Senator Ben Hill does not always speak wisely, but he generally speaks with great force and directness. He is always equal to the occasion where strength of argument and clearness of statement are needed. He is a formidable adversary, as Blaine and other Stalwarts have discovered. On Saturday he made a really powerful and effective speech in reply to Conkling et al. We copy a paragraph from a long account of it in the Washington special to the Baltimore

"WASHINGTON, May 11 .- The Senate has seldom heard such oratory and sar-casm, and seldom witnessed such striking effects of them on that body as on yesterday, when Mr. Hill, of Georgia, for four hours discussed the principles involved in the legislative and army bills. As he was compelled to go home on private business, Senator Beck, who is in charge of the legislative bill, suspended the reading in order to give him an opportunity to speak. Mr. Hill, since his amnesty speech in the House, has delivered nothing to be compared with his effort yesterday. Leaving the matter of it out of the question, it was a marvel of memory and physical en-durance. He used no notes whatever, until he came to some personal points, and yet the speech was full of citations from the constitutional framers and expounders. all arranged in the most compact and lucid argument yet heard on the Demo-cratic side of the chamber. Though he spoke for feur solid hours to a large and attentive Senate, he used no stimulants of any kind, and never resorted to the claptrap of having his quotations and illustrations read by the clerk or some brother Senator, as is the custom of Edmunds and Conkling when they make the greatest effort of their lives. He read everything bimself, and read it with astonishing vigor and success. Few men in the Senate granted that they put the same power in their speeches, could have stood such a strain, and it can only be explained on the ground that Mr. Hill is a perfect man, physically, and keeps himself so by using no liquor and going to bed at regular hours. The speech showed the prefound thought, wide information and deep general learning to be expected from such a man. He fives in an atmosphere of study and am-

The Richmond State's corsespondent says:

"It is agreed on all sides that Senator Ben Hill's speech, last Saturday, was superier to anything he has ever done in Congress before, and Republicans say it was the ablest speech made by a Democrat in either house since the present controversy began."

There is already much speculation in Washington as to what the Democrats will do next. One proposition is to add the anti-bayonet bill just vetoed to the army bill proper, and if it is vetoed then let Hayes skirmish for supplies.

Another plan is to detach the political features from the Legislative Appropriation bill and send it to Hayes. If he vetoes it, as he will, then pass the Legislative bill, pure and simple, then adjourn and leave the army without appropriations. According to the Richmond State's special, certain Senators say "That it would not be wise to fail to pass the Legislative Appropriation bill, for no matter if the President should veto the ten commandments, the Executive, Legislative and Judicial branches of the Government must be supported. They are willing, if not anxious, to make the issue on the question of military interference at elections, and believe most firmly that the people will sustain them if the President persists in vetoing a bill so plainly constitutional and right. The army cost almost as much as the entire expenses of the Government in 1860. There is one com-Government in 1860. There is one commissioned officer to every four privates, and to pay the officers requires $1,000,000 more than for the privates. The whole thing in the opinion of these gentlemen is a top-heavy humbug that the people are not anxous to preserve at such heavy expense. In the earlier history of the country the Government existed many years at a time without any army, and it can get along as well

Twenty-five pistol shots were fired and the followng were wounded: Jack Aserv shot in the abdomen, mortally; Shade Hawes, in head and hip; Coiny, wounded in scalp; Tug Smith, a by-stander, slightly in hand. Thievery in the Country-The Guilty Party Arrested in Payetteville. On Friday morning last Mrs. Dougald McMillan, at Sloop Point, had the sum of $31 stolen from her. Subsequently it was ascertained that one Albert Jessup, colored, had gone to the house of a neighboring colored man and deposited $31 with him, stating that Mr. McMillan had just paid it to him for some work he had done for him, it being understood that the next day they would come to this city together. This fact came to the knowledge of Mr. McMillan on Sunday, and a telegram was immediately sent over the signal station wires to the Chief of Police, requesting him to be on the lookout for the thief. The Fayetteville boats were watched, there being reasons for believing that he would take that direction, and, thinking that possibly Jessup might have left on Saturday's boat, Chief Brock also telegraphed to the Town Marshal of Fayetteville, and (recieving no reply) subesquently to the Mayor, asking if anything had been seen of him about Fayetteville. Yesterday morning an answer was received from the marshal stating that Jessup had been arrested and was thrown in jail. Thereupon Mr. H. J. McMillan went before Justice Hall and made the requisite affidavit, upon which a warrant was issued, the seal of the county placed thereon, and Mr. McMillan deputized to execute it upon the alleged thief. Mr. M. left for Fayetteville on yesterday's boat, and will probably arrive here in a few days with his pris-

The Excursion Season.

