General Bragg is a strong enemy of the so-called Southern Claims. He has proposed to repeal the law of 1871 creating the Southern Claims Commission. The loyalists who have been doing a heavy business to the injury of the South are greatly troubled about their prospects. Il Bragg is sustained there will be no more money used in paying for property destroyed in the South belonging to people who were traiters to honor, to kin, to country and themselves. He is chairman of the com mittee on War Claims.

We learn from the Washington special to the Richmond (Va.) State that the opinion "upon the whole' concerning the merits of the standing committees is one "of more general satisfaction than is usual." Mr. Randall appears to have been generous and forgiving. The special says:

"Cox, of New York, who vowed he would never vote for Randall for Speaker, did vote for him after he was nominated, and his vote was necessary to make a ma-jority, is the only man who has been hon-ored with two chairmanships, (Foreign Affairs and Census), both committees of importance and having plerks. Another bitter enemy, helits, or Texas, is raised from the Committee on Territories to a place on Ways and Means; and Ellis, not less violent, is put on a good committee. Hooker, of Mississippi, who may be put in the same class with these, was left out in the cold. The Virginians, Tucker, Goode, Cabell and Hunton, who actively opposed Randall, are all given chairmanships except Tucker, and he is assigned the next best place on Ways and Means."

Ten new men are made chairmen viz: McLane, Converse, Wise, Whiteaker, Coffreth, Stevenson, Ladd Duester, Hosterlary and Geddes. O these the special says:

"Whiteaker is the Oregon Democrat who made the famous theusand mile ride in a special train from San Francisco in order to get to Washington in time to vote for Speaker. He is made chairman of Revolutionary Pensions."

In our brief and necessarily very 12 feet through the body, and 20 feet across imperfect notice of Gen. Dick Taylor the tail; the blubber or fat was 19 inches we were enabled to give no facts in his career and no dates. We have not yet seen any full sketch. He was born in Louisiana, about 1823 or 24 we think, and was graduated at ducts arising from her. The calf had not Yale College in 1844. His grandfather was Col. Richard Taylor, of the Revolutionary War, and was a Virginian, as was his father, President Taylor. We find in the Richof his war record: "At the outbreak of secession he was chosen a member of the Louisiana Convention, and signed the ordinance of secession, as he had advocated the measure. He was early in the war appointed to the command of a Louisiana brigade in the Army of Northern Virginia. In the later years of the war he was made a lieutenant-general and appointed to the command of an army in Northern Louisians, where in two splendidly fought battles in July, 1864, at Sabine Cross Roads and Pleasant Hill, he defeated and almost destroyed a gallant army of 30,000 mea commanded by Gen.

N. P. Banks, and was very near capturing Admiral Porter's fleet in Red river. He surrendered to Canby, at Mobile, in 1865, which surrender closed the war. He has been living in retirement of late years in Virginia, occasionally visiting Europe, and passing much of his time in New York and Washington, where he was always welcome from his genial nature.

The excitement yesterday afternoon centered at the old Fair Grounds, where quite a crowd, graced by the presence of a number of young ladies, assembled to witness a trotting race between "Billy," a dark | utes, and the remainder of the family are bay horse lately imported by a young gentleman of this city, and the bay mare "Emma," which is known and admired by all the horse fanciers in Wilmington.

There were ten private teams on the ground, any one of which could make a mile inside of 3.50, and ours which could also make it in 3.50, i. e., three hours and fifty minutes. The new horse is quite a handsome animal, and is a fine traveller. He is owned by Mr. Berry Binferd, and reflects credit on his owner's judgment of horse flesh.

The race was a mile dash to light road wagens, and was easily won by "Emma," though her owner is confident that with a few weeks care and training he can push the mare closely, and we are likely to have another race between them.

There were several apurts between other plyers after the appointed race was over, but "Emma" had apparently little difficulty in leading all, though it was said "That if old 'Shipwreck' had not died, he would have left everything behind."

Without particularizing, we may claim that the pulpit efforts at all the points mentioned were creditable to the culture, plety and zeal of the different ministers again attieve The space at our command will not permit us the privilege of referring separately to the decorations of the different houses of worship. It would perplex any fairminded paragraphist to discriminate between them. It is enough to say that continuous wreaths of evergreens, tastefully arranged around the walls and along the choir fronts, and beautiful flowers ornameting alters and other portions of the interior of the edifices, made up a Sabbath holiday attire for our places of worship happily symbolizing the joyous occasion.

Destruction and Reconstruction.

DERSONAL EXPERIENCE OF THE LATE
I WAR. By RICHARD TAYLOR, Lieutenant General in the Confederate Army.
"As a writer he is vigorous, sparkling, erudite, and entertaining to a degree. His opportunities for the observation of men and things have been such as few possessed, and he has made good use of them. Of course he views the late war from a Southerner's standpoint, but both sides receive ceasure at his hands. The great interest in his book to many will, no doubt, be the sharpness with which he criticises men and measures. Where book to many will, no doubt, be the sharpness with which he criticises men and measures. Where least expected, he pours forth batteries of sarcasm and denunciation, and spares no one whom he thinks deserves showing up."—N. Y. Herald.
