Major General Sir Garnet Wolsely takes an exceedingly favorable view of England's military strength. H puts it at 414,000 men, exclusive of at least 70,000 regulars he mentions. Among the corporators are General He is high authority, and according to him England was never so strong before or so well prepared for war. He is certainly high authority. It is announced, in case of war, that Lord Napier, of Magdala, will be the Commander-in-Chief, and Str Garnet Wolsely Chief of Staff.

The outlook is not so promising a yesterday. It is evident there are many serious disturbing elements at work. The war feeling at Vienna is strong. The Russian conditions have made a profound impression upon the Austrian mind. A report comes that a declaration will be made by Austria that will tend to either prevent the assembling of the Conference or will meet the approval of the Powers. This is very mysterious and looks like a sort of "wooden horse. At St. Petersburg, on the other hand, there is a very sore feeling towards England. The latter is thought to have attempted to humiliate the lofty Muscovite, and it is thrown out that the irritated feelings may possibly lead to very serious consequences. The peace terms have not yet been signed. It is said that Russia has re laxed, and the Porte will be allowed to retain its navy. There is some serious difficulty in the way of a satisfactory settlement, or the delay in signing the terms would not be protracted as it is.

The Goose Mania.

On Tuesday Mr. Samuel Davis, city agent of the STAR, purchased a number of fine geese, which he intended to carry to his plantation, a few miles above this city? That night he placed them under his house at the poor brute. The ball entered the for safe keeping, and the next morning he, found that some one had relieved him of the trouble of removing them to his farm. In a word, the geese had all been stolen and up to this writing he has obtained clue as to their whereabou s or the identity of the thief.

> As things are now going on it seems useess for any one to make an effort to keep poultry on their premises. The fact is, there are not enough police at present to afford adequate protection to any part of the city, while persons residing beyond certain limits have absolutely no protection at all. A gentleman (a victim) informed us yesterday that he would contribute liberally towards employing a reliable detective to ferret out the thieves which are now carry ing on their depredations with such a high hand in our midst, and we have no doubt that others can easily be found who would be willing to do likewise.

The Drowned Man-The Inquest. The body of Ludwig Hansen, the Norwegian sailor, the finding of which was mentioned in yesterday's paper, was towed to this city yesterday morning and landed at the wharf of Messrs. Blossom & Evans, where an inquest was held over the remains by Coroner Hewlett. There was no doubt as to his identity. The body, which was terribly mutilated and disfigured, was dressed as an ordinary seaman, and ano swered to the description given of the young man, though no papers were found on his person. In fact there was nothing in his pockets but a few matches. The jury returned a verdict that deceased came to his death from some cause to them unknown, but supposed to be accidental drowning.

In speaking of the party who found the body we meant to have said Thomas Bury er b nett instead of Richard Burnett.
