OUTLINES.

Morton's case not hopeful; he eats nothing. —— The Pennsylvania delegation selected Simon Cameron for the English Mission, but Hayes does not like it. —— The impression in Washington is that neither Spofford nor Eustis will be seated; it is believed a rehearing of the whole Louisiana story will be gone into. —— Sherman says that King will be appointed Collector of Customs at New Orleans. —— The Turks are vigorously bombarding Russian positions in Schipka Pass, and have silenced one battery. —— There is Turkish disagreement relative to an armistice. The Czar is resolved to continue the war until the condition of the Christians is finally improved. —— The strikes in England continue among the mills and collieries. —— Pennsylvania clerks in War Department will go home to vote. —— Hayes will send no nomination to Senate for the English mission until the November election is over. —— French situation unchanged. —— Mr. Tilden has returned from Europe. —— Prince Sergins, aid to the Czar, was killed in a reconnoisance. —— New York markets: Money 5 per cent.; gold quiet at 102¾; cotton quiet at 11 5-16@11 7-16 cents; flour without change, Southern $5 75@8 50; wheat unsettled and ½c lower; corn ½c lower; spirits turpentine easier at 33½@34 cents; rosin unsettled at $1 65@1 75.

The condition of Senator Morton is less favorable. He has eaten but little in a month, and to prevent starvation an infusion of nourishment into his system must be resorted to.

Whilst defeat and retreat are the order of the day for the Turks in Asia, they have opened their guns upon the Russian position in Schipka Pass, and have succeeded thus far in silencing one battery.

The strikes among the English employes in the Bolton mills continue. Five thousand colliers have quit work in Staffordshire, and two thousand more are to join them on Saturday. The cause is the reduction of wages. There is some prospect of the spinners' strike being arranged.

Old Simon Cameron is not Mr. Hayes's choice for the English mission. He may, however, secure it through the influence of the Pennsylvania Republican delegation, who have unanimously recommended him. There is not a corrupter man in a thousand miles of Washington, and he is a nice specimen—a beautiful representative American to send to the first Court in Europe, where gentlemen hold office, and honesty is at a premium. That will be civil service reform with an uncommon vengeance. Why, he is worse than Porker Schenck, and not to be compared with Pierrepont.

There is a bad condition of affairs in France. The Government organs swear the Marshal-President will not submit and the Cabinet will not resign. The Republican organs say even the resignation of the Cabinet will not be sufficient. There is fortunately a strong party of moderates —men untainted with Bourbonism—men of sense and prudence, who will resist as far as possible extreme measures, whilst believing and insisting that a Republic is necessary for the peace, and, possibly, the prosperity of France. The Bonapartists are irreconcilable, and will not agree to share power with other parties. There is no common ground upon which the Legitimists, Bonapartists and Clericalists can meet. M. Grevy may eventually become President, and then there will be peace. As to Marshal MacMahon, he has disappointed his country and the world.

What Gen. Joe. Johnston Says.

[Special to Charleston Jour. of Commerce.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.

Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, who is now stopping in this city, in reply to several inquiries, said that the people of the Southern States, so far as he [had] been able to judge from his travels among them, were perfectly satisfied with the President's policy; that they only demanded the indorsement of the spirit, as well as the letter of the constitution and laws.

He regards the commercial condition of the South as being better than it was before the war, and asserts that the Southern people are anxious for the immigration of capitalists and other well disposed people from the North, who will find there a fertile soil, genial climate, available streams of water for manufacturing purposes, and land and houses at prices as low, if not lower, than can be found in any other section of the country. The only Northern people who will find any hostility manifested towards them in the South, are those who are naturally busy-bodies and stirrers up of strife. All others are cordially welcomed.

The Way they all Do It—Joining the Strikers in England.

[By Cable to the Journal of Commerce.]

LONDON, Oct. 24.

The American Masons who sailed from New York to engage in a three years' contract, have arrived in this city. Upon learning the situation of affairs, ten of them immediately joined the strikers. They complain that they were informed by the agent in New York that the strike had ended.

Spirits Turpentine.

— Dr. Gid H. Macon, of Halifax, is dead.

— Craven sends six colored convicts to the big pen.

— The Presbyterian Synod is in session at Charlotte.

— Mrs. S. G. Gough, of Lumberton, died last Saturday.

— The Robesonian will put on a new suit after January 1.

— Two prisoners in Craven county jail attempted to burn out, but failed.

— Diphtheria is prevailing in a great many sections of the State, even as high up as Watauga county.

— Statesville Landmark: The crops in south Iredell have not been equaled for many years. The cotton crop is far ahead of the farmers' most sanguine expectations.

— Raleigh News: Rev. C. Durham, pastor of the Baptist Church at Durham, has recently held two very successful protracted meetings in Halifax county, one at Conoconarie Church and the other at Scotland Neck.

