FRIDAY MORNING, Dec. 21, 1877

WILL THERE BE PEACE? Will there be speedy peace between Russia and Turkey, or will the war be prolonged indefinitely? Will the war be prosecuted with an eye to conquest on the part of Russia, or will the protection of the oppressed Christians be the only end in view? The Czar is committed to a war not of conquest but to free Christians from oppression. No doubt he would be glad to have all of Turkey as his share, but he has given a promise to the European Cabinets that he cannot disregard with safety. He assured the Great Powers in the beginning that he would make no conquests. If he finds himself able to "gobble up" the "sick man," country and sea, army and navy, he will no doubt feel anxious to help himself, but then this will not be allowed. Austria and Germany would each want a big slice. Whilst the three Emperors might be able to settle Turkey's "hash" to suit themselves, England, France, Italy, Spain and other smaller Powers might put in a word of objection. So we take it that in no event will there be con-

Although the recent news threatens to complicate matters and to bring England to the front, we do not now see why peace should not come before another year's campaign has been tried. If there is to be no conquest, then why should Russia be anxious to prosecute the war to a "bitter end," or the last extremity? It is a very expensive business she is engaged in, and she is short of funds and with damaged credit. Whilst peace is a necessity clearly with Turkey, it is also becoming a great burden, possibly, a necessity too, with

Will France, Spain, Italy, and England agree to the partition of Turkey between Germany, Austriaand Russia? We think not. It is not to their interest that such an act should be allowed. We do not see how Germany is to be benefited so greatly by a complication of dangers on the Danube. We cannot see why Russia should risk a war with England and other powers, when she must lose more than she can gain by such a course. A prolonged war and upon a more gigantic scale would be fraught with great evil to both Russia and the entire civilized world.

We grant the last news does not look so favorable to immediate peace. But if Germany and Austria disclaim all purpose to take part in the war or to share in its results, then England must continue to remain neutral. We can but hope and believe that with the fall of Plevna the prospects of peace were brightened. Russis can beat her enemy and Turkev knows it. condition to stand another year's funeral and beheld its own sepulture. campaign. Whilst her forces are Its grave is the public debt.

dwindling away, Russia is increasing hers by new levies and fresh arrivals. It will not surprise us if before the 1st of February next mediation or a treaty direct has begun.

DEFEATED BUT NOT DESERTED Some good has followed the tri umph of Conkling over the Presi dent. Whilst those papers that have heretofore sustained Mr. Hayes in his reform and Southern policy still stand by him in his war with the factionists, there have been expressions of sympathy from Democratic papers that have had but little patience with him. In fact, the President has gained more than he has lost. He has the favor of a large majority of the true people of the country who are patriotic enough to prefer peace and reconciliation to strife and sectional antagonisms. Whilst men differ as to the wisdom and propriety of much that he has done, they all give him more or less credit for having served the country at large in serving so well the oppressed South. He is now standing by his guns, and there are no signs of dismay or of backing down on his part. Conkling demands a change in the Cabinet as a necessary step towards peace in the party. He means war to the knife unless the President will retrace his steps, confess his sins, and henceforth keep step to the music of TOTAL ROBBON If Mr. Hayes were to prove himself as weak and vacillating as his enemies desire him to be, and were to make an entire new Cabinet composed of the material that the extremists would furnish, what a nice time the country would have, and what a glorious prospect for the South. In that Cabinet would be such bull-dozers as Blaine, Conkling, Don Cameron, Edmunds, Ben Butler, Garfield, &c. This is the kind of timber that would be placed in the new Cabinet-knarled, crooked, tough, rotten as it is in parts. How happy then would be those Democrats who aided Conkling in bringing about this state of affairs. What a tremendous debt of gratitude the country would owe them for such a consummation.

The taxable wealth of North Carolina is diminishing. The last Raleigh News gives the value of taxable property, taken from the advanced sheets of the State Auditor's annual report. Here are the figures:

Total value of real and per-$148,564,557 00 The summing up for the year ending September 30th, 1876, shows the following: $75,309,799 00 Value of town property, • 17,047,321 00

16,683,096 00 Horses, mules, cattle, &c., Farming tools, money, cred-43,505,807 00

Total value of personal and real property, $152,546,023 00 The above tables show a total falling off of $3,981,466 00 this year over the last. On value of land, of $1.088,401 00; on horses, mules, cattle, &c., of $552,238 00; on farming tools, money, credits, &c., of $2,752,-026 00. And an increase on the value of town property of $411,199 00.

