It is a well known principle of the STAR to bestow praise on all praisewerthy acts of officials, and to condemn those in power when they act manifestly wrong. We have applied censure to the French President socalled just as we have to the American President de facto. It is gratify ing to be able to say that Marshal MacMahon is letting down. . He has signified his purpose to be to moderate his claims and enter upon a "path of compromise and reconciliation.' We are truly glad to learn this, for we only wish well to the French nation, one of the greatest of modern times. The President knows the voice of the people of France, and he is reported as declaring that he will endeavor to remove all obstacles to a peaceful solution of matters in dispute. This is the dictate of wisdom and patriotism.

The Russians made a splendid figh on the 24th when they captured the position near Gwinje Dubruik. They made three assaults before they succeeded. The Turks played a foul game by twice displaying a white flag, and thus alluring them under a terrific fire. They paid for it, for their killed alone is said to have been four thousand. The Russians are fortifying the captured positions, as they are threatened with a combined attack by Osman and Chevket Pashas. From Asia Minor comes the news that negotiations at Kars have been broken off and the bombardment has begun afresh. Mouktar and Ismail Pashas have retired to a strong post tion near Hassan Kaleh, whilst Generals Heyman and Tergukasoff have united and are near the Turks and not far from Koprikor. The successes of the Russians at Plevna create much alarm at Constantinople. Such is the present outlook.

The Raleigh Observer says: Among the most important events of last week was the adoption by the Agricultural Society of the following resolutions, introduced by Capt. Thig-pen, on the subject of our banking.

WHEREAS, Cheap money, in our present impoverished condition, is to the farmer of vital importance; and, whereas, the oppressive and prohibitory United States tax on State Banks of ten per cent, is now not necessary, if it ever was, and creates a moneyed monopoly in the National Banks, and is dangerous to liberty, therefore, Resolved, By the State Agricultural Society of North Carolina, that onr Senators and Representatives in Congress be respectfully requested to procure the repeal of said tax, to the end that we may have State Banks, to North Carolina, if a general law is not passed repealing said tax.

VOL. XXI.--NO. 34

THE PRESIDENT. His Arrival in Richmond.

[Richmond State.] Richmond is filled with enthusiasm to-day over the visit of the President of the United States. Notwithstanding the lowering sky this morning the people crowded the principal thoroughfares early, and soon after breakfast members of the various military organizations were seen hurrying to and fro, making preparations for the parade. On Main street many of the largest business houses were profusely decorated with flags and bunting, while some of the residences on Franklin street, particularly those near the place of the reception, were adorned with wreaths and festoons of ever greens and flowers. On the corner of Fifth and Franklin streets, where the presidential procession passes, the residence of Mr. Hawes was beautifully decorated with national and State colors.

As one stood on Main street, at the intersection of Fifth, and looked down the long vista where flags and gay colors were flying, he was impressed with the picturesqueness o the scene.

Jude Meredith made the speech o welcome. We extract the following "If there be a Southern man who does not approve of these measures, or any one of them, he has yet to be heard from. And hence, we can give a hearty welcome, and tender the tribute of our gratitude to a President who has given these evidences of a broad and enlightened statesmanship; and although, sir, according to party association, we are not all Republicans, but most of us are Democrats, yet they are Democrats who have the intelligence to perceive and the manliness to approve a virtuous and patriotic act in a political opponent. "Mr. President, in your laudable efforts to give the country a pacific and constitutional administration, we bid you God-speed and promise ou cordial co-operation; and if the past be an earnest of the future we feel an abiding confidence that you will attain this noble end-the highest that the patriot can reach-and I will add. as not mappropriate to the occasion. that it is this confidence in the sincerity of your purpose to administer the government within the limits of the Constitution, and your anxious desire to sooth the animosities engendered by the war that is the cause of the warm demonstrations that have greeted you wherever you have appeared in the South."