— Oxford Torchlight: An action has been instituted in the Superior Court of this county to oust B. H. Cozart from the office of Superior Court Clerk. The complaint charges Mr. Cozart with violating a statute in regard to keeping open his office.

— Robesonian: Dr. R. M. Norment, of this town, has a pet rattlesnake which is over five feet in length and has eleven rattles. —— The Cape Fear Baptist Association will meet with the church at Mount Eliam, in this county, next Thursday, and continue its sessions till Sunday.

— Biblical Recorder: Our annual Convention meets at Durham, twenty-five miles above Raleigh, on the North Carolina Railroad, on Wednesday, the 7th day of November, 1877, at 10 o'clock. Arrangements are being made for the usual reduction of fare over the various railroads. We hope to announce the same definitely next week.

— N. C. Presbyterian: We are gratified to learn that the number of students entered for this year is so encouraging, and surpassing the sanguine expectations of the friends of Davidson College. We understand there were as many the first week as during the whole of last session, and that an unusually large proportion of new students have matriculated.

— Hillsboro Recorder: By far the most striking feature of the Fair was the military. They appeared on the ground to the number of seventeen companies, sixteen of which were of the State Guards, the other being the Bingham cadets. They were all well uniformed and well drilled, and when massed within the area of the race track and handled as a regiment, presented a very imposing appearance. Considering that they had never been subjected to battalion drill before, they moved splendidly.

— Randolph Regulator: We are pained to learn that Mr. Clark Fuller, while on his way to the Raleigh Fair, met with the misfortune to get his leg broken. His mules took fright at the cars, and got the advantage of him, and broke his leg. He has gotten home we understand. —— Benj. Rush raised this year a stalk of corn fifteen feet high. He pulled it up and it had 365 spur roots. It bore no ear. On the same plantation there is a pumpkin vine with three prongs, one prong is fifty-one feet long, the other is forty-eight, and the other thirty-eight, and it has fifteen heavy pumpkins on it.

— Washington State: The owner of the celebrated stallion Roanoke, Mr. Jesse Scott, left here on Monday of last week with him for the State Fair, and entered him for the trotting race on Friday, which he won easily in 2.51½ over two competitors. —— A child of a Mr. Everson, about four years old, while on the road with its mother, and in the act of gathering some autumn leaves, was bitten on the ankle by a cotton mouth (rattlesnake), and at last accounts was in a very critical condition. —— We are informed by a friend from Blount's Creek, that a Miss Ruff, daughter of the widow Jewell, attempted suicide last week by taking chloroform, but was discovered in time to be saved.

— Charlotte Observer: The circus came near breaking up Judge Dick's Federal Court at Statesville, last Thursday. —— Prof. Owen Parker, the principal of the male school in Salisbury, died at the residence of J. M. Horah, Esq., in that town, last Sunday morning, of typhoid fever, after a protracted and painful illness. —— Snow fell at Henry's, the head of the Western North Carolina Railroad, on Monday. This is the first of the season. —— The blondes are very naughty; there is no doubt about that. They show more of the boards than they put down on the bills, and they say bad words at the wine supper afterpieces. But all this is "business," and the blondes will continue it as long as iniquity pays. So there is no use in abusing them. The way to break them up is to try to cure the disease which has seized upon the taste of the populace.

— Newbern Nut Shell: Mr. John Patterson received a dispatch yesterday, from Mr. I. E. West, at Yankton, D. T., stating that his brother Walter G. West, recently of this city, had been out hunting near Yankton and was dangerously shot. Mr. Patterson expects to receive a letter, giving full particulars, to-day, and we hope to lay the same before our readers. —— Mariners who navigate the sounds of North Carolina will be pleased to learn that long-needed and important new Light Houses are being or about to be erected at two of the most needed points in our inland waters, viz.: Roanoke Marshes and Brant Island Shoal. Government Light House vessels have been at work on the former sometime, and have it nearly completed. Work on the latter will probably be commenced this week, and with fair weather it is expected that it will be furnished in four or five days.

— Superintendent Mills, in his notes on the State Fair, published in the Oxford Orphan's Friend, says: "The agricultural products are magnificent. Corn, wheat, oats, beets, potatoes, and all crops and vegetables, surpass our expectations. But all are astonished beyond measure at the display of fruits from Buncombe and Yancey. Nothing like it was seen at the Centennial. No one ever imagined it before. One apple weighed thirty-two ounces, and apples as large as a baby's head were plentiful. Col. Polk has done a noble work and illustrated the value of his office. Many noble ladies were on exhibition." —— Then came Prof. Simonds, of Chapel Hill, on Insects. He told about the doodles and their downfalls, and the mosquitoes of forty varieties. He said the males live on flowers, while the females suck our blood. He told of some wrigglers which breathe through their tails.

