Drs. T. Loeber and Jas. Jones, of New Orleans, were before the Yellow Fever Commission in New Orleans, and gave it as their opinion that yellow fever was indigenous to that place, and it had not been proved that the epidemic of last summer was caused by importation. Dr. Loeber believed in the germ theory, and that "the best means of prevention are by a thorough hygienic system, such as is in operation in New York and Baltimore, where I believe germs to have been indigenous, and where I believe these were eradicated by strenuous sanitary regulations." Dr. Jones favored strongly a rigid quarantine.

If all the "stalwarts" in the North do not fly to arms then their manifood is gone forever. Since the Pilgrims landed at the historic "rock" no outrage comparable to that in Maine has been perpetrated. In this glorious nineteenth century it is a solemn and painful fact that a thoroughly Radical legislative body was compelled by "force of circumstances" to elect a Democrat as Governor. If a revolution is not at once inaugurated then the Maine rivers will freeze over (if not already filled with solid 10e) and Jim Blaine will "faint" and that without a remedy. But it was not "a Southern outrage."

ARMORY WILMINGTON LIGHT INFANTRY, WILMINGTON, N. C., Jan. 1, 1879.

At a recent meeting of the active and honorary members of this Company, together with the members of its Veteran Corps, the undersigned were appointed a committee to take into consideration the question of perpetuating the organization. After due consideration of the work before them, it was resolved to issue the following CIRCULAR To the Citizens of Wilmsngton In the discharge of our duty as a com-mittee of the Wilmington Light Infantry having under consideration measures to preserve its existence and vitality, we have determined to set forth to you some facts in reference to the organization, and to couple therewith an carnest appeal for countenance and assistance.

While the history of this Company is familiar to nearly all, and its name a houses hold word to many among us, still we deem appropriate some reference thereto.

Organized in 1853, for the eight years of its ante bellum existence it was the pride of our city, and held the first rank among the volunteer militia of the State. Embracing in its ranks the very flower of our young chivalry, as might have been expected, at the first distant sound of hostilities, it was among the foremost to offer its services to the Governor of the State.

Entering service on the 15th day of April, 1861, it was not until the sad surrender at Appomattox that its energies were spent and its organization overwhelmed in the general disaster. These four years of active participation in the field wrought many and varied changes. Those in its membership however, were due to the constant tide of promotion of its old, well drilled, discipined and competent men to command fresh troops which the emergencies of the times were constantly calling forth. It was a very nursery of officers for the Confederate service, and we conscientiously believe that there was scarcely a single non-commissioned officer or private who went with the command to Fort Caswell in April, 1861, and who continued in service, but who obtained some commission from the grade of Lieutenant to that of full Colonel (of the

With such a record as this, and with so honorable a corps of veterans remaining, no wonder there were repeated attempts after the war to revive this organization. It was not, however, until March, 1875, that this was permanently accomplished. For nearly four years has the present organization struggled on, amid almost overwhelming difficulties, to maintain its permanency, efficiency, drill and discipline. By the wise protective enactment of our Legislature it has become a part of a military system, being embraced within the State Guard. Under the laws giving birth and effectiveness to this system there are certain requirements laid upon the individual companies. There is but one, however, which our present purpose renders neces-sary to mention. To retain the arms furnished by the State the active, effective membership must be kept up to a certain standard of members; and, plainly speaking, without some more generous countenance from the citizens at large there is the rock upon which the present organization is likely to be wrecked The sentiments of a great majority of this free people are against large standing armies in times of peace, and in favor of a well-appointed system of militia; and this the Government of North Carolina is endeavoring successfully to provide in the creation of its State Guard. Domestic violence is likely to occur in certain contingencies, which the strong arm of military power, perhaps, alone can quell; and what more effective agency could we seek in such emergencies than a volunteer militia, well armed and disciplined, embracing the best of our own citizens? And the moral protectiveness of such organiza« tion extends itself to a community in all periods of its existence. Without elaboration, we trust our citizens, of all classes, will see and recognize the importance of protection to themselves in the continuance and perpetuity of well-disciplined volunteer military companies, fostered and encouraged as they are by the laws of the State.

We therefore confidently appeal to our citizens at large to give to the Wilmington Light Infantry that encouragement of which it now stands in urgent need. We beg of them not only to recognize the practical fact of protection it offers, but to cherish it as a matter of pride to themselves. The immediate purpose of this committee is not to solicit moneyed contributions, but to invoke a broad and generous interest in behalf of the company. The first and greatest requirement is that its membership shall be swelled to seventyfive or one hundred earnest, active men. In such an event it would not only reach the highest grade of efficiency out would prove at once self-sustaining. To those representing our business community—the class of employers—we would appeal to encourage the young men in their employ to join its ranks, and allow them opportunity for occasional parades and other duties. We spare less time from business than any commercial community in this country, and that required for this purpose could be easily accorded. We know that many young men would join the Wilmington Light Infantry if the necessary encouragement was given by employers. We would also appeal to the young men themselves to earoll their names, promising them a reasonable degree of pleasure and amusement, coupled with healthful exer-cise, habits of discipline and control, and much pleasant friendly intercourse.

In conclusion, having set before you the danger which threatens the existence of the organization, we beg a general and united interest in its behalf, and confidently trust that Wilmington will not be content, in the matter of her military companies, to be behind her less important sisters, nor yet, without an effort, see one of her proude institutions fade from existence by reason of an apathetic indifference on the part of her citizens.
