WILMINGTON, N. C .: WEI-NESDAY MORNING, Oct. 24, 1877.

WHAT THE COUNTRY EXPECTS. The country expects the present Congress to carry on the work of retrenchment in earnest. The President has committed himself to such a policy, and the Democrats stand pledged before the country to cut down all useless expenses. An honest, economical administration of the Government is what the country needs and demands. Enough money has been literally stolen and wasted since 1865 to run the Government for the next five years. At least forty per cent of the money that has been drawn from the people in taxes has been misapplied, wasted, or stolen. So the country has had quite enough of peculation and extravagance and incapacity on the part of officials.

In the brief address made by Speaker Randall on taking the Chair, he said that "still greater reductions can be made without impairing the efficiency of the administration." He said farther, that]"to have an honest administration it should be frugal." That is the right tune to sing-honesty and frugality. An honest government always costs less than a dishonest one like Grant's, because the money is applied as designed. An extravagant government-one that wastes the peoples' money, is necessarily corrupt. For ten years or more the people have been preyed upon by an immense army of sharks and thieves. There was corruption in the White House, in all the Departments, in Congress, and all over the land. Frauds, bribery, corruption, thieving, debauchery, vice, crime-all these followed in the wake of a government that was administered without wisdom and honesty. The rules that apply to private conduct must apply to governments. The New York Journal of Commerce says:

"When our Government was spending the public money, Congressmen were accepting bribes with both hands, Cabinet officers were in collusion with lobbyists and thieves, and the civil service was a convicted sham and swindle. The improvement which has been made in official morals dates from the retrenchment in federal expenses. Cause and effect were never more plainly linked. That which civil service reform as a system never could have done, had it been undertaken in good faith, instead of being the sport of treachery, the simple means of cutting down the annual appropriations has tended to accomplish. Persevered in, this policy of reducing the outlays in all the departments will of itself heighten the integrity and efficiency of the public service, while a relapse into the old time extravagancies will surely revive the worst era of credit mobiliers, whiskey rings, Freedmen's banks. and frauds in the Indian and Pension Bureaus, and corrupt every branch of the government."

The popularity of Charles Dickens knows no abatement in England. Recently 42,000 copies of a new edition of his works, published by Chapman & Hall, of London, were subscribed for. It is a good sign of intellectual health when we see such large editions of Scott, Dickens, George Eliot and Macaulay selling.

A MOVE IN THE RIGHT DIREC-

Mobile has not been flourishing since the war. It has at last made a move in the right direction. A company has been organized and a cotton factory will be built. It is to have 1,344 spindles, requiring 800 bales of cotton. The truth is, Mobile ought to have a dozen or twenty factories now at work. The Mobile Register claims that the new factory will have an advantage of three cents a pound over the new England manufacturers, or $15 a bale, or $12,000 for the 800 bales-a sum equal to a good dividend. Georgia has set a good example, let the other States follow.

Columbus, Georgia, is entitled to the name of the Lowell of the South, which she has won by energy and enterprise. It is an interior town, has about fifteen thousand inhabitants, and is at the head of steambost navigation. When the war ended it was a desolate looking place, for the Northern vandals had been there burning and destroying, Not a factory was left; all were in ruins. But the business men went to work in earnest, and with well directed energies. They determined to rebuild the factories and to bring the mills to the cotton, instead of the old way of carrying the cotton to the mills. One company built two factories, the Phænix and the Eagle-one a woollen, and the other a cotton factory. These two factories alone employ seven hundred bands. They have since built another larger and finer factory. The company now manufactures forty-six different kinds of goods, from spool cotton to twelvequarter blankets. We copy from a letter in the Charleston News and Courier:

"Their sales during the last month averaged over $5,000 per day, filling orders from Virginia to Texas, and from Florida to Missouri. They have no agents, but everything is sold at the factory. Their ginghams, diapers, ticking. denims, jeans, cassimeres, &c., compare favorably with the best products from Eng-Their water power is immense, being the whole Chattahoochee River, which at this point at this time is seven hundred feet wide. The capital of the company is $1, 250,000. Their profits for 1876 were $126, 875 60. The stock on hand on 1st January last, (time of last report,) consisting of cotton, wool, manufactured goods, dye stuffs, chemicals, &c., amounted to $406,461 28; cash and sight exchange $214,232 86; reserve fund $210,630 53. There is a very commodious savings bank connected with the establishment, the books of which show amount due depositors (chiefly employees) $429,417 78. Across the street near by is well stocked retail store, under the management of some of the leading men of the factory. The president of the company is Mr. N. J. Bussy. Mr. W. H. Young one of the directors, seems to be the chief directing head of this vast and very successful enterprise."

There are many other factories at Columbus, all of which are flourishing. There is one factory that manufactures cotton bagging out of jute that is said to be very superior. There are flour mills, an iron foundry, &c. Altogether it is a wide awake place, and other towns with equal facilities might learn a lesson from the example of Columbus that would be their making. Energy, drive, hope, capacity united with capital will make any community thrive.

Wilmington has great natural advantages. Something should be done to give it a new impetus on the highway of prosperity. There are scores of men here to-day who are either not employed at all, or only a part of their time. The business men of a town have it in their power generally to make it live and active and growing and prosperous, or to let it "go slow" until the houses are deserted and the grass grows in its streets. We place the example of Columbus before our people. Go thou and do likewise.

