From Washington. Special to Richmond Dispatch. A CALM AFTER A STORM. WASHINGTON, May 11.

The House to-day was very calm after the storm of yesterday, and Democrats are now agreed that the issues of the coming campaign are to be the so-called Southern claims and the bloody shirt. As to Southern claims the Democratic party will have ample time to show the country that the Southern people who were true to the South have no claims against the United States, and that the men who have claims are those who say they were loyal to the Union. As to the bloody shirt, it is so faded and tattered that it will hardly do service again.

THE NEWS FROM OHIO.

The telegram from the Speaker of the House of Delegates of Ohio today to Mr. Randall, informing him that that body had passed the bill for redistricting the State, pleased Demo-crats and made the Radicals very mad. An Ohio journalist informs me that the Senate will pass the bill. This will give the Democrats fourteen districts, and now they only have six.

Republican County Executive Committee Meeting.

The above Committee had an adjourned neeting at the Court House yesterday, commencing at 12 o'clock and lasting until after 4 in the afternoon. Sheriff Manning presided and J. C. and allowing each ward and township three delegates. James Heaton offered amendments changing the time of holding the meetings and convention to the 10th and 17th of June. He also offered an amendment giving each ward and township in the county with less than 300 voters three delegates, and one delegate for each additional 100. These amendments were voted down, All of the members of the committee having given vent to their feelings, the original resolution offered by Hill was put and adopted, the vote standing 8 to 3. During the discussion the English language was not only murdered, but some of the members of the committee came the next thing to it; at least, they would have been completely annihilated if mere words could have accomplished it. Heaton and Scott were particularly severe on the opposing (Manning) faction. At one time seven the speakers were on the floor on "pints of order." One speaker said he proposed to explore a passel of men, also explore the backbone of the members of the committee who wanted the time of hold the convention sot off, adding, "and you understand consequently let the Dimocrats precede to elect a Treasurer and then let the lavish minded men fill all the offices." Another of the orators wanted the vote splained, as he did not circumpent the question. Heaton arose to explain his vote, and during his remarks, which were exceedingly fiery, said that the death knell of the Republican party in this county had been sounded, and he would take occasion to expose the eight who had dealt it its death blow from now until the 25th. During the calling of the roll on the original motion a perfect pandemonium reigned, every member of the committee and several sioners of Laurinburg, N. There were some Russian officers in the House, last Friday, during the stormy debate, when chaos reigned and the war was fought over again. It is said they were greatly astounded at the scene and wondered what sort of a country was this. It really does look as if conciliation does not con ciliate much to hurt, or words to that effect.

The bill for the relief of William and Mary College, Virginia, has been carried over until the next session because it was sure to be killed by Northern Democrats. This is the way they all do it. They will vote any sums for the North, but "narry a red" for the South. The damage done to the ancient seat of learning was by the Northern soldiers, who neither spared literary institutions nor mills, and yet Northern Democrats are unwilling to repair the injury as to the old college.

A very eminent American has died. Prof. Joseph Henry, of the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, is no more. He was born in Albany, N Y., in 1797, and was, therefore, 8 years old. He was the first to demon strate those principles by which in telligence is conveyed, between distant points through the agency of the electric telegraph. He was a distinguished author, and Edison, the great inventor, says he was the real discoverer of the electric telegraph, and not Morse. Edison says no man ever discovered any great principle without making other discoveries.

costumes are simply magnificent, and in keeping with the regal characters they are to help portray.

- We learn that a genuine bear put in his appearance at the Poor House, a few nights since, and badly frightened some of the parishoners. It is believed to be one that escaped from Mr. G. F. Tilley a year or two ago, and which has since been running wild in the woods.

The Cricket on the Hearth. The large hall in the Tileston Normal School building, known as the Upper Room, was filled with people last night to witness the rendition of "The Cricket on the Hearth" by the pupils of that institution. The performance was very good and apparently much enjoyed by the large audience it had attracted. Of course amateur entertainments are not subject to criticism, but we cannot help criticising, and that most favorably, one or two of the characters of last evening.

Dot was charmingly portrayed, the young ady who was cast for the character acting with a sweetness and naturalness that was admirable, and which gained her repeated applause and made her the recipient of numerous floral tributes. The young lady who essayed the part of Tilley Slouboy, the nurse, was irresistibly amusing throughout. Occasionally we noticed she failed to bring out strong parts in city. the character, but her general conception, entire self-possession, and keen sense of humor made the part, if not strictly after the author's ideal, extremely laughable, reminding us again and again, from the simi. larity of the situations, of Harry Hunter's capital creation of the Lone Wisherman, in "Evangeline." Her every act was greeted with laughter, which was certainly richly merited. All the details of the presentment had been carefully attended to and everything went off as smoothly and easily as if it had been an entertainment given by professional and not amateur actors.

The little Miss who appeared as the Spirit of the Cricket spoke her-pieco and acted her part exceedingly well, and is deserving of much praise for the pleasing manner in which she acquitted herself:

The entire performance was highly creditable and gave evidence of great care and much labor on the part of the Directors, for which we presume they feel amply repaid by the splendid success of last night.
