Todleben has assumed command at Odessa under the Czar's ukase establishing martial law. -In the English House of Commons a bil was read a second time for establishment of volunteer regiments in Ireland upon same statutery conditions as regulate English volunteer organization. -- The House discussed yesterday the eight-hour law, and afterwards considered the coinage bill to adjournment. - The Spofford-Kellogg Senatorial contest case has been disposed believed in Washington that the President will sign the bill to prevent military interference with elections. — New York markets: Money 2@21 per cent.; cotton steadyst 121@124 cents; flour more active at $5 00@6 75; wheat irregular and unsettled; corn } cent better, with light supply; spirits turpentine firmer at 29\(\frac{1}{29}\) cents; rosin quiet at $1 32\(\tilde{0}\)1 37\(\frac{1}{2}\).

Representative James, Republicau, of New York, has been stricken with paralysis. His lower limbs and one side are helpless, but his mind is clear.

Mr. James R. Randall, the poet editor of Georgia, has gone to Wash ington and will be the correspondent of the Augusta Chronicle, with which he is connected.

Representative Kitchin has introduced a bill providing that in certain cases employers may pay those in their service in tobacco or cigars without paying license tax.

- The following paragraph in the special to the State has interest: "Atkins, chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, has obtained leave of absence and pair for two weeks, which looks as if no appropriation bill is to be reported in the House for a fortnight at least."

The Senate Judiciary Committee has wisely and justly decided to report adversely upon the appointment of D. T. Corbin as Chief Justice of Utab Territory. His appointment by Hayes was an outrage upon decency and learning. But then he is quite as good as most of his other selections. Hayes, you know, is a great civil service reformer.

The Charleston News and Courier's Washington correspondent writes on the 4th that there will be no backdown-that none is intended or contained in the separate bill or bills to be proposed to the President-that the Democrats are better organized, more united and more enthusiastically backed by their constituents than ever before. This is about the substance of a letter that would make a column of the STAR. Such are the cheering words from Senator Hampton. He thinks that a back-down would be well nigh ruineus.

The Philadelphia Press-bitter organ-says the Republican conference "showed a disposition to settle down to an understanding with the Executive, and to cooperate with him in whatever course his duty might suggest. This will doubtless prevail." In this connection the utterances of Secretary McCrary are of importance. He is reported by the Press as saying to Representative Frye: "While not authorized to speak for the Administration, he could say that the pending bill had in it no features that were not already covered by the election laws and the pose comitains act; that he anticipates considerable opposition to the bill by the Republicans, especially in the Senate, on the same grounds that the Republicans based their opposition to the posse comitains act."

VOL. XXIV.--NO. 38. WILMINGTON, N. C., THURSDAY, MAY 8, 1879.

WHOLE NO. 3,662

WHAT IS SAID AND DONE IN WAXHINGTON.

Conkling and Edmunds denounce the new army bill, because it is unnecessary and is a menace to the Executive. They declare it is worse than the original proposition. This is said to make weak-kneed Republicans stand up. If this bill passes farewell to the use of the army to back up deputy marshals when engaged in duty, lawful or otherwise. The Republican caucus was a necessity and it was not altogether harmonious. Washington accounts say there were Republicans who were disposed to vote for the bill. They thought the President would sign, and it was useless to oppose it. The Stalwarts are reported as fighting on this line, according to the Washington letter in the Richmond State:

"On the other hand, it was said, Why should we surrender when we have the enemy at our feet? Why accept in the disguise of this bill that which we rejected so recently as revolutionary? Are not the appropriations still withheld as a menace to the President?

"Edmunds made a long and strong speech, claiming that the bill was a blow at national authority, and was concocted as a threat.

"Edmunds was frequently applauded, and it is said he converted a good many who had gone to the caucus ready to vote for the bill because they saw nothing objectionable.

"Conkling opposed the bill chiefly because it was a menace to the Executive, which the Democrats had well as white men worked cheerfully and hatched out after a dozen caucus sitecutive, which the Democrats had tings. It was a covert attack upon the national authority, an authority party, and especially distasteful to his farm, about one mile distant from this them as now constituted. If the Democrats would pass the Appropriation hills for which the Appropriation of Suffolk, Va., lectured three ation bills for which the special session was called, the Republicans would then be ready to discuss with them any other measures."

Edmunds, Frye and Robeson were appointed managers of the opposition, and a resolution toloppose the bill passed by a considerable majority. It was regarded as a conference, and is not therefore binding. The State says, "during the conference it was intimated that the President had advised Republicans who approached him on the subject yesterday not to oppose the bill, whereupon, it is said, the Stalwarts 'went for' Mr. Hayes's scalp."

Beath of a Well Known Minister. Rev. N. Z. Graves died at Warrenton, N. C., on the 3rd inst. Deceased had been a member of Wilmington Presbytery since its formation, and was connected with Fayetteville Presbytery many years previeusly. He was born in Vermont, but had spent the greater portion of his life in the South, where he was well known as an educator, having had charge of flourishing female academies in Clinton and Goldsboro, and, lastly, until laid aside from all active work by physical disability, at Warrenton. He was about 75 years of age at the time of his death.

Memorial Day. It is to be presumed that most of the stores, offices and places of business in the city will, in accordance with previous custom, be promptly closed on to-morrow at the ringing of the two o'clock bell at the Market House, in order to furnish ample time to our business men to join in the procession, which we trust will be unusually large, as the ladies, with a commendable spirit, have shown a disposition to accommodate the merchants by changing the day from Saturday to Friday. Let us pay respect to the memery of the gallant Confederates who sacrificed their lives for the "lost cause."

For the South Atlantic States, northeast to northwest winds, stationary or lower temperature, slightly higher pressure, parts ly cloudy weather, with rain on the coast, are the indications for to-day. The Great Remedy.

Some few nervous people in this city rangements for the coming Memorial Day celebration. But their conjectures are not likely to be verified. The trouble appears to have been a too hasty conclusion that the avoirdupois of one of the Marshals for that occasion would not enable him to mount our flery mustang, tendered for his use. To prevent any detraction from the grandeur of the parade, His Fleshiness has agreed to walk to the Cemetery in order to reduce his weight as much as possible, and a corn-smasher and beefsteak ripper are now engaged in the construction of a substantial derrick which will be employed as the agency by which our ponderous friend will be placed in the saddle on "Sam's" back. This mustang of ours is now fed daily with an extra bale of hay in order that he may have strength equal to his great task.

demorial Flowers. The President and officers of the Ladies' Memorial Association urgently request the citizens of Wilmington and surrounding country to send in their contributions of lowers for the decoration of the graves of their dead as early as possible on Friday next, May 9th.

The decorations will be prepared at the school room of Misses Burr and James, on Market street, in the rear of St. James' Church. The ladies generally are invited to assist in this common work of love which should be dear to every Southern heart.

Lecture on Blamarck

We learn that Professor You Jasmund - Mr. A. S. Colwell, one of the has replied favorably to the request of the er his lecture on Prince Bismarck. The material at the disposal of Professor J., no less than the fact that the career and achievements of the distinguished personage he will discuss are but meagrely known among the masses in this country, assure us that the lecture will be really entertaining and instructive.

The last fox hunt of the season will take place to-morrow morning, and from pres sent indications there will be one hunter to each fox in a radius of ten miles of Wilmington. The demand for saddle horses is unprecedented, and they say several fellows are going who haven't been on a horse in twelve months, and but two or three times in years. The number of young ladies will be larger than on any previous meeting, and there will be lots of fun if no foxes.