This is not an encouraging exhibit. In many sections the price of land is depreciating, and we are surprised that the falling off is no greater than is represented.

The U. S. Senate did one good which should not die "tongue S. B. McLin, a member of the infamous Returning Board of Floriwas nominated by President Hayes to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of New Mexico. It is very creditable to the Senate that he was rejected without a division. For a civil service reformer Mr. Haves makes some very strange selections. He is singularly badly informed as to the character of some of the men he desires to favor, or he is very indifferent as to their personal qualifications for integrity and honor.

The Bostonians are not above reading trash any more than the people of the South. According to the last report of the Superintendent of the Public Library, is this record, which speaks so loudly that no comment is "The single author most in request was Horatio Alger, Jr., a writer for youth, whose books were marked on 290 slips. Mrs. Southworth came next, 301 times; Oliver Optic, 292; Dumas, 199; Mrs. Stephens, 158; Miss Braddon, 154; Mrs. Holmes, 146."

There is an ugly split in the Conservative party of Virginia on the subject of the public debt. It is somewhat difficult for an outsider to get the precise drift of the contest. There are the simon pure readjusters and the moderates and so on. It is regarded, we believe, that the Con-We do not think the latter is in a servative party has attended its own

Jefferson, is giving readings from his own novels after the manner Charles Dickens. He is said to be a reader of no gifts. His novels are clever, but it is simply absurd to compare him with that great genius and writer, Thackeray, or with that consummate master of tears and laughter, Dickens. He is evidently in imitator of the latter.

Not only has Grant grown much fatter since he went to Europe-having increased forty-seven pounds in weight-but his face, according to a Washington dispatch to the Hartford Times-"is broader or more swelled-looking than ever." Well, it will do it if persisted in. Increasing fatness is one of the "symptoms."

THE MAGAZINES.

The Atlantic for January is a fair number of the best American magazine. I contains poems from Longfellow, Whittier and Holmes, all of which are distinguished by the peculiar excellences of these leading masters of verse. Longfellow shows no diminution of power or invention. One of his best poems is Keramos, that appeared not many weeks ago. The continued articles are the fourth instalment of Mark Twain's "Rambling Notes," the ninth of Mr. E. H. Knight's Centennial articles, and the second of Mr. Bishop's "Detmold." A so-called South Carolinian writes one of his half truthful, half false articles that in the main do manifest injustice to the South. Henry James, Jr., tells about "A Little Tour in France;" Charles Dudley Warner comes to the defence of the Adirondacks a region of romance and adventure: Editor Howells has a biographical article upon Edward Gibbon; William F. Anthorp contributes a sketch of an episode in the life of the artist, Hector Berlioz, and there are other interesting articles. The "Contributors Club" is not so interesting as it was some time ago. The book reviews are full and well written. Price $4 a year. H.

O. Houghton & Co., Boston. Littell's Living Age is always good. Among recent articles that have appeared are the following: The Color-Sense, by Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone; The Murder of Thomas a Becket, by James Anthony Froude: Walter Bagehot, Ford nightly Review; On the Comparative Stupidity of Politicians, Frazer; Mr. Bryce's Ascent of Mt. Ararat, Spectator; The Marshalate; a Chapter of French History-May, 1873, to October, 1876, Nineteenth Century; The Court of the Grand Monarque, by the author of "Mirabeau," etc., Temple Bar; A Glimpse of Adrianople, Pall Mall Gazette; Lost in Magellan's Straits, Chambers's Journal; with serials by Miss Thackeray, Wm. Black, and Katharine S. Macquoid, poetry and miscellany.

To new subscribers for 1878, the last six numbers of 1877, containing the first parts of a fine German serial, translated for The Living Age, and a serial story by Miss Thackeray from advance sheets, are sent gratis. For fifty-two numbers, of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,000 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low; or for $10.50 any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies is sent with The Living Age for a year, both postpaid. Littell & Gay, Boston, are the publishers.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- No intelligent man denies to the President sound principles, good purposes, patriotism and integrity. To a very large and powerful section of the Republican party his general policy of wise pacification and of correction of abuses in the civil service, to say nothing of his financial views, s most welcome. Why, then, has the Administration seemed so friend-The answer is very simple and short. It is because it has not seemed to believe in itself. It has hesitated to justify the expectation it has arous-ed.—Harper's Weekly, Rep.

