WILMINGTON, N. C .: THURSDAY MORNING, May 29, 1879.

THE HERALD AND THE SOUTH At the beginning of the war the New York Herald had an editorial on one day-say Monday-strongly favoring the cause of the South. But on the following day-Tuesday-it was full of fire and brimstone against the South and its cause.

Some four years ago it paid a New York lawyer of eminence and marked ability, as we have understood, to prepare a series of elaborate and eloquent papers upon Imperialism. These memorable papers were published as editorials, and they were intended to forestall Gen. Grant in any plans or purposes he might have formed in regard to a third term.

They did a great deal of good, and will be capital reading for 1880. We hope the National Democratic Committee will have them published in pamphlet form and extensively circulated, if Grant is nominated by the Stalwarts, as now appears almost certain. The Herald then apprehended the great dangers threatening our institutions, and warned our people against them.

But what has the Herald been doing since? As soon as Grant's term expired and he started upon his wanderings, something after the style of the ancient Ulysses, the Herald detailed one of the most accomplished members of its staff and sent him with Cæsar. Why this if it did not wish to help Cæsar? For two years the correspondent of the Herald, John Russell Young, has been writing up Grant's fravels and triumphs. He has done his work well. He has kept the Man on Horseback constantly before the public under the most flattering aspects. All details that might in any way detract from the prestige or glory of Grant were omitted, and only the rose-colored tints were used in presenting the picture. Why this, we repeat? It was to prepare the way for Casar. It was to give an impetus to the third term project. It was to pave the way to Imperialism, which it had so vigorously denounced. But the Herald is nothing if not inconsistent. Why then refer to its vagaries and follies? Strange to say the Herald is a power. It is the great American newspaper. It is the most enterprising paper in the world, and it wields a large influence editorially. It ought not to have weight with It ought not to have weight with most facile and pleasing speakers to whom it has been my privilege to listen." revere truth and are governed by principles of honor and justice. But so it is that this great newspaper wields a great influence, sometimes for good we grant, and yet oftener for evil.

Latterly, and in entire harmony with its course towards Grant, it is trying to sustain Hayes in his arbitrary and dictatorial course. It is extremely earnest in its justification of the Fraudulent President's course, and is very patronizing towards the South. In fact its tone is impudent, and it is doing what it can to make "Mr. Preston."

the North believe there is danger from the "Rebel Brigadiers." This paper, in other words, appears to know nothing of the Constitution and it is putting forth its utmost influence in behalf of Imperialism-the very course it denounced once so bitterly and pointedly. It is doing what it can to sustain the party of bayonets and bulldozing.

In its issue of the 26th instant its leading editorial is addressed, "To the Rebel Brigadiers." It begins its insolent article with these words:

"It is high time that the rebel brigadiers should do something to show cause why they exist.'

As a specimen of its tone we copy

he following: "There is just one way in which the Southern members may rehabilitate themselves and their people in the confidence of the sensible part of the North; just one way in which they can disprove the charge made against them of an intention to kill the army, to disorganize the Government to attack its credit and to revenge themselves and their section for their defeat in the war. * * * The North is fast geting to believe that the Southern leaders really entertain ulterior and wicked designs; that they secretly inspire the folly of Speaker Randall and the Northern extremists; that it is the spirit of the South which rules and overrules the Northern Democrats, and that these are now, as they were so long before the war, the humble tools of designing and unscrupulous South-

Now, we undertake to say that the Herald is fully aware of the gross injustice it is guilty of when it so frames its complaint. No paper can know better how unjust and slanderous are such accusations. The Herald knows full well that the South is true to the Union-that its honored Representatives are true to the Union, and that the Democrats are merely fighting Imperialism and reresisting encroachments upon the Constitution in their present legislation. The Herald knows that the conflict between Congress and the President originates in an effort to repeal the most flagitious and oppressive laws-laws under which the greatest crimes against civilization have been perpetrated. It knows that the Republican party is in the minority, and that without the retention of the old system-including the soldiers at the polls and the army of supervisors and deputy marshals -its case is hopeless. The Herald knows how the infamous Davenport silenced eight thousand Democratic voters in New York city last November, by which the Republicans gained two members of Congress. It knows that the army and the old partisan, remorseless, bulldozing machinery are absolutely necessary to give Grant a good chance of success in 1880. When, therefore, it meanly insinuates or charges that the "Rebel Brigadiers" purpose another "rebellion," or really threaten the life of the government in seeking, in a constitutional way, to have obnoxious laws repealed, it knows it brings a false and railing accusation, and slan-

ders intelligently and deliberately. The Republican party stand forth as the champions of doctrines opposed to the very genius of our government, and as the violent antagonists of the true American doctrine that all elections shall be free and pure, and the count honest and open. The Herald knows this, and it simply stultifies itself in pursuing the course it does.

