It is confidently asserted in Washington that Gen. John M. Harlan, of Kentucky, will be appointed to the vacant Judgeship on the Supreme Court Bench. It is asserted that the President has resolved upon this appointment, and it is believed no change will be made.

Organization of the House-The Contest for the Speakership and other Offices-What the President and Secretary Sherman Think of the Result

[Special Dispatch to Baltimore Sun.] ORGANIZATION OF THE HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. The best opinion here in regard to the organization of the House of Representatives settles down to the conviction that the following gentlemen will be chosen for the positions named: Randall for Speaker, Caldwell for Clerk, Thompson for Sergeant-at-arms, and Steuart for Postmaster. For Doorkeeper of the House there are at least half a dozen candidates, and all of them claim to have large support. It is most probable that the greatest struggle of the caucus will be over the Doorkeeper, and a good many ballots be taken before a majority is secured for any one candidate. If two or three of the leading candidates for Doorkeeper should combine the contest will, however, be speedily settled.

The opposition to Mr. Randall is still fierce and outspoken, although it has evidently lost heart. Mr. S. S. Cox, who had established headquarters for canvassing at one of the hotels, gave up his rooms to-day and now contents himself with doing what work he can at his private quarters. A Southern member, who is not favorable to Mr. Randall, said it would be a shame if something could not be done to beat him-not only on account of his course during the electoral count, but for his anti-free-trade doctrines.

THE OHIO ELECTION. The sweeping Democratic victory in Ohio was talked of very freely today in official circles. The President, who saw quite a number of Congressmen and conversed with them on the subject, said that he had been prepared for the result, and that it was therefore not so much of a disappointment to him. He said that no matter what happened or who opposed him he intended to carry out his civil service policy. Several of those to whom the President spoke were rather surprised at what he said, for they had been under the impression from his previous conversations that he anticipated a Republican success. But if the President was not surprised Secretary Sherman was. Upon reaching Harrisburg this morning, on his return from Ohio after voting yesterday, he read in the morning papers of the defeat of his party. He gave it up then, but up to that time he had not believed a Democratic triumph possible. He ascribes the result to the extraordinary apathy of the voters, and says there has been a falling off of 100,000 votes.

The coffin was covered by the national flag, crape and a profusion of choice floral decorations. Custer's hat and sword were also placed on it. General Custer's widow was also present at the services, attended by Major. General Schofield; also B. H. Custer, father of the hero of Little Big Horn.

Particulars of the Great New York Meeting. [Special to Charleston Jour, of Commerce.

NEW YORK, Oct 11. The Republican element, which in New York has for its headquarters. the Union League Club, and consists of Republicans who approve of the administration of President Hayes in its efforts to promote permanent union and harmony of the whole party, held a mass meeting last night at Cooper Institute. It was larger than any held during the Presidential campaign, and never exceeded, if equalled, in this city, for enthusiasm and general unanimity and feeling.

The lobbies outside, as well as the hall, were filled, many hundreds being unable to obtain admission, 1emaining outside to take up and recheer the cheers which greeted every speaker. All allusions to civil service reform, to the financial policy of the Government, and its action in reference to instructions, were loudly applauded. The platform was crowded with prominent Republicans. G. A. M. Curtis' appearance on the platform was greeted with prolonged applause, the entire audience rising and cheering. The meeting was called to order by Col. Steb-bens, who nominated Theodore W. Dwight as President of the meeting. Mr. Dwight made a lengthy speech, in which he said the great object of the meeting was to show sympathy with the administration in its measures of pacification and purification. The time was now auspicious when prosperity, so long absent, was about to visit the land, indications of which established at his new home will be an effiwery everywhere apparent. Gov. Hendricks' Speech in New York. Mayor Ely introduced Mr. Hendricks as Vice-President elect of the United States. Mr. Hendricks commenced by saying that he was more than pleased to return to his native country after his visit to Europe, and country after his visit to Europe, and time last year, and about the same number that the pleasure was increased by the cerdial greetings of his countrymen. time last year, and about the same number of day scholars. — Dr. M. J. DeRossett, of Wilmington, will move his family to cerdial greetings of his countrymen. During his sojourn abroad he found no place like the United States. Mr. Hendricks next gave a sketch of the various countries that he had visited. Alluding to England, he said that he found the people were absolutely loyal to the Constitution and their country. In France he was delighted under the wheels, which passed over him, with many circumstances, and he could not forget that it was the country that acted as a friend to his country in the hour of need. He believed that the majority of Frenchmen would stand by the republic. For himself, his whole heart was with Gambetta. Mr. Hendricks next said that he noticed that the people in Europe carried one burden which they ought not to do-he meant the immense standing armies and he would like to see the time when no standing army would be required in any country in the world. Mr. Hendricks concluded by declaring that all quarrels between nations should be settled by arbitration.

Liver Complaint and Dyspepeia are the causes of two-thirds of the cases of Consumption. Many persons complain of a dull pain in the side, constipation, coated tongue, pain in the shoulder blade, feelings of drowsiness and restlessness, the food lying heavily on the stomach, accompanied with acidity and beleting up of wind.

These symptoms usually criginate from a disordered condition of the stomach or a torpid liver.

Persons so affected, if they take one or two heavy colds, and if the cough in these cases be suddenly checked, will find the stomach and liver clogged, remaining torpid and inactive, and almost before they are aware the lungs are a mass of sores, and uncertad, the result of which is dealtr.