From present appearances this will be a good week for excursions, certainly in point of numbers, as will be seen by reference to our advertising columns. The first on the list is an excursion to the Blackfish Grounds, on the steamer Passport, or Thursday, the 15th inst. A large crowd will certainly go on the excursion with every prospect of rare sport, that is if they don't get sick. If you have never been, go by all means. If you have and can get off we know you will go. If you prefer fresh water fishing, on a smooth sheet of water, you can go to Waccamaw Lake, on Friday, the 15th, on the excursion of the Front Street M. E. Church Sunday School. The fare has been placed at a very low figure, and a large crowd is expected, for which there will be ample accommodations. An excursion to the Lake is always pleasant, as a delightful trip on the cars, the usual pleasures incidental to a pic-nic, a sail on the Lake, or a fine day's fishing, as you may elect, may be had.

For Saturday, May 17th, Prof. F. M. Agostini announces an excursion to Smitha ville and the forts. The Italian string band will furnish music for dancing, and refreshments may be had at reasonable prices. A trip down the river at this season of the year is particularly pleasant in itself, and with the opportunity of visiting the forts is made additionally enjoyable. The children taking part in the Cantata of Aladdin are requested to bring their costumes, as they are to be photographed, in groups, at the fort.

A Bloody Assault.

The only excitement about the wharves yesterday was caused, about twenty minutes to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, by an assault upon an old colored man, by the name of Jim Bell, in the employment of Messrs. B. F. Mitchell & Son. It seems that he was engaged in loading a dray, at the warehouse of his employers, near the foot of Princess street, when he got into a dispute with one Nat Hill, an extra hand that had just been engaged, during which the latter suddenly seized a stick and struck the old man a blow with it, which felled him to the pavement. His fellow workmen soon gathered around him, (except Hill, who had fled), and lifted up his head (he minded that they have only six days in having fallen with his face downward upon the brick pavement), when it was found that he had received two or three severe cuts, from which the blood was flowing in streams. By the aid of plenty of cold water, however, the flow of blood was in a measure stopped, when the poor man was taken to the nearest physician. It is said that one of the cuts was received in the fall to the payement, the others being made by Hill with the stick.

We learn that the matter was subsequently taken before Justice Hall and disposed of by him.

Dedication of Menument-Excursion,

Tuesday next, the 20th inst., at which time the monument to the memory of the gallant pilets of Smithville, who lost their lives in the discharge of their perilous duty, is to be dedicated, will be adopted as the occasion of an excursion to Smithville and Fort Caswell, on the steam yacht Passport, under the auspices of the Sunday School of the Fifth Street M. E. Church. Rev. Mr. Yates, of the Front Street M. E. Church, is to deliver the dedicatory address, that wing roll ingel return value

A Horse Thief Among Us-Riforts to Capture Him.

On Saturday morning last a colored man by the name of John Bernard, said to be a resident of this city, appeared at Rocky Point with quite a valuable horse for sale, which was finally purchased by a colored resident at the Point by the name of Anthony Merrick, who paid Bernard $85 for the animal. On Sunday morning a gentleman from Duplin put in his appearance and claimed the horse as his own, stating that he had been stolen from his stables and accurately describing him before he had seen him. In the meantime a telegram had been sent to Chief of Police Brock by the owner of the horse, requesting that official to keep a sharp look out for the thief. Accordingly a posse started out to try to capture the fellow, who got on his track Sunday night and came very near taking him, but he finally gave them the slip and has not since been heard from.

Bernard stated to Merrick that the horse was formerly owned on the sound, and was used in bringing fish and oysters to market before he purchased him.

Burgiary and Robbery. The kitchen on the premises, corner e Third and Davis streets, occupied by Geo. Wedge, colored, which was entered and robbed of $36.70 some months ago, was again raided upon Monday night, during the owner's absence, the thief carrying off a fine black cloth suit, n pair of gloves. some handerchiefs, and possibly other things which have not yet been missed Wedge left his room about dusk, and on returning, about 2 o'clock in the morning, discovered that the staples to his door had been drawn, the other fastenings removed, and the house thoroughly ransacked. Fortunately, however, the thief was unable to force open a trunk, which was attempted, or his loss might have been much groater.