A BRIEF REMINISCENCE.

Rev. Dr. Jeter, the venerable and distinguished editor of the Richmond (Va.) Religious Herald, has been writing his autobiography, and for many months it has been appearing weekly in his excellent paper. It is exceedingly well written, and is full of entertainment. In the last number there are brief sketches of Clay, Calhoun, Webster, Benton, Rives and Preston, all of whom he heard speak in the Senate on the same occasion. We copy what he says of Mr. Preston, in 1835, we believe it was: "William C. Preston, of South Carolina, whom I never saw but on that occasion was younger than most of the Senatorswell formed, lithe and commanding person a fine representative of a distinguished Virginia family. He delivered a speech which, for freedom of utterance, beauty of style, and gracefulness of delivery, was certainly not excelled by that of any Sen-ator on the occasion. He was a brilliant speaker. Hearing him only once, and that on a subject which did not call forth his powers to their utmost extent, I could not form a confident opinion of his abilities; but, with less depth of thought and less power in expression than some other Sens-

Ex-Senator Thomas L. Clingman, of North Carolina, who long served in both Houses and knew all of the blows nobody any good. eminent men of that time, says that Mr. Preston was the greatest orator he ever heard-greater than Clay or Prentiss, or any other man with whom he was associated or whom he heard. He says that he once asked George McDuffie, of South Carolina, -himself a very brilliant and magnetic orator-who was the greatest orator he ever listened to. "Why," replied the eloquent South Carolinian,

In 1800, as was shown by Senator Whyte, of Maryland, the celebrated John Marshall, of Virginia, so long Chief Justice of the United States, was a member of the House of Representatives. He was Chiarman of a special committee and reported a bill to prevent military interference at the polls. Conkling and Edmunds denied it, but Mr. Whyte re-produced a resolution adopted by the House, appointing Messrs. Marshall, Leib and Otis a committee to prepare and bring in a bill for preventing the interference" of the military with elections. On the 18th of Feb. ruary, 1800, Mr. Marshall, chairman of the special committee reported.

We copy the first section: AN ACT To prevent the interference of any military force in certain elections. SECTION 1. Be it enacted, etc., that it shall be unlawful for any military force of the United States to appear around or embodied at the places and on the day of holding an election for electors of the President and Vice President of the United States, or of any member of Congress, or of the Governor or a member of the Legislature of any State, or in any manner to interfere with such election.

The second section provides that any person complaining to the commanding officer, he shall remove all troops to a distance not exceeding one mile from the polls, but leaving guard to protect United States preperty. Section third declares that any officer who shall refuse or fail to observe the regulations of the act shall be cashierd. Officers and soldiers could vote as citizens. The bill passed the House but was defeated in the Senate.

Gen. Fitz John Porter is a Democrat. He was villainously treated by John Pope and McDowell, the Republican Generals. The disgrace has been wiped out by a patient investigation. The court martial gave him a full vindication, but the Fraudulent President withholds his approval. He has got his hand in as a perpetual vetoer, and he now wants to extend his power in the direction of military investigations. Of course he has the power to refuse to sign, and he can order a new trial, but it is clear enough by what motives he is prompted. A special to the Philadelphia Press, Republican organ,

"It is asserted that a strong influence has been brought to bear upon the President in favor of a revision of the findings of the court, claiming that there is abundance of evidence which has not yet been made public to sustain the findings of the original court which dismissed him from the army Some of the members of the court, who are now retired officers of the army, are not at all satisfied with the manner in which the case was recently tried, and if opportunity should be afforded them they propose to submit this additional testimony which they regard as very damaging to the military reputation of this officer. It appears that there is a mass of unpublished evidence taken by the Congressional Committee on the Conduct of the War which was communicated to the members of the committee confidentially.'

Representative Davis of the Fourth District made a good speech in the House on the bayonet bill. He generally makes pointed speeches, and is sure to say some striking things. Referring to the cry of revolution set up by the Stalwarts, he said:

"Demetrius of old raised a cry lest 'the temple of the great goddess Diana should be despised,' not because he cared anything for the goddess, but he was the manufacturer of idols, and his craft was in danger. Like Demetrius, our Republican friends know by what 'craft' they have

"I have been more than once struck by the fact, Mr. Chairman, as others must have been, that sentiments of a united brotherhood, of a restored Union, of kindly feelings, and of justice and equality for all parts of the country, East, West, North and South, meet with hearty favor and applause on this side of the House. I have been as often pained to hear the bitterest utterances of sectional hate applauded on he other. On this side northern men and southern men, Federal soldiers and Confederate soldiers, sit in harmony, and in the spirit of a true brotherhood forget that there has been a family feud. In the temple of liberty which our fathers built for us, we worship together, and the preserva-tion of that temple is our dearest aim and our highest purpose."

And now a colored man named James Johnson lives in Pasquotank county who is reported at 112 years old. He has been a member of the M. E. Church for 78 years and a licensed preacher for '70. He tells much about the Revolutionary War. He says "he is all packed up waiting for Jesus to call him." There are very many very old colored people in North Carolina. We have not heard of as old a man in the State for sev-

CURREN . COMMENT.

- "To keep the peace at the polls," that was the pretext under which free peoples have been overcome before. Suwarrow, when he telegraphed, "Order reigns in Warsaw," was keeping the peace at the polls, and forty thousand men, women and children were butchered. All Napoleon wanted was to keep the peace at the polls, and he kept it in such a way that all the votes were counted for himself .- Senator Eaton, of Connecticut.

The word "revolution," has been grossly misused by the Republican orators and organs in connection with the Democratic policy in Congress. It has, however, a pertinent application to current political events in this way: The American people will never again submit to the Presidential rule of a man who has been defeated at the polls. The Republican policy is, plainly to place their next Presidential candidate in office by force. There will be resistance if this policy is persisted in. Cannot a policy thus calculated to bring about revolution be justly termed "revolutionary?" We invite the attention of business interests to these statements.—Bridgeport (Conn.) Farmer, Dem.

STATE CONTEMPORARIES.

Those who think that the science o medicine is not as progressive as that of the other learned sciences are behind the times, and we dare say that the members of the State Medical Society never attend a meeting without being wiser men. If there be one thing a sick man wants above another, it is a good physician by his side. All honor, then, to the doctors who are so earnestly endeavoring to acquire that skill and knowledge that will the more promptly alleviate pain and sickness. - Warrenton Ga

What is needed among our growing population just now is a knowledge of the law; what a man may or may not do by the statutes of the State he lives in. Some good lawyer would do a good thing to come up here this summer with a well-prepared popular commentary on the laws of North Carolina, for the instruction of the assembled teachers of the State. Some of our best citizens, of that very class we are fond of calling law abiding are ignorant of the very face of North Carolina law, and many poor shiftless, demoralized rogue enters upon a career of crime without knowing, perhaps not caring. - Chapel Hill Ledger.

POLITICAL POINTS.

-Republican economy has brought the great State of Pennsylvania to the verge of bankruptcy. It has robbed the school fund of $1,707,049.74. And yet we are always bearing that the Radical party is the only reliable friend and supporter of tee schools .- Wash. Post, Dem.

- If the Ohio Republicans would only insist upon taking General Sherman for Governor Grant could be made General of the Army, and thus leave a clear field for Secretary Sherman. There ought to be genius enough in the Sherman family to arrange this .- Phila. Press, Rad. organ.

- The Republican party has placed itself on record as in favor of centralism, which in effect means monarchism; the Democratic party has placed itself on record as opposed to all such ideas, and as adhering to the constitution as originally promulgated .- St. Paul (Minn.) Globe, Dem.

- Our Democratic brethren in Congress are thinking seriously now of passing the Appropriation bills according to the model prescribed by Hayes. After doing this they propose to blow a horn and "go to the country." Some of them will be likely to remain in the country when they get there. - Balt. Gazette, Dem.

half hour, to have the bile and other impurities strained or filtered from it. Bile is the natural purgative of the bowels, and if the Liver becomes torpid it is not separated from the blood, but carried through the veins to all parts of the system, and in trying to escape through the pores of the skin, causes it to turn yellow or a dirty brown color. The stomach becomes diseased, and Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Headache, Biliousness, Jaundice, Chills, Malarial Fevers, Piles, Sick and Sour Stomach, and general debility follow. MERRHIL'S HERATINE, the great vegetable discovery for torpidity, causes the Liver to throw off from one to two ounces of bile each time the blood passes through it, as long as there is an excess of bile; and the effect of even a few doses upon yellow complexion or a brown dirty looking skin, will astonish all who try it—they being the first symptoms to disappear. The cure of all billious diseases and Liver complaint is made certain by taking Hepartne in accordance with directions. Headache is generally cured in twenty minutes, and no disease that arises from the Liver can exist if a fair trial is given.