The President brifly responded. Mr. Evarts, Mr. Sherman, Mr. Devens. and Mr. Thompson all made brief

Moj. General N. B. Forrest. [Savannah News.] Gen. Forrest was a man whose peouliar abilities and characteristics would never have been generally made known to the world but for the civil conflict between the North and the South. All his life he had been but a private citizen of Tennessee. and so he would have died had not that conflict presented to him a the atre for the exhibition of his peculiar talents. Unknown generally, he was sufficiently well known in his locality to enable him to be chosen as chief of a company which had for its object partisan ranger warfare rather than regular service. He soon made his as before the war, not interfering with the present National Banks.

Resolved, further, That our Senators and Representatives procure the repeat of the soid to send the soid the soid to send the soid repeat of the said ten per cent. tax as still nothing of any special brilliancy was announced until at the capture of Fort Donaldson. Just before the surrender of that fort, when it was evident that the cause of the Confederates was hopeless, and they seemed to be completely at the mercy of their enemies, Gen. Floyd turned to Wilmington, Fifth Street ... Nov. 24-25 the then Col. Forrest with the remark "Can you cut your way out, Colonel ?" "I will out my way out, General," was the reply, and he did it. After this the name of Forrest rose highly in the estimation of his friends and compatriots, in proportion as it became a terror to his enemies. He especially won his way to renown, rising to the rank of Major General, and sustaining his well earned and world wide reputation until the close of the war.

After hostilities had ceased, he settled down to private life, and devoted his energies to building up the shattered fortunes of his beloved South. He has been specially prominent in day morning. railway enterprises, and his work in this direction will long live after him -a monument to his memory.

A Lively Fox Hunt.

Some six or eight sporting gentlemen of this city had an interesting and exciting fox hunt, yesterday afternoon, after "second-handed" game. It appears that they had captured a fine fox, a few days ago, without hurting so much as a hair of the crafty animal, and then determined to have some rare sport out of him. With this view he was fed very sparingly and got in good trim for the chase. Yesterday the gentlemen alluded to, accompanied about a dozen dogs, took the animal to the woods near the southern limits of the city and turned him loose. Then commenced an exciting chase, which lasted for about a half hour, when the fox was recaptured

SUPERIOR COURT.

The Case of Robert Smith, Charged with the Murder of David Murphy -The Cause Removed frem Bladen

The case of Robert I. Smith, charged with the murder of David Murphy, in Bladen county, on the night of the 28th of June last, which was removed to this county at the instance of the prosecution, came up for investigation in the Superior Court yesterday morning, His Honor, Judge Moore, presiding. The entire forencon was consumed in selecting a jury, the penirs of one hundred men summoned by order of the court being nearly exhausted before the requisite number had been secured. The following named persons comprise the list: Luhr Vollers, R. H. Grant, W. H. Cotton (colored), Robert Henning, W. A. Willson, Samuel C. Nixon (colored), E. G. Whitney, Isaac B. Northrop, W. L. Jacobs, Thomas Brownelle (colored), R. M. McIntire, Elijah Lane (colored).

The jury were sworn and empanneled and the court then took a recess until 34 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION. At the hour specified Court was reopened and the trial was proceeded with. The first witness called by the prosecu tion was

DR. W. A. BIZZELL.

This witness testified that he examined the body of the deceased (David Murphy) on the 29th of June, the day succeeding the night on which the homicide was committed. He found three shot in the heart, the wound being what is known as a chest wound. Deceased could have lived a minute or so after being shot. Witness found the body from fifty to one hundred and fifty yards from Robert Smith's house, near the road leading from Smith's house to the river. There were about one hundred shot in the body. They were mixed shot, two-thirds of them being small and one-third duck or turkey now undergoing investigation before the shot. At the coroner's inquest Smith's Superior Court, together with revenue One barrel of the gun seemed to have been | been the occasion of bringing a large num recently discharged, while the other had ber of country people to this city during apparently been loaded for several days, the present week. It has been some time the caps being corroded. Witness saw the load drawn, and it was composed of mixed shot, something similar to these in the body. He saw one hundred counted, and there were about fifty more. The wadding in both barrels consisted of brown paper, and the wadding found near the body was of common brows paper, similar to that in the gun. The newly loaded barrel presented a different appearance from the old one. The accused, Robert Smith, was not present when he arrived at the body. He came afterwards with J. A. Sutton. It had rained the day before the homicide was committed. Smith's house is a small one, with two doors, the enclosure consisting of an acre or so, with palings in front and rails in the rear. It was nearer from the front door to the body than from the back door. The tracks were easily discovered, owing to the sandy character of the soil. Oross examined .- The old barrel had probably been loaded for several weeks. There were about one hundred and fifty shot in the old barrel and only about one hundred in the one newly leaded. From all appearances deceased was between Smith's house and the man who shot him.