— Greensboro Patriot: An explosion of a kerosene lamp Wednesday night, the 17th inst., occurred at the house of Mr. J. F. Holton, head miller at Oakdale flour mill, Jamestown, burning his daughter Annie, aged 11 years, so badly that she died after twenty-four hours of intense suffering. Mr. Holton, in his effort to extinguish the flames, or to get the clothing from his daughter, had his hands badly burned, and is disabled for the time. Miss Maggie Holton was burned on one hand and on the body, but not seriously. —— H. H. Tate has just gathered from a little less than three acres and a half of ground 300 bushels of corn and 800 pumpkins. He fed two mules, eight hogs and a horse two weeks from the corn field, what they ate not being counted in the 300 bushels. He cut also 230 bushels of wheat from an adjoining field, which weighed 65 pounds to the bushel, five pounds more than the standard weight. —— We regret to learn that G. M. Glass, residing just south of town, lost one of his children from diphtheria yesterday.

— Raleigh Observer: On Tuesday night the steam gin and eight bales of cotton, the property of Mr. W. H. Rowland, near Elevation, Johnston county, were destroyed by fire. The origin of the fire was accidental. —— Yesterday a young man, by the name of James Barrow, while at work at a cotton gin on the farm of Cornwall Ferrell, some twenty miles northeast of this city, had his hand so badly crushed that it is thought that amputation will be necessary. —— A loadstone, weighing 505 pounds, brought from Mitchell county by State Geologist Kerr, now ornaments the foot of the Briggs building. It has a powful magnetic power. —— Professor W. C. Kerr, State Geologist, has returned from a trip to the western part of the State, and brings many interesting things to add to the already attractive museum. Prominent among these is a lot of Asbestos, some of the pieces two feet and a half long, found on John's river, Caldwell county. Car loads of it are being daily shipped to New York. There is also to be seen a lot of incombustible paper made of this material. The Professor has the largest crystal of feldspar in the world, which he took from a mica mine on Black Mountain, and a magnificent specimen of a hexagonal crystal of beryl, seven inches in diameter and two feet long, taken from a mica mine in Mitchell county. Mitchell, Macon and Yancey counties now furnish the greater part of the mica used.

— Winston Sentinel: The highest price obtained so far for any of the new crop of tobacco has been $34 per hundred. —— Coles' circus lost one of its camels at Statesville by an accident while loading it on the cars at that place. —— The chestnut crop in the mountains, we learn, will be light this season. —— Green apples were selling on the streets last week as low as fifteen cents per bushel. —— The dried fruit trade of our town this season will reach over $100,000. —— A little girl, a daughter of Pleasant Long, of Yadkin county, cut and dried 218 pounds of peaches this summer. —— A shooting scrape took place between the Lawsons and Fryes, of Stokes county, on last Sunday, at Russell Creek Baptist Association in Patrick county, Va. Two parties not engaged in the row were shot, but not seriously injured. —— We regret to learn that George W. Webster, Esq., of Stokes, died on last Monday morning. —— Moses Barrow, Esq., an old and much esteemed citizen, died at his residence, in the eastern section of the county, on last Saturday morning, of pneumonia, in the 76th year of his age. —— A man by the name of George Johnson shot, and it is supposed, mortally wounded Ed. Pettis, at Walkertown, in this county, on last Sunday night. Johnson accused Pettis of informing against Dick Vanhoy for selling liquor without a license, and some angry words followed when Johnson shot him with a rifle gun he was carrying. Johnson immediately left, and up to this time has not been captured. —— As an example of the reward of punctuality and fidelity we cite the case of Charlie Pfohl, book-keeper to the firm of F. & H. Fries, of Salem. He has been in their constant employ from boyhood, amounting recently to twenty-five years, and he now receives quite a liberal salary. Boys, young men, when you get with a good firm stick to them and they will stick to you.

Local Dots.

— Nothing doing in the magistrates' courts yesterday.

— There was a light shower of rain hereabouts last night.

— There were no cases for Mayor Dawson's consideration yesterday morning.

— We are under obligations to Senators Ransom and Merrimon for public documents.

— One more open air concert is called for before going into winter quarters. What say the Cornet Concert Club?

— An important meeting of the retail liquor dealers is called at the Howard Relief Engine House this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

— Cloudy weather and rain, southerly winds, and stationary or lower temperature and pressure, are the indications for this section to day.

— The Cadets of the Cape Fear Military Academy, under command of Maj. Burgess, will parade this afternoon, at 4 o'clock, on Front street.

— Superior Court did not meet yesterday afternoon, after the adjournment for dinner, in consequence of the indisposition of his Honor, Judge Moore.

— A new wholesale grocery establishment will be opened on South Water street, next south of Mr. H. B. Eilers's, on Monday next, by Messrs. W. I. & D. L. Gore.

