More About the Ney Question.

[New York World, 11th.] A Herald correspondent has in the wilds of Iredell county, N. C., "accu-mulated a mass of details bearing upon the singular career of one Peter Stuart Ney, who for thirty years taught school in that mountainous region, and departed this life in 1846, leaving upon his pupils and friends the general belief that he was none other than the 'bravest of the brave,' Michel Ney, Marshal of France, Duke of Elchingen and Prince of Moskva." This is indeed an interesting fiction, else we should not have found room for it in the World two years ago, when we also made space for a brief but conclusive exposition of the fact that this North Carolina pedagogue, a highly educated mortal, much given to copying verses out of Tom Moore, was not and could not have been identical with the heroic but illiterate Prince of Moskva who was shot to death in the Garden of the Luxembourg, December 7, 1815, at the age of forty-six. Fever Still Troubling

South. [Louisville Courier-Journal, Monday.] We have reports from Tennessee and Mississippi which are calculated to create deep apprehension. They are to the effect that during the last two or three weeks there have been in these States a number of cases of vellow fever and some deaths. It is believed the disease has been caused by the disinterment and removal of persons who died last summer of the fever. It has heretofore been believed that it was impossible for yellow fever to exist when the mercury had reached the freezing point; and if the germs of the disease have not been effectually destroyed by the severely freezing weather of this winter much uneasiness is naturally felt as to what will be the consequences next summer.

The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. Sole Proprietor and Manufacturer of E. R. CON-EIT'S TABLE SAUCE, 287 to 295 W. Third Street, CINCINNATI, O. Pad Company's Remedies.

There convened, on the 8th day of January, 1879, (Prof. D. A. Loomis, M. D., chairman), at the head office of the Holman Liver Pad Co., 93 William at., New York, a large delegation—a first general reunion—consisting of all the many important agents of the United States, the Canadas, and representatives from Europe and Asia, for the specific purpose of reviewing the pros and cons of the past practical workings of this wonderful system of successfully treating disease by absorption without the use of medicine, as illustrated in the Holman Liver Pad Co.'s remedies, and in a united manner to decide what course in future should, in their jadgment be adopted as the best and speediest plan to meet the great and increasing demand that is daily manifested from every quarter of the globe—not only for the remedies, but also to learn the proper mode of utilizing them.

great and increasing demand that is daily manifested from every quarter of the globe—not only for the remedies, but also to learn the proper mode of utilizing them.

Much time and attention were faithfully given to hearing the many interesting reports of the wonderful efficacy found in this way of treating disease wherever it had been faithfully used. The subject took a wide and extended range. It was found from these official sources that nearly every kind of incurable disease known to the human system, so far as it had come within their knewledge, had been successfully treated to a marvelous degree, and to an extent never before known in the history of medicine; and that the number of its patrons during the short time since its introduction was unsprecedented; that it long since ceased to be an experiment, and its success should forever stand a burning disgrace to the medical faculty that it had not for ages past availed itself of a principle—Nature's own law, illustrated in every portion of the human body, and the entire economy of nature; as old as the universe, as fixed as any natural law can be, and unalterably certain in its good results as a treatment when properly utilized; with little or no difference as to climate or nationality in its uniformity of action. What makes it more precious still is that its comparative small expense brings it within the reach of all. It is now attracting the attention and receiving the endorsement of every farmined physician wherever an opportunity is afforded for testing its practical workings. Added to this is the fact that many distinguished in their profession are now counted as ce-workers; also that an enormely army of enthusiastic friends, who have been made happy through the use of these simple remedies (a large proportion of whom have found everything else herctofore failing them), are working zealously among the afflicted, overcoming prejudice by living examples of cures; or, what is better still, the successful prevention of disease. It was clearly demonstrated cause also that, to a certain extent, it is contrary (as they claim) to their business interests on account of its cheapness and rapid effect. And with rare exceptions, it has been the studied efforts of druggists to decry their merits, to discourage their use, or a refusal to explain or answer inquiries; also to encourage other remedies, or substitute an inferior article—a counterfeit or imitations—some a dangerous poisen, others as passive and useless as so much sawdust; also to throw every obstacle in the way of local agents by underquoting and underselling, down to starvation prices, with the view of forcing them to abandon their blessed work. These and many other practices that are a dishonor to any profession have caused this Company and its many agents in convention to pass resolutions, unanimously adopted, to the effect that hereafter the Holman Liver Pad Co.'s remedies will be sold only by such agents as shall be found properly accredited by this Company. This decision opens up a large and wide field of usefulness to good and efficient persons everywhere, and on a basis of pecuniary results that warrant little or no risk in the enterprise, the particulars of which can always be learned by making application to the office nearest them; those having felt or seen the practical workings of these remedies always preferred.

This Company and its general agents mean by these acts to be understood that in the future as in the past, without fear or favor, they intend to disseminate useful knowledge, heretofore by nearly all medical schools designedly made dark and obscure; and also in every manner within their power try to do the greatest good in the least possible time to suffering humanity everywhere, and the public are earnestly cautioned to be on their guard, in simple justice and protection to themselves and this Company, to show a total discountenance and contempt for any and all combinations of individual adventurers (always sinister in their motives) who hereafter thrust any substitutes in opposition to
