CONGRESS-SPECIAL SESSION.

Senate Not in Session-Sparring Exhibition in the House-The Great Struggle Ended-Decisive Triumph of the Democracy-Large Majority of Greenbackers with the Dominant

[By Telegraph to the Morning Star.] WASHINGTON, April 5 .- The Senate is

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. The House met at 11 o'clock in continusnoe of Friday's session, and immediately went into Committee of the Whole on the Army appropriation bill.

Mr. Sparks, of Illinois, called attention to an article in the Chicago Inter-Ocean, containing an account of an interview with President Hayes, by Mr. Davis, of Chicago, in which the latter gave the assurance that the President would stand firmly by the President would stand firmly by the Republicans; that he had waited upon the President, as requested, and that there is no reason to believe that the President will disappoint the loyal people of the country. For himself (Davis) he was "enlisted for the war."

Mr. Sparks went on to say that it seemed that the President is troubled with some spinal disease, which rendered it necessary for the stalwart members of his party to try to cure it. He asked fair-minded men to read the articles published in the great metropolitan journal of the northwest, and say whether there was not an effort made there to coerce the President into the extreme measures of extreme members of par- | tion, &c. ty, and yet, in spite of all that, the city of Chicago had just given a Democratic majority of 4,823 to Carter Harrison—("our own Carter," he called him)—and that was characterized by the Chicago Inter-Ocean as a "victory for the Democrats and howling rebels," (Laughter.) In place of putting ramrods into the President's backbone, all the marrow and stiffness had been taken out of the Republicans. That Democratic victory in Chicago was the first popular response from that Republican city, and i was startling in its character.

Mr. Caswell, of Wisconsin, reminded Mr. Sparks that on the same day Wisconsin had given an increased Republican majority of over 6,000. To that Mr. Bragg, of Wisconsin, sponded in a manner that elicited loud applause from the Democratic side. Then Mr. Chittenden, of New York, made an impassioned speech, sneering at the ket.' Greenbackers, and telling the Democrats H.

The amendment offered yesterday by Mr. New, of Indiana, that the repeal shall not abridge or effect the right and duty of places are now affected the Executive to respond to the call of a to-85 to 3, the Republicans refraining from voting on either side.

Mr. Lowe, of Alabama, moved to strike out section 6 from the bill. Mr. Conger, of Michigan, suggested to the other side of the House that if that were done his side would aid them in passing immediately, without debate, a separate bill repealing entirely the so-called objec-tionable sections of the statutes. Mr. McMahon, of Ohio, speaking for himself, repudiated the proposition.

In the course of the debate, Mr. Cox, of New York, stated that he had in the Democratic councils favored a repeal of the obnoxious measures in an independent bill, but that he had been overruled and that he had acquiessed in the superior wisdom, but not the superior experience of others. He expected that if the President vetoed the bill, the Senate would send to the House repeal bills pure and simple, and then there would be a chance of festing the sincerity of the Republican

Mr. Aiken, of S.C., said that in the Fortyfifth Congress the gentleman from Ohio [Garfield) had said that whoever attempted to raise sectional issues as a platform for 1880 would find himself greatly mistaken, and when that gentleman was in the Fortys Sixth Congress and denounced the majority coming from the South as revolutionary, he (Aiken) could see no candor in the man or his position. Following the leadership of that gentleman, the gentleman from Arkansas (Haskell) had condemned the acts of Southern men, but he had forgotten to tell that, after Republican rule of twenty years, within the last ten days citizens of his own State had hanged a negro, burned him at the stake, and danced to bacchanalian music around his pyre. The House had also had the "nigger catcher" from Connecticut, Hawley-gentlemen would excuse the expression-who had said: "You, gentlemen of the South, are relying upon treacherous friends. You must knew that in the Northern States all the patriotism, all the intelligence, and all the capital belong to the Republican party." If that gentleman was half as wise as he thought be was, and knew anything about the Southern States, he must know that all the intelligence, all the property, all the virtue, and all the wealth there belonged to the Democratic party. [Applause on the Democratic side.] He had heard from men of eminence constitutional argus ments, but he had only to listen from which side of the House the voice came to know the convictions of the speaker, and that had led him to believe that there was not so much constitutional construction required about the matter. The law which it was proposed to repeal had been a partisan measure, passed by a partisan Congress for the purpose of uphelding partisan power. In 1868 he had been permitted, for the first time after the war, to vote but on going to the polls found a sentine guarding the approach to the ballot box and an officer secreted behind the bex. He thereupon refused to vote, saying that no freeman would vote under duress. [Derisive laughter on Republican side.]
There had been no Democratic votes cast at that poll. In 1872 he had gone to another poll and found soldiers quartered within fifty yards of the ballot-box, and not a Republican vote was cast at that poll. Why? Because they had understood the military were Democrats and had taken the liberty of net voting under dures. (Laughter and applause on the Democratic side.)

Mr. Conner, of S. C., arraigned the Republican party for its partisan legislation, and said the renowned champion of the Opposition (Garfield) charged the Demoof American institutions and American civilizaton.

The "Border Ruffian" history of Kansas was revived in speeches by Mr. Aiken, of South Carolina, and Haskell, of Mr. Cameron, of Ill., asked Mr. Sparks to allow him an opportunity to have a yea and may vote on the repealing section.

Mr. McMahon objected, and the bill then passed—yeas 148, nays 122—a strict party

Action of the House Committee on Rules-The Work Done.

[By Telegraph to the Morning Star.] WASHINGTON, April 5. - The House Committee on Rules, who have under consideration the proposition to increase the membership of several of the most important Standing Committees of the House, met this morning and authorized Mr. Blackburn to report to the House in favor of increasing the Committee on Elections from eleven, as at last Congress, to fifteen; Ways and Means from eleven to thirteen; Appropristions from eleven to fifteen; Commerce from eleven te fifteen; Judiciary from eleven to fifteen; Agriculture from eleven to fifteen, and fixing the membership of the Committee on Enrolled bills at seven, instead of nine, as at the last session

The proposition to increase the Printing committee was considered, but it was found that the law fixed the membership of that committee at three, in conformity with like committee of the Senate, the two to act jointly when by so doing measures referred o them can be better facilitated.

The committee took no action on the proposed distribution of the several annual appropriation bills among committees having like subjects in charge, but it is very probable that when the question of increasng the committee on Appropriations is laid before the House, some controversy will arise, and that those favoring a division of the work of appropriations will propose to commit to the Military committee appropriations for the Army and all pranches of the military service, to the Naval committee appropriations for the naval service, and to the Commerce committee appropriations relating to naviga-

A Fact.

OUR PEOPLE NEVER FULLY APPRECIATED the benefits of "RECONSTRUCTION," until they saw it applied to an Old Suit of Clothing, as Dyed, Cleaned and Repaired at the WILMINGTON DYEING ESTABLISHMENT, Market Street, between 2d and 3d. Ladies Dresses Dyed in all the New Shades of Elue, Brown and Plum. Kid Gloves cleaned at 15c a pair.
