litical outlook in Washington is interesting. The correspondent of the Baltimore Gazette, of date of 22d. writes:

"The signs of 'weakening,' so-called, appear only among the Southern members of the two Houses, while the Eastern and Western Democrats seem almost unanimous in favor of standing square up to the issue made by the President. The conservatism among the Southern members is not unnatural under the circumstances, and can readily be appreciated. It is anticipated that the next caucus will be the most interesting one held since the meeting of Congress, and it is believed that whatever else may be decided upon, a majority will declare in favor of a speedy adjournment. If it be decided by the caucus to pass no appropriation for the army, it is not thought that the President can gain anything by calling Congress siderable convenience to the trade. in favor of standing square up to the issue

Disgusted Darkey.

We are told of quite an amusing incident that occurred at one of our freight depots a day or two since, in which a negro and a young alligator were the actors. It seems that a freight conductor had caught a baby 'gator, between two or three feet in length, while his train was laying at some point along the road. In order to effect the capture it was necessary to lodge a pistol ball in his 'gatorship's head, which, while it did not entirely destroy his natural amiability, yet had the effect of considerably reducing the temperature of its exercise. As practical experiments abundantly exemplified. however, he was no nursing kitten for all the weight of lead in his head. Probably for no other reason than that of the pleasure of possessing so handsome a pet, our conductor brought his amphibious possession to this city and gave him lodgings in his cab or "shanty" car, as it is familiarly termed. The morning following the capture, one of the sable train hands was engaged in scouring the floor of the car, and forgetting for the time the presence of the unusual fellow occupant, he unconsciously struck the wounded reptile a blow with his broom. The astounded darkey was only reminded of the disagreeable presence by seeing the terrible thing leaping over a chair with extended jaws in his immediate direction, while he found himself with almost lightning-like rapidity going through the door of the car backwards, across the platform and over the railing to KERCHNER & CALDER BROS. - Spirit the friendly earth awaiting his descent upon its charitable lap. Leaping immediately to his feet and exhibiting a countenance in which fright and disgust equally contended for expression, he flung his hat upon the ground, and with the air of one who had fully made up his mind, thus relieved his overcharged feelngs in speech: "I'll be d-d, if de Cap'en aint just a got me to discharge or to tuk dat ting outen dis hear car. God knows dar aint room in dere for boph of us. One or de udder of us is gwine to leave sho!"

Important Arrival.

The faces of various yacht owners, bright for days past in anticipation of victory on Thursday, have assumed a serious expression. They know full well what hard work is in store for them-how severe must be the struggle-how scientific the management, to beat the famous yacht Annie.

Yesterday afternoon, just after it was noised abroad that this well known yacht would be entered in Thursday's regatta, great excitement prevailed and many bets on the Rosa, Ripple, Lizzie and Frolic were withdrawn.

We heard one captain express himself thus: "Don't you see! the Annie, in the hands of the oldest member of the Club, can easily beat anything on the Cape Fear

The Memorial Picture. The illustration in the last issue of Fran Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, intended to represent the scene in and around the Confederate Cemetery during the memorial services on the 10th of May, 1879, which we noticed vesterday at Harriss' news stand, gives but a very faint idea of the reality, so far as the crowd present is concerned, bu we must make some allowance for the fact that the picture had to be twisted around by the engraver so as to bring the prominent features to the front. The monument and statue in the picture are a very good reproduction from the original of the Wil mington artists, Messrs. Yates and Orr.

Runaway and Run Over. Last night, about 12 o'clock, a horse belonging to Mr. George Myers ran away with his colored rider at the corner of Front and Market streets, and ran over a colored pedestrian named Joe Sellars. The horse took fright at the rattling of some dishes in a basket earried by his rider, and relieved himself of his burden by throwing dishes, man and basket over his head. He soon afterwards struck Sellars, knocking him down and throwing him a distance of several feet. The unfortunate man was picked up by several policemen and his wants attended to, and a physician sent for. The opinion of the crowd gathered around him when we left was divided as to whether he was most injured by the knock down or the bad whiskey which the general perfume of his immediate vicinity evidenced he had freely imbibed. Athalia Wednesday Night. On Wednesday evening next, the 28th inst., as per announcement in this issue, Racine's beautiful drams, entitled "Athaha," will be rendered by the pupils of the Academy of the Incarnation, at their School Hall on Fourth street. Previous entertainments by the pupils of this school have so familiarized the public with their histrionic abilities that it is hardly necessary to give more than the simple announcement to ensure a good house, especially as the price of admission (twenty-five cents) is so moderate that all can afford to attend.