J. F. GILLESPIE was next called. Witness is a surveyor, and exhibited a diagram of Smith's house and grounds adjacent thereto, showing the direction of the roads, location of the body, &c.

Columbus Evans and Sam Evans testified that they were present when the sur vey of the grounds was made. COLUMBUS T. EVANS was called and sworn. Witness saw body on the night of the 28th of June, 1877, at about 11 or 12 o'clock, within about one hundred and thirty-five yards of Smith's house. He remained with the body. After Sheriff Sutton came he looked for tracks. He saw no tracks there before the Sheriff's arrival, but found a No. 9 or 10 track, made by a shoe run down at the side. There were other tracks on the same road upon which deceased was found, one made by a No. 6 shoe. Murphy wore a No. 6 and Smith a No. 9 shoe. There was also a barefooted track. It raised enough afterwards to obliterate the tracks. In a conversation with Smith he (S.) told witness that the barefooted track was that of Lucy Melvin, a colored servant girl in his employ. He said that he and Lucy Melvin went to where the body was after the gun fired. He (S.) run down by the body, then turned back and found it. He shook the body and called Murphy by name, but received no answer. He then called for a light, which was brought by Lucy Melvin. He was one hand free, with which he quickly drew | Murphy went to his house between sunpown and dark and he invited him in-Murphy refused, as he had to go to Sam. Evans'. He (8.) insisted upon his coming in, as he wanted Murphy to go with him fishing. Afterwards he and Murphy went to the lake and Murphy sat down while he (S.) cut lightwood. The lake was too rough to go fishing and he went back home, when he found Murphy and his (Smith's) wife sitting on the front steps and the colored girl in the yard. Murphy en gaged in "deviling" Lucy (the color girl) about her children. He (Smith) aske Murphy to stay all night and M. rei saying he must go, when he told had better wait until the door after Murphy and he (Smith) sat down to pull off his boots. He had got one of them off, when the gun fired and some one hallooed. Witness saw the wadding and saw John Sutton count one hundred and twenty shot holes. Some of the shot were small and some large. Smith went to alarm the neighbors, going first to deceased's relatives. He aroused him (witness) and told him Dave Murphy was shot; that somebody had killed him near his (Smith's) house, Smith and witness staid by the body, while Sam Evans went to Meluin's. Then Sam Evans returned with a borse. Smith said that he was willing to stay or go for Sheriff Sutton, and finally got on a horse and went after the Sheriff. Smith was working with Melvin at the time. The Sheriff arrived about 2 o'clock A. M Smith, who went for a docter after notifying the Sheriff, arrived about daybreak.

At this stage of the proceedings, about 6 o'clock in the evening, Court adjourned until 10 e'clock this morning, when the examination of witnesses, of whom there are a large number, will be resumed. For the prosecution: Solicitor Norment ex Judge Daniel L. Russell, Messrs. R. H. and C. C. Lyon, and Mr. Bryan. For the defence; Messrs. Thos. H. Sutton and N A. Stedman, Jr.

The prisoner is a young man, apparently about 25 years old, and has a rather pleasant face. He seems to be very cheerful and self-possessed. His father, Mr. T. M. Smith, and his father in-law, ex-Sheriff R. P. Melvin, are in constant attendance, and are, of course, deeply interested in the trial. The attorneys on both sides are very vig-ilant and every point is carefully watched and obstinately contested. The case will probably not be concluded before Friday. We have not learned how many speeches will be made for the prosecution, or in what order they will be delivered. Mr. Sutton and Mr. Stedman, we hear, will both speak for the defence.
