

Ismail Pasha will be able to make good his retreat in Asia Minor. The last accounts represent his retreat and junction with Muktar Pasha as being seriously threatened.

The Weldon Fair, if we may judge from the first day, is a successful ex hibition, surpassing that of former years. We are glad that this Fair, which is held in a very fertile and fairly prosperous section of North Carolina, is able to make a good exhibit in spite of the depressed times. When that "good time" we have all been looking for through so many weary years does "come" sure enough, then the Weldon Fair will be hard to eclipse.

The lollowing is taken from the Marietta (Ohio) Times, and pays a handsome tribute to one of the most zealous and eloquent of our representatives in Congress. North Carolinians are proud of Major Yeates' growing reputation.

HON. JESSE J. YEATES .- In the excitement of the election last week we neg-lected to return the thanks of the Democracy of Washington county to Hon. Jesse J. Yeates, of North Carolina, for the valuable services he rendered in closing the campaign at Scottown and Matamoras. The meetings he held at these places on Friday and Saturday preceding the election were well attended, and Mr. Yeates made very effective and able speeches at both places. He is a speaker who pleases our people well. His speeches were delivered in an earnest manner, coming from the heart as well as the brain—full of pathos, argu-ment and humor. If Mr. Yeates in the future should be sent to Ohio we wish that he be sent to Washington county.

Washington News. Special Dispatch to the Baltimore Sun.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22. The President is becoming some what restless over the non-action of the Senate on his nominations, although he has no reason to anticipate that there will ultimately be any serious objections to them. Although the nominations were all referred to that they were sent in, no meeting of any of the committees has yet been called to consider them. The cause of the delay has been gently hinted to the President. It is a part of the plan which has already been alluded to in these dispatches, as having for its object the healing of whatever | deaths and five new cases to-day. breaches may be threatened between the President and the leading members of his party. It is deemed advisable that action on the nominations had best be suspended until some under- yesterday. The weather is quite cool, of certain acts of the President that tice to the President. He is an original Republican, and has been tested for twenty years as a soldier and civilian, and has never wavered or been found wanting in his devotion to the great fundamental doctrines of the Repúblican party. He was elected as a Republican, and it is impossible for him, with the present organization of parties, even if he should desire, to be other than a Republican President; not in an offensive partisan sense, but in his devotion to the principles and desire for the perpetuity of the Republican party. Until t is demonstrated that he has not this devotion and this desire, the Republicans in Congress should not break with him on mere questions of policy. President Hayes has a most difficult role, and instead of receiving the unfriendly criticisms and attacks of his party friends he should have their support and be given their best and truest advice. The President's paramount duty is to the country, and if he were to place simple party success above public interest he would render himself hateful to every rightminded man and infamous in history.

WELDON, Oct. 23.

The gates of the Fair Grounds were thrown open to the public this morning, and the Eighth Annual Exhibition of the Roanoke & Tar River Agricultural Society was duly inaugurated.

There were in attendance an unusually large number of persons for the first day, and the grounds already present a scene of life and animation. In the leading departments there were, up to a late hour this evening, full four hundred entries. The representation is perhaps the largest and best ever seen at any exhibition of this Society.

Many of the articles on exhibition here were at the State Fair last week: prominently among them the fine specimens of mountain apples exhib-Appropriate committees on the day | ited by Captain Atkinson, of Buncombe.