It is a noticeable fact that the President's first message is dated Washington, D. C., and begins "Fellow Citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives." The old way has been to date "Executive Mansion," and to address "To the Senate and House of Representatives." We presume the change is not accidental, but is an endeavor to get nearer to true republican simplicity. That is certainly a better way than the manon-horse back style that has lately

It is clearly the duty of Congress provide at once for the payment of the present army. Of this there can be no question. It is clearly its duty to see to it that there is no increase. After awhile, it will be its duty to see that it is reduced to not more than 12,000, or 15,000 at greatest. lamed | smed

Wendell Phillips says that Grant was drunk when he had his first interview with Charles Sumner in relation to the San Domingo treaty. Very likely! Hence his "cross-eyed" statement. He "saw double" then, and he now "doubles" around the corner of "The South has had the Speakership of the House of Representatives for forty-six years, in the forty-four Congresses that have been held. The incumbents have been Macon, of South Carolina; Clay, of Kentucky: Cheeve, of South Carolina; Barbour, of Virginia; Stephenson, of Virginia; Bell, of Tennessee; Polk, of Tennessee; Hunter, of Virginia; White, of Kentucky; Jones, of Virginia; Boyd, of Kentucky; Cobb, of Georgia; and Orr, of South Carolina, Knowille (Tenn.) The great rage among the Englishspeaking peoples is who shall have an obelisk. There is nothing like fashion. THE MAGAZINES.

Wide Awake, for November, like the pre ceding numbers, is replete with pleasing matter and pictures for the "young people." It is well edited by Ella Farman, and published by D. Lothrop & Co., Boston. It is the best two dollar-a-year children's magazine in the country.

Potter's American Monthly is steadily improving. The number for November, we rather think, is the best we have ever seen It is a good, popular magazine, published in Philadelphia at $3 a year.

We never take Blackwood in hand without a feeling of tenderness. The days when Christopher North and other choice spirits, enriched its pages with their poetry and wit and elequence and satire and fun come up before us, and we think of those "vanished hands" and those rich "voices" that are forever "still." But Blackwood, though old in years, is still fresh and virile. Excellent stories, choice sketches of travel, good criticism, pleasant essays and some genuine poetry still make its pages bright and attractive. The October number is good. Besides its serial stories it has excellent articles entitled "The Irony of Life" and "The Helena of Euripides." The political papers on "American Diplomacy in the East," "The Khedive's Egypt," "The New Army Warrant," and "The Storm in the East" will be read with interest by many readers. There is another delightful instalment of "Translations from Heine," by that superior author, Theodore Martin. Price $4 a year. Address Leonard Scott Publishing Co., New York.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- Those who decline to sustain the President and who censure him, will only inspire that admiration for him and that just appreciation of his devotion to the Constitution and the conciliation and harmony of this country that will raise up for him friends in every part of the land. With such a policy as his, names are nothing. None but people recreant to their own rights and welfare could refuse to support it .- Richmond Dispatch, Dem.

- Mississippi needs (1) peace, (2) cheap government, (3) low taxes. These are the best immigration agents on earth.-Holly Springs Reporter. Correct. Add to these the fullest toleration of opinion on all questions; no denunciation and proscription of a man because he does not agree with you in politics, in religion or in anything else about which honest men may differ. Immigrants fit for good citizens expect to bring their own opinions with them, and will not run n the narrow grooves prescribed by others. Nor will they seek locations cursed with presses and politicians who heap opprobrious epithets on all who believe that freemen have a right to act as freemen, without risk of social proscription.—Memphis Appeal, Dem.

The Power of Ultra Bouthern Journals for Evil,

1New Orleans Times, Democratic.1 The Boston Journal enters a manly protest against that class of newspapers in the North which are constantly publishing extracts taken from Southern journals for the purpose of proving that the people of that section are hostile to the Union, and against that class of journals in the South which represent that the people of the North are revengeful and propose to punish the South. In both sections of the country there are people who sympathize with such journals, but they are in an extremely small minority. The papers in question are careful to publish every word that can be tortured into a sentiment of hostility to the other section, and pass over columns of matter in which there are expressions of kindliness and good will.

But the object of the Journal is a good one. It proposes to show the injustice of one-sided journalism. It is unfair for any newspaper, North or South, to give as the sentiment of a section or country the opinions of a few isolated individuals. To the South, so much in need of both eapital and labor, this class of newspa-pers are doing immense material harm, as well as keeping alive a mis-erable and contemptible sectional feeling. The mass of the people are antagonism as unfriendly to either section of the country and unfriendly to the Union. We can love one particular section of the Union without hating the other, and we can be just to one without being unfair to the

OUR STATE CONTEMPORAULES.

Whatever Radicals may say of the President, we of the Southfare indebted to him for the restoration of local self-government in South Carolina and Louisiana. And it will be long before the men who toted for Hampton and Nicholls forget the slough of despond from which his hands litted them. Some may say it was his duty to have done so. Admitted. It was equally the duty of the preceding administration. The same constitution and laws were then prevailing, and yet in the sweet face of Heaver, both were alike despised and ignored .- Weldon News.

Ever since the war of the States the batle cry of the Democratic party has been Retrenchment and Reform, coupled with strict honesty in our officials. War unrelenting has been waged against our political opponents, not so much on account of their arraying race against race—and this was bad enough-but on account of the reckless extravagance of the government and the questionable honesty of their officials. Honesty, pure and undefiled, was our watchword and countersign, and with this promised to the people, we buckled on our armour and went out to do battle. Victory perched upon our banner. How have we fulfilled our trust?—Newbernian.
