It seems that Attorney General Devens declined the Maine District Judgeship. Hayes allowed him to name the appointee, and he selected Judge Lowell, a son, we believe, of James Russell Lowell, one of America's truest sons of genius. After all is the report untrue as to Devens's retirement?

The new electric light is misrepresented as to its illuminating power. In Paris one electric light is only equal to eleven gas jets, or equal to 176 candles. It is as cheap as gas. We glean these facts from the N. Y. Journal of Commerce, which says:

"They prove that the light, even in its infancy, beats gas in point of price as in all other respects. Other of the competing patterns are said to be cheaper and more satisfactory otherwise than the Jablochkoff. They are being gradually introduced in light-houses, railway stations and public halls in various parts of Europe, and are nowhere discontinued. The cost ranges from 4d. to 8d. per hour for each light Regarded commercially-which is the crucial test of the light-it is now on a sound, and, we think, permanent footing in Europe. The 'light of the future' is a present realization !"

"Mr. Blaine, in lieu of argument, resorted to his characteristic display of bad temper. It was very evident to-day, as it has been plainly demonstrated heretofore, that the Republican associates of Mr. Blaine take very little interest in the new crusade which has he inaugurated. They seem to realize perfectly that Mr. Blaine's whole object is to advance his own Presidential aspirations, and as very few of them are in accord with him on that point, they are consequently quite lukewarm. Mr. Blaine consequently quite lukewarm. Mr. Blaine to-day, as heretofore, strode up and down the aisles of the Senate chamber, pounding his fists and endeavoring by taunts and insinuations to torture and goad Southern Senators into making some hot response which would serve for party capital for him in the future. He was unsuccessful, and it is probably best that chivalrie and gallant people should treat with indifference insults and calmunics from a man had him in the future. A memorial is circulating in army posts for signatures praying Congress to establish an army of one hundred thousand men. We will sign a petition to razee the present army to a standard of eight thousand men. Their Day of Daliverance has Dawned.

This is the age of wonders—wonders in science, wonders in mechanism, wenders in every thing. It has been said that the man who causes two blades of grass to grow where only due grew before is a public benefactor. What, then, shall be said of the man who causes a full and luxuriant crop of hair to grow upon the barren and shining pates of the large army of baldheads who have well-nigh despaired of ever having a natural covering for their heads again? What place, in a word, shall be assigned to the discoverer of Carbonard? Shall he not have a conspicuous niche in the Temple of Fame, and stand first among the benefactors of his race? To impart new life and vigor to the dormant energies of a diseased scalp; to give strength and fullness to a weak and struggling growth of hair; to bring back the natural color and gloss to blesched and faded locks, are no ordinary achievements, since chemists and therapentics have sought in vam to accomplish them for centuries. All honor, then, to the discoverer of the new hair restorative, Carboline; and let one and all join in expressing a higher appreciation of the uses and possibilities of that wonderful product of petroleum which contains the elements that work such mysterious and gratifying changes.
