Lord Beaconsfield is again reported ill. The former report was greatly exaggerated, and probably this is an exaggeration also.

Uncle Sammy Tilden sent a telegram to the Democratic banquet held in Columbus, Ohio, on the 8th. We copy the jist of the utterance of the sage of Gramercy Park:

"The 8th of January is memorable for the event and the man associated with it in our history. It is well chosen to denote and to illustrate civil liberty and the unity of the country as represented by Jefferson and Jackson. I am glad that the Democracy of Ohio revive the time-honored custom-of commemorating an anniversary so dear to the hearts of our fathers and in spirit so auspicious of promise that the people will regain all the rights of elective self-government."

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 8, 1879. At 12 o'clock the Senate was called to order by the President, Lieut. Gov. Jarvis. Progress on the Western North Carolina Ballroad. |Charlotte Observer. | From Major W. A. Hearne it learns as follows:

If no further slides occur the roadway will be ready for the track to the mouth of the Swannanoa tunnel in two weeks more. In the Swannanoa tunnel there remains a hundred and fifty lineal feet to be taken out before daylight is let through. Then the bench, for two hundred and fifty feet, taken out, will complete the big tunnel. They are progressing at the rate of twenty-five feet a week with the heading, and the whole can be completed in from six weeks to two months. As soon as the track laying reaches the Swannanoa tunnel a tramway will be laid on the bench, and iron transported through on it, and four miles of track laid on the road-bed now ready on the western slope, toward Asheville, and by the time the cars can pass through the tunnel there will be six or seven miles of track laid in Bancombe, so that by the 1st or middle of March passengers and freight can be transported at Stepp's House, in the neighborhood of Black Mountain Station.

Fears are entertained, however, of further sliding. The work already done on land slides in the mountain section would, it is said, have graded the road to Asheville.

The work of grading is progressing quite rapidly beyond the ridge on toward Asheville, and once across the mountain there are no serious obstructions in the way of a satisfactory progress of the Western North Carolina Railroad.

> North Carolina. (Swedesboro, N. J., Times.)

This State is certainly the most remarkable in the Union for wonders that startle the world. Notwithstanding her sister State, South Carolina, calls her citizens "tar heels," "Rip Vans," etc., she is not always asleep. Lord Cornwallis found her ready to meet his red jackets with their squirrel guns and long range rifles. He dreaded the track of the barefoot North Carolina yeomanry, so much so that in one of his letters he stated that his men would rather "face the devil than these North Carolina bushwhackers." The Declaration of Independence was first drawn up in Mecklenburg county in 1775. In this county is found the gold At 12 o'clock Mr. John D. Cam- gold dellars, so much in de-

What a stupendous aggregation of physical identity is presented by four brothers, a tower of solid flesh and things, nearly 40 feet high, and weighing 1,800 pounds! Kentucky yields it with a blush.

Mayer's Court.

This temple of justice was adorned yesterday by the presence of a greater number of officials than criminals. And yet the tide of wrong-doing swept into the presence of the august magistrate of the law two persons who needed something stronger than meral sussion. The first was Peter Coleman, before the Mayor on the charge of obtaining goods under false pretences from the store of Mr. J. W. Moody, on Fourth street, near the Brooklyn Market. The facts developed were of such a character as to lead to his being turned over to a magis trate, who transferred him to jail, in the absence of an important witness, for a future hearing.

Next in order came Edward Nielson charged with being disorderly and drunk He was invited to subscribe to the city debt in the sum of $5, which he did cheerfully and then retired.

Branswick County Coming Out. The negroes on the plantation of Dr. J D. Bellamy, in Brunswick county, are considerably excited over two elopements in high colored life which occurred there recently. John Davis, the overseer of the plantation, ran away with a dusky damsel and left a wife and three children to scuffle for themselves; and a hand on the place emulating the deeds of his superior officer, eloped later on the same day, also leaving wife and several children to fight the battle of life unassisted by a husband and father's strong arm and cherishing protection.

The steamer Passport brought the remains of six soldiers to the city yesterday afternoon, from Smithville, with a view to their deposit in the National Cemetery. "Oh, ye gods and little fishes!" Didn't he look when they -Of course our Masonic friends helped him out? He was always sweet, but is now, if not a wiser, a decidedly "sweeter" man, and will probably be the beau of the hop to-night. The worst part of the affair is that the side-whiskers had to be shorn off. A sad affliction, but one in which he has the sympathy of all his friends.

Magistrate's Court.

The Magistrates of the city were enabled yesterday to indulge in a "nap" at will. We attacked them throughout the day, but, in spite of their charitable natures, they were necessitated to deny us the criminal food sought. Justice Hill, however, prevented a proclamation of famine, newsically considered. He had before him Lorenzo and Mary Durham, charged with forcible trespass. The evidence was deemed insufficient, and the accused were discharged, prosecutor in the case to pay costs.

The same magistrate heard another charge against Lorenzo, that of an assault with intent to commit rape. The object of Lorenzo's alleged infatuation was a little girl, six or seven years old. The investigation occupied about three hours, when the warrant was dismissed, the Justice de ciding that there was nothing elicited to justify a continuance of the case. Subsequently, however, the accused was are raigned on the charge of assault-a light jaw-boxing operation-and he was required o pay the costs.

Explosion of a Kerosene Lamp

Dreadtul Case of Burning. Night before last, about 11 o'clock, another burning horror occurred in this city. The victim in this instance was Jane Mc-Nell, wife of Joseph McNeil, a very respectable colored man, who resides on the southeast corner of Nun and Sixth streets. It appears that, lamp in hand, she had passed from the kitchen to the main building, and was in the act of placing the lamp on the mantle-piece, when a gust of wind came down the chimney and caused it to explode. The oil was thrown over her clothes and on her person, and in a twinkling she was on fire. In her sad plight she ran up stairs, then out into and around the yard, where she fell prostrate. On examination it was ascertained that she was badly burned about her hands, the flesh literally pealing off, and that the flames had also injured her face, though Dr. W. J. H. Bellamy, who is attending her, is confident that they did not harm her

The Gale Yesterday. It is gratifying to record the fact that so far no accidents have been reported to life or limb from the severe blow of yesterday. In the city, at various points, fences were prostrated, shutters torn from their fastenings, loose, light shingles sent kite-like through the air, and at least one brick wall blown down. The late fire on North Water street, which routed Messrs. Willard Bros. & Mebane, so weakened by heat the wall of the building adjoining it on the south, that it was deemed dangerous, and yesterday it came down by degrees, thus justifying the apprehensions previously entertained The only consolation is that mentioned above, that no other harm was done by the storm than injury to property, and that the repair of damages will be a small matter, except in the solitary case of Mr. Pembroke Jones, whose loss is greater than that of all others, so far as we are advised.