— Depredations of cows upon gardens is getting to be a general complaint in the community. There are a great many running at large in the streets, and it is almost impossible to keep them out of enclosures.

— Dr. M. J. DeRosset left this city yesterday morning for New York, from which place it is expected that he will go to one of the Western States before he determines upon a final location. His family remain in Wilmington for the present.

— We learn from the Gazette that Mr. John H. Robinson, formerly of this city, but more latterly of Fayetteville, has received a position in Washington, for which place he left on Tuesday morning last to enter upon his new field of duties.

— We noticed on exhibition yesterday a large boquet, the flowers composing which, together with their arrangement, being the product of the labor and skill of Mr. C. F. Bissinger of this city, would compare favorably with anything of the kind we have ever seen.

— The Newbern Nut Shell says: We congratulate the Wilmington "sojer boys" on their successful shooting at the fair, but are sorry our sub "counted without his host" when he perpetrated the little "anecdote" in Wednesday's Nut Shell by saying "Our boys will bring back the flag. Mark our prediction."

— The "veracity" of Miss Amy Lee, the talented actress, is no doubt unquestioned. At any rate we did not intend to compliment her on the possession of that distinctive feature of character in our notice of the performance Wednesday night. We wrote it vivacity, but those printers—well!

Removal.

The furniture of Col. J. R. Davis, formerly proprietor of the Purcell House, was being transferred to the Steamship Raleigh, lying at the wharf opposite the Custom House, yesterday afternoon, preparatory to being taken to Norfolk. The Raleigh will touch at the latter place en route for Baltimore. Wilmington loses a worthy and energetic citizen in the departure of Col. Davis, who we hope may do well in his new home.

Publication of an Address.

We learn that Mr. P. Heinsberger is having published, in pamphlet form, the address of Hon. Edward Cantwell, which was delivered before the Wilmington Light Infantry, at the Opera House, on the occasion of the celebration of their anniversary, on the 22nd of May last, the address being a complete and interesting historical sketch of the company from the time of its original formation up to that period.

A New Cotton Compress.

A meeting of the Wilmington Compress and Warehouse Company was held at the Bank of New Hanover yesterday morning, at which it was determined to take immediate steps for the purchase and erection of a new press, which is expected to be ready to go into operation in about two months. The new press will be put up near the old one, and will afford the company all the facilities they will require.

OPERA HOUSE.

The Hidden Hand.

The performance of this drama, at the Opera House last evening, by the Watkins troupe, was excellent, Mrs. Watkins' personation of Capitola, throughout the many changes of the character, being extremely well done, though less was hardly to have been expected from an actress of her ability. Harry Watkins, as Wool, needs no praise from us. He always plays his part capitally, and in this character, as usual, left little to be desired. Of the other members of the troupe who took part in the piece last evening, Mr. J. W. Burton stands preeminent. In the character of Major Warfield he but sustained the very favorable impression made by him on his appearance Wednesday evening as Popincourt in the afterpiece.

Miss Amy Lee's appearance last evening was always hailed with applause. She is assuredly a charming little actress, and we sincerely hope that a packed house will testify to-night, the occasion of her benefit, to the impression she has made in Wilmington. A very attractive bill has been prepared, and if you have not seen her do not fail to attend. If you have, go again; our word for it you will not regret it.

The Reported Capsize.

The rumored capsizing of a boat containing four persons, near New Inlet, on Sunday last, and the drowning of all on board, mention of which was made in our last issue, is no doubt incorrect. A yawl boat belonging to a barque lying at anchor near the Bar, containing a sailing party, was capsized on Sunday, but without any serious results, and this was no doubt the foundation of the report referred to. The party alleged to have been drowned, left here on Saturday last to engage in a fishing expedition near New Inlet, and expected to be absent three or four days. They have not been heard from since, but if anything had happened to them as long ago as Sunday, some definite information of the fact would have been received here before this.

Superior Court.

The case of Kerchner & Calder Bros. vs. Alex. and J. L. McRae, which has been in process of investigation before this Court since Tuesday last, went to the jury on Wednesday night, who, after remaining out all night, returned a verdict yesterday morning in favor of the defendants.

The case of the Bank of New Hanover vs. Williams, Black & Co., of New York, was then taken up.

Almost a Fire.

Yesterday afternoon, about a quarter to 1 o'clock, the roof of a kitchen attached to the residence of Mrs. Roberts, corner of Sixth and Chesnut streets, was discovered to be on fire, having caught from the heat of the stove pipe. By a prompt effort on the part of those on the premises at the time, the flames were arrested before much damage had resulted. There was no alarm.

The Festival To-night.

Don't forget the festival for the benefit of Fifth Street M. E. Church, which takes place at Meginney's Hall this evening. The ladies have been at no little trouble to prepare delicacies and refreshments, such as ice cream, oysters, cake, &c., and we hope they may be liberally patronized.
