YELLOW FEVER NOTES.

The fever is spreading alarmingly in the country around Port Gibson. The vellow fever is epidemic at Jackson, Miss., and there have been 13 deaths and 50 cases. The fever is seriously affecting political matters in New Orleans, and the Democrats will be the sufferers. A telegram of the 6th to the Louisville Courier-Journal says:

The fever is unquestionably seriously affecting matters political. The people simply refuse to consider politics at all when overshadowed with a pestilence They are otherwise unaccountably derelict in the matter of registration. Despite the appeals of the politicians, they generally refuse to respond. Those coming forward are largely colored Republicans."

The Greenbackers elected two Congressmen in Iowa-a Republican oss of two.

The anti-Tilden men (Tammany) gained a complete victory in the organization of the New York State Democratic Committee. This settles effectually Uncle Samuel. #### SUPPOSED DOUBLE MURDER.

Arrest of a Young Man by the Name of George Littleton, Charged with the Crime-The Suspicious Circumstances which led to his Arrest. On Wednesday night a warrant was received from Justice George Badger Robinson, of Ransom Township, Columbus county, for the arrest in this city of one George Littleton, on suspicion of being guilty of a double murder. The warrant was endorsed by Justice W. W. Harriss, of this city, and placed in the hands of Detectives T. O. Bunting and N. Carr. The officers having received information to the effect that Littleton was at a house on the corner of Thirteenth and Market streets, proceeded to the place indicated, accompanied by parties from Columbus county who brought the warrant, where, about 2 o'clock yesters day morning, they discovered the man they were in search of and took him into cus-The grounds upon which the warrant for Littleton's arrest was issued are, as far as we can ascertain, as follows: On or about October 1st George Littleton arrived at the house of his brother, Mack Littleton, in Ransom Township, Brunswick county, and during his stay there he made certain admissions, which leaked out in some way, to the effect that on last Sunday was a week ago, at a little station on the Georgia Railroad, known as Social Circle, he went to the house of a young lady, by the name of Miss Ida Montgomery, to whom he had been paying his addresses, and that some words passed between them, when she suddenly left the room and went into an adjoining one, in which was heard immediately afterwards the report of a pistol, and upon investigation it was found that the young lady had committed suicide by shooting herself in the head with a pistol: that he (Littleton), being afraid that he might be connected in some way with the death of the young lady, took the train on the same night, buying a through ticket to Wilmington, but got off at Brinkley's station, and went to his brother's house, as before stated, who lives on a plantation belonging to Mr. G. W. Summerill, of this city. few days thereafter a young and welldressed stranger appeared at Brinkley's depot and inquired the way to Littleton's house, after which nothing more was seen or heard of him. And now comes the second chapter in the horrors with which the name of George Littleton is (justly or unjustly) linked. A few days since a Mr. King was passing through the woods somewhere in the neighborhood of the Littleton place when his attention, was attracted to a certain spot by the efforts of his dogs to frighten away a flock of buzzards, and upon investigation the body of a man was found in a small creek, with a large limb and log of wood placed upon it to keep it down. The body, upon being removed from the water, bore the evidences of having been shot in the head just above the left eye, the ball ranging in and downward, causing, it is supposed, instant death, the murderer or murderers having stripped him of everything he had on except his shirt and drawers, even taking his socks off. A Mr. Coley was made special Coroner to conduct the investigation, and about the same time it was discovered that George Littleton had disappeared from the neighborhood. The impression now gained ground, connecting the story of the alleged suicide of the young lady with other admissions made by Littleton, that the young stranger who appeared at Brinkley's and inquired the way to Littleton's house, was some relative of the young lady in question in pursuit of George Littleton, and that the latter had met and made way with him. This impression was strengthened by the sudden disappearance of Littleton and other cire

Upon searching the room occupied by Littleton, after he was arrested, shirts, handkerchief and letters were found bearing the name of J. T. Randall, the latter being of a strictly private character (in fact, love letters), and such as would not be likely to pass into the hands of a third party, except by foul means. This individual (Randall) is supposed to be the same person who got off the train at Brinkley's, inquired the way to Littleton's, and was not afterwards seen or heard of, and who was believed to have been in pursuit of Littleton.

In a word, it is the general belief in the neighborhood where the body of the murdered man was found, that Littleton murdered Miss Ida Montgomery, bought s through ticket to Wilmington, got off and went to his brother's, to elude pursuit, where he was followed by Randall, a relas tive or friend of the young lady, and that he murdered him. Whether this theory is the correct one remains to be shown.

The accused, who is about 25 years of age, was taken to Ransom township, on the 6 a. m. train yesterday morning, to meet the Coroner's jury, which was to assemble
