OUTLINES.

The Wilkesbarre miners who struck som weeks ago have resumed work without concessions. — Suleiman Pasha has arrived at Constantinople with 10,000 men. - Turkish forces outside of Rustchuk have been withdrawn. - Great Britain, it is supposed, has advised the Porte to make direct proposals to Russia, but it is not inclined to do so. — Thrkey is bent on defending Rumelia. — A Russian attack on Erzeroum is not probable; Russians are suffering for provisions and forage. -Russians have taken Ardanutch by assault with little loss to themselves. -- The Ministerial crisis in Italy continues. - Two persons were killed by the fall of a gable at Edinburg. - Tweaty persons are missing in the New York horror; the cause of the disaster was a drunken engineer and defective boiler. - Wm. Bassey, colored, under sentence of death in North Carolina, has been arrested in Baltimore. - A large shoe factory at South Bainbridge, Mass., burnt. - The London Times has a very pacific article, one intended to allay excitement on the Eastern question. - Henry Norfolk was hanged at Annapolis, Md., for wife murder. -Vandyke, murderer, hanged at Canton, N Y. - Bassey was dismissed; a case of mistaken identity. - New York markels: Money active at 6 per cent; gold quiet at 1024; cotton quiet at 11 5-16@11 7 16 cents; flour a shade stronger; wheat 1c better; corn a shade firmer; spirits turpentine firm at 33c; rosin firmer at $1 721@

It is now reported that England has toned down sufficiently to advise Turkey to make direct negotiations with Russia and learn its terms. This, however, is said to meet with little favor with the Porte. It is thought the Parliament will oppose all negotiations. In the meantime, Russia is taken Ardanutch by assault, meeting with but little loss. Turkey is resolved on defending Rumelia, the district beyond the Balkans in which Adrianople and Constantinople are situated. To this end Suleiman Pasha has marched to the latter place with 10,000 men, and will soon go to Adrianople to take command of the army of Rumelia.

Conclusive Evidence.

Col. J. P. Batchelder, of Boston, has written an interesting letter to the Raleigh Observer that will go far towards settling the question of who fought best on the third day at Gettysburg. We give a very important extract: "I remained there 84 days, not only making a thorough reconnoissance and sketch of the 25 miles square over which the battle was fought, but visited separately every wounded man in hospital, and, with sketch and note book in hand, we traced the monements of the several commands and located their positions on the plan. As the wounded officers hecame convalescent, I asked and received permission to take them over the field, by which means I was enabled to locate the entire Confederate army, and trace its movements. The track of the great Confederate column on the third day I fixed there and then. I may also add that I subsequently visited, plan in hand, every regiment and battery in the Union army, and have since been at Gettysburg with over one thousand commissioned officers, forty-seven of them Generals commanding, each of whom explained, not only the movements of his own command, but frequently those of his adversary, particularly in the great assault of the third day, for which their position gave tham an admirable opportunity for observation. And here allow me to observe is an important and unbiased element, witnesses of the scene, whose voice must eventually be heard in this controversy, which before arriving at a just verdict, harmonize with the statements of Confederate officers. I will add that during a visit of a large number of officers to Gettysburg, a special consultation was held at this point. Among those present were Gen. Webb, (the present President of the College of New York) who commanded at that part of the line; Gen. Hunt, artillery commander, whose horse was shot under him at this place and who continued fighting on foot with his pistol, and also intelligent officers from nearly every regiment in that vicinity. Without question it was understood that the portion of the line broken was from an angle south or short distance along the advance wall, which had been attacked by the left of Pickett's and the right of Pettigrew's and Trimble's divisions. Here the struggle lasted longest, the troops at the right and left from this portion of the line being gradually swept away by flank attacks, which, with an advance of Webb's reserve regiment, finally converged upon this point. In corroboration of this I hold a letter writ-

Of the efforts of the cadets, we think we but speak the unanimous opinion of the large audience who were present last evening, when we say that the manner in which they acquitted themselves is deserving of the highest praise, reflecting great credit alike upon themselves and those who had so effectively trained them, and readily convincing the audience that there was a inst. great deal that was decidedly impracticable and imaginary even in this, the socalled practical age.

The address of Maj. Burgess, Principal of the Academy, to the cadets, which closed the evening's entertainment, was earnestly and impressively delivered, and attentively listened to by the young gentlemen. It was replete throughout with good advice and wholesome instruction, which we hope the cadets will heed, especially his urgent appeal for greater pride in the re-cord of their State. The Beath Penalty. We learn from a gentleman who arrived on the northern train last night that Hilliard Morgan, colored, expiated the crime of murder on the gallows at Goldsboro' yesterday, at half past 1 o'clock, in the presence of about three thousand persons, only a limited number of whom were admitted inside of the inclosure of the jail yard. He made a speech on the gallows, in which he emphatically declared his innocence, and prayed that God would forgive the man who had sworn his life away. His alleged companion in crime, Stephen Darden, received notice yesterday that he had been respited by the Governor until the 18th of January, and Morgan, up to a few minutes after he had taken his position on the gallows, was evidently buoyed up with the hope that he might possibly share the fate of his more fortunate comrade. He soon realized, however, that his doom was sealed, and then announced his readiness to die and prayed fervently for the forgiveness of his sins. The Goldsboro' Rifles and a force of special police were on duty, it having been rumored, that an attempt would be made by the colored people of the town to rescue the condemned from the clutches of the law. It was nineteen minutes after the drop fell before life was