- We do not mean to apportion the blame between the two Senators; and we rejoice that the good counsels of their friends have prevailed, and that the business badly begun is happily ended. But we believe we uter the sentiments of all that portion of the American people whose opinions are worthy of respect, that the duel must not only be banished from the Senate chamber-and for that matter from every place elsebut that even the phraseology that heretofore logically led to the duel should be also banished. The cant about that kind of "personal honor" that finds its protection in a pistol; the talk about "settling" disputes "in another place," and "at your pleasure," ought not to be used unless it is recognized that they are to be followed out to their logical conclusions. It is worse than a mere offense against good taste.-Balt. Gazette, Dem.

Sauce for Conkling is Sauce for Gor-

[From the Evening Bulletin.] Mr. Conkling does not want Senators Hill and Gordon to control the Georgia appointments, nor do we. for one reason: Because unless civil service reform is an empty sham they should be made by the President in the interest of the general public and not at all in the interest of individual politicians. But it seems to us that civil service reform does not suffer any more with Hill and Gordon supreme in Georgia than it does with Conkling supreme in New York.

The Onward March of Reform.

He not only favored the admission of General Butler to his rightful seat in the Senate, but delivered a powerful argument in that behalf. His services on the Senatorial inves tigating committee sent to Columbia, S. C. in January last, gave Mr. Merrimon peculiar advantages in the debate which he used very effectively.—Raleigh News.

Every member of that body who opposes the re-introduction of the "whipping post," will be a proper subject for "forty, well laid on, save one," and that two. The pen-itentiary furnishes no punishment, neither is it a reformer of those sent to that insti-tution—to be fed and clothed. At any rate, let the aid of the whipping post be called into requisition—and between that, the penitentiary, and hanging, crime may possibly be abated.—Statesville American.

POLITICAL POINTS.

- Blaine and Conkling have tumbled into each other's arms after twelve years of sullen estrangement that refused recognition of each other. Who will say that the Hayes pacification policy is failure now?—Philadelphia Times, Ind.

- A relative of General Grant is reported as saying that the ex-President will remain abroad "indefinitely," and add-"I am sure he will not come back while the quarrel between the party and Hayes goes on. He doesn't want to be mixed up in it. You may make up your mind that while there is a conflict inside of the Republican party here Grant will keep

- That little remark from Senator Gordon, to the effect that "it can be settled outside," has set the Republican press of the North to sneering about "plantation manners." The corner-grocery bully of the North could never endure the light and airy style indigenous to the broad pampas of the South. No more did Hotspur's fop love villainous saltpetre. - Wash

Judge Moore and Negro Jurors. [Charlotte Democrat.]

Judge W. A. Moore has been making a fuss at some of his Courts in the Wilmington District that no negroes were on the grand or petit juries, and the sheriffs have replied that none were qualified by payment of taxes and intelligence. At Cartaret Superior Court the grand jury reported Judge Moore for unwarranted and unjustifiable interference with Sheriff Davis in the discharge of his duties in regard to summoning ju-

The Wilmington Democrat, speaking of Sampson Superior Court and Judge Moore, says:

"During the pendency of one case, the colored jurors, who had been summoned, were challenged for cause, not having paid taxes and not being freeholders. His Honor directed the Sheriff to summon colored persons who had the necessary qualifications. Mr. Peterson, the deputy, after looking around, said: "Mr. Judge, I can't find a single one." Thereupon the Judge told the colored people that if they expected to enjoy the privileges of citizens, they must help to bear the burdens of the government by paying their taxes-there will be no trouble then about negro jurors."

At an entertainment given in Boston by the Hellers the other night, at the suggestion of a lady in the audience the magician placed his hand on the shoulder of her male companion and demanded that Miss Heller, who was exercising her power of "second sight," should read a letter that was in the gentleman's pocket. The latter became obviously nervous and would have left the hall, but the audience, comprehending the situation, burst out in a roar of laughter and loudly called for the reading of the entire correspondence in his possession. Miss Heller accordingly read:

"Dearest George-Meet me by moonlight alone on the common when the clock strikes 9."

The victim, amid the yells of the audience, started down the centre sisle, closely followed by his wife, who merely stopped to thank Mr. Heller, and exclaim, with an ominous shake of the head, "Just what I expected from the old deceiver!"
