WASHINGTON NEWS. Stephens takes Part in the Beba in the House-Specie Resumption Act-A Plan to Elect President and Vice President by the People.

[Special to Richmond Dispatch.] WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. The Senate was not in session today, and the House adjourned without doing anything of importance. The venerable Alexander Stephens took part in the debates to-day for the first time this session. He asked that a bill which had been introduced to remonetize the old silver dollar be referred to the committee on Weights, Coinage and Measures, of which he is chairman, instead of to the committee on Banking and Currency, to which such bills are customarily referred.

Mr. Stephens supported his motion with a little speech, which he delivered sitting in his invalid chair in the open space in front of the Speaker's desk. Nearly all the members in the House rose and crowded forward to hear him. He spoke with a good deal of energy, and was easily heard at the rear of the hall. The House, by a large majority, acceded to Mr. Stephens' request, and referred the bill to his committee.

This action will not change the purpose of the Banking and Currency Committee. They have fifty bills of the same sort referred to them already, and, what is more to the point, have already prepared a bill remone-tizing the old silver dollar of 1837 (412½ grains weight), which they purpose to report Monday, when they will try to get it passed under a suspension of the rules. The friends of the "dollar of the daddies" are confident that this effort will be successful, as they say they are sure of more than two-thirds of the House.

The bill to repeal the specie-resumption act remains in statu quo. The anti-repealers have developed their ability to postpone action indefinitely. ELECTION OF PRESIDENT AND VICE-

Congressman Finley, of Ohio, introduced a joint resoluti n to-day proposing to so amend the Constitution as to have the President and Vice President elected directly by the people. The resolution provides that the persons securing the greatest number of votes for President and Vice President, shall be President and Vice President: that if two or more persons shall receive equal number of votes for President, the House of Representatives shall immediately choose a President from the persons who have received an equal vote; that the Senate shall in like manner solve a like difficulty in the election of Vice President; that the election shall be holden at the time now provided for the choosing of electors, provided that Congress may change the time; and provided, further, that the time shall be the same in all the States; that Congress shall provide the manner of holding and conducting such elections and making returns thereof; but on a failure to de so, the duty shall devolve in the order named upon-first, the President of the United States; second, the Legislature of each State within that State; third, upon the chief executive of each State within that State; that the returns shall be canvassed at the time and in the manner now procase of a disagreement between the two houses the matter of disagree— ment shall be referred to the Supreme Court of the United States for its decision, which shall be final.

VOL. XXI.--NO. 38.

WILMINGTON, N. C., TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1877.

The House committee on Foreign Affairs has taken up the consideration of so much of the President's message as recommended an appropriation for a representation of the United States at the French exhibition next year, and listened to the reading of a letter from the Secretary. of State, who recommends an appropriation of $140,000. Messrs. Cox of New York, and Hamilton of Indiana, of the committee, are avowedly op-posed to making any appropriation for the purpose named, but it is understood that a majority of the com-mittee are in favor of appropriating the amount asked for by the Secretary of State, and will report a bill to that effect at an early day.

There are already a large number of applicants for the United States commissionership." Connecticut is pushing General Joe Hawley, and Pennsylvania John W. Forney. The South also has a candidate in the field in the person of Mr. S. B. Smith, a prominent lawyer and banker of Charlotte, N. C., and a son-in-law of Representative Singleton, of Mississippi. Mr. Smith's papers already bear the endorsements of the solid delegations, in both House and Senate, of the States of North Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, and Arkansas, and his friends, who are circulating his papers as fast as possible, are confident that he will be endorsed almost unanimously by the Southern delegations.

TRAGEDY IN JAIL.

The Jerry Everett Murderers Attempt to Escape-One of them Shot Dead and Another Severely Wounded. |Rockingham Spirit.|

On Tuesday morning last the jailer at this place, Mr. Alex. L. McDonald. went up as usual to have the cells cleansed and feed his prisoners, taking with him a colored boy, aged fifteen years. Opening the door of the cell wherein the three Jerry Everett confined, he sent the boy into the cell while he remained at the door to prevent their coming out, when suddenly James Chavis, one of the murderers, ran up and seized Mr. MacDonald around the waist, holding him by both arms; Asbury Chavis, another of the prisoners, ran up and grabbed him by the throat, while Jacobs, the other criminal, endeavored to wrest Mr. MacDonald's pistol from him, at the same time, having hold of Mr. McDonald's legs. Mr. McDonald, being a very strong young man and not easily intimidated, succeeded in drawing his pistol, while James Chavis had a firm hold on his arm, and fired, the ball entering that individual in the region of the heart. Mr. McDonald then turned and fired another effect in the bowels and producing a the 9th inst., aged 14 years. very severe wound. Asbury and Jacobs then retreated into their cell, but still James Chavis, the one first shot, held on to Mr. McDonald, and only let go his hold when Mr. Mc-Donald, with an effort, threw him to the floor, when he instantly expired. The first shot fired by Mr. McDonald passed through his own vest and burned his shirt, while the second shot also burned his vest, he being hardly able to manage his pistol, so firmly did his antagonists have him pinioned. When James Chavis struck the floor he exclaimed, "I am dead," which were the last words he uttered.

An Industrious Colored Man. . [Newbernian.]

Seated in his buggy at the head of long train, composed of thirty wagon teams, each laden with baled cotton of his own production, Isaac Forbes, an industrious colored farmer, drove into Newbern on Wednesday last and proceeded to one of the shipping wharves, discharged his freight and had it receipted for shipment to Baltimore, to which market he sends his cotton to be sold on his own account. Upon inquiry we learn that Isaac. soon after the war, purchased a plan-tation from Judge Manly for the sum of five thousand dollars, and that he has in the meantime, through industry and good management, not only secured for himself and family a good livelihood, but has paid the amount of purchase money in full, besides buying and putting up for his own use a cotton gin and steam engine. This year he expects to market one hundred bales as the cotton production of his farm, which is situated on Brice's creek, about four miles south of Newbern, and the Trent river. This is an example of industry and perseverance that our colored citizens should take note of and follow with earnestness.

- A correspondent at Dublin, Laurens county, writing to the Savannah Morning News, under date of October 29, says: "The steamer Coloille arrived at our wharf early this morning. The boat is owned by s company of North Carolina gentlemen and a few of our people, and is to run between this town and the Central Railroad. As the pioneer of an important enterprise, the Colville has been an object of general and intense interest to our people all day, who are now signalizing the event with hig guns and other fireworks, while the officers and owners of the boat are being entertained at the Troup House at a public supper. The Colville is the first boat that has ever come up the river on low water (and it is now very low), thereby proving the fact that a boat can run on our river at all stages of the water. We look to this as a beginning of a new era in the business relations of our town and county with Savannah and the outside world generally, and we hope it will receive the attention and co-operation from the Central Railroad and its Board of Directors which its importance to them will warrant. The work on the Oconee river begun by the company some weeks ago is progressing rapidly, and before long we hope the Colville will be making regular trips to and from the Oconce bridge, to the great delight of our merchants and the travelling public." The Colville was built here by Messrs. Colville & Co. and was formerly on the line between this city and
