken off the fence, and chased her until she found refuge in a room in a neighbor's house, and had locked herself in. He then came out on the street again, when Officer King once more spoke to him, telling him he must stop creating such an excitement on the street, when he retorted with the words that if any one said he was creating an excitement, or was drunk, he was a d-d liar, upon which the officer seized him by the collar and started for the guard house with him. Stanford resisted, and the officer was compelled to call for help, and it was found necessary to carry him through the streets hog fashion, the prisoner fighting, kicking, yelling and cursing all the way to the guard house, upon arriving at which it was with the greatest difficulty that he could be forced into a cell. Officer King displayed great forbearance as well as firmness in his conduct towards the prisoner, who, before he reached the City Hall, had managed to tear his clothing almost to shreds by his struggles to free him-

Our Public Schools.

The School Boards of the 1st and 2nd Districts, comprising the township of Wilmington, met at the rooms of the County Commissioners, yesterday afternoon, and made the necessary arrangements for tak ing the school census of Wilmington.

Mr. Wm. M. Hayes was appointed to take the census for the First District and Mr. Samuel N. Cannon for the Second District.

The census will comprise all children be ween the ages of six and twenty-one

It is suggested to parents, in order to fa cilitate the labors of the consus takers that children between the ages referred to be prepared by them, so that when Messrs. Cannon and Hayes call upon our citizens the lists may be ready for them.

The Boards adjourned to meet again or Monday afternoon next, when the teachers for the ensuing year will be appointed.

Race Between Shad Skiffs.

We learn that quite an interesting and exciting race is expected to take place on the river on Saturday afternoon next between three shad skiffs, with centre-boards owned by parties connected with the cotton mills in this city. The race, which is to commence at half past 4 o'clock, will be from the cotton mills wharf to the "Dram Tree" and return, and a silk flag, worth eight dollars, is to be the prize presented to the winning boat. The names of the rival skiffs are as follows:
