The New York Evening Post publishes the news that, besides Sarah Bernhardt, George Eliot and Mrs. Langtry are coming to the United States next year.

Sarah is a great genius, historic and otherwise. She has several chil dren. She has never been married. George Eliot (Marian Evans) is the greatest of female novelists, and woman of extraordinary genius and learning. She has never been married, although she lived for many years with another woman's husband. Mrs. Langtry is a great English beauty and that is all. What the United States will do with these great women remains to be seen.
