Washington Press: During the last week the railroad has been considerably damaged by fire, burning in two places of from a half to one mile in length. The first place, about three miles from town, is supposed to have been set on fire; the other, one mile this side of Dymond City, caugh from the swamp, which was burning for several days during the hot weather. The trains were not delayed, as it so happened that an engine was on each side of the place burned.

He was living at a late bour last night.

The spirits are distilled from yellow dip, are as clear and pure as water, and show, besides, two gallons saving in every barrel of yellow dip, as eight gallons instead of six are produced by Mr. Bellengrath's method. By this process the article is perfectly free of water, which is another important item in the economy of the mode of manufacturing the correspondent writes from Hominy to the Asheville Citeen: "On Saturday night a violent attack was made upon Columbus Foster, while asleep in his house, and he was nearly killed. The party entered the house, found him asleep in bed, seized him by the throat and proceeded to deal him some severe blows on the head with some kind of a deadly weapon. Foster managed to get out of bed, but was immediately felled to the floor, insensible, and left for dead. As no robbery seems to have taken place, it is beleved the intention was to murder. It is believed in the neighborhood that the attack was instigated by his wife, who left him sometime ago and was living with her relatives, the result of an old domestic feud. Foster is recovering." - Kinston Journal: Three little negro children were burned to death last Saturday evening on the land of C. M. Griffin, near Bell's Ferry. They were left alone, shut up in the house—a cabin about a half mile from Mr. Griffin's. ——Clem Bryant Whitfield, a blind colored man, was drowned on Saturday, July 12, in a marl hole on Lem Taylor's land, near Wheat Swamp. He was making his way across the field, and it is thought, walked down a cotton row, mistaking it for the path, which terminated just at the marl hole full of water, and thus met his death.

Another death by crowning. A little son of Demas Isler, colored, went in bathing in the slough between Kinston and the county bridge, and getting into deep water, and being unable to swim, with no one near except some little boys, he pershed before assistance could be had. Asa Walker, Jr., and some young com-panions at Kennedy's upper mill, have a novel way of fishing. They take a cance at night and place a torch in the head, and paddle along slowly, giving the boat a rocking motion, and the fish (jacks) jump at the light, and, landing in the cance, are caught without much trouble. They caught in one night last week 160; on the load, seven lots, fetched $796.44. S. D. Second night 110; on the third 105, and on the fourth 78 fine jacks. This is a very tough yarn, but we have no doubt that it is true.

Mistorical and Scientific Society. At the meeting of this body last night, Col. B. R. Moore presented to the Society a very curious relic, in reference to which there was quite an interesting discussion. It consists of a piece of metal (evidently lead) found on Oak Island beach, in ten feet of water, by Mr. John Mularkey, the keeper of the lighthouse at that point. It became attached to Mr. Mularkey's hook

while fishing, and was thus brought to the

This metal, which is somewhat in the form of an oval shield, bears upon its face a series of characters. The central figure is that of an ecclesiastic, with long hair and beard, a mitre upon his head and a cross upon his breast. On his right is a tree, with the figure of a fish across the trunk, thus forming a cross, and a bell hanging from a limb! On the left there is a larger bell, on the top of which is a bird. Beneath the figure of the ecclesiastic is an inverted fish with a ring in its mouth.

Col. Moore, in presenting this object to the Society, stated that the bell represented the vespers bell of Catholic churches and that the tree was a symbol of that Church. He thought it was an ancient relic left here by the Irish previous to the discovery of Columbus.

Mr. Alex. Sprunt read an interesting letter on the subject from Mr. Hunter Steadman, of Glasgow, Scotland, in which he said this plate resembled the armorial bearings of Glasgow, the figure in the centre representing St. Mungo, the patron saint of Glasgow. The tree was a tradition of Glasgow, and represented a frozen limb taken from a hazel tree by St. Mungo, and upon which, it is said, when the lights of the sanctuary went out one night, he made the sign of the Cross, and immediately it burst into a burning flame. The was seated in a saloon in that neighborfish is also said to be traditional in Glasgow. A lady once lost her ring, and the Saint having prophesied where it was, a fish being caught, the ring was found in

The general sentiment of the Society, after the advancement of various theories and much animated discussion, seemed to be that it was an ornamentation or decoration attached to the stern of the Georgians McCall, a side-wheel blockade-running steamer, that was wrecked in the latter part of the year 1863, or early in 1864 within a few yards of where the relic was found. This was a Scottish steamer from Glasgow, built upon the Clyde, and handsomely and beautifully finished.

An adjournment was had without a final vote being taken upon the merits of the question, and the subject left open for future discussion.

Painful Accident to a Young Wilmingtonian.

The many friends of Mr. Oscar G Thompson, Paymaster of the W. & W. and W., C. & A. Railroads, will be pained to be informed that a severe casualty befell him at Glen Alpine Springs on Thursday, the 25th inst.

We have obtained the following particulars from a reliable source: Mr. Thompson was engaged in conversation with an acquaintance at the head of the stairway in Walton & Pearson's Hotel, when, turning to descend the stairs, he made a misstep and fell headlong to the floor beneath. At first it was feared he had sustained very serious injuries, but, upon a careful examination made by Doctors Jones, of Charlotte, and Kollack, of Morganton, it was ascertained that no bones were framured except one rib, but he was very badly bruised.

Those who witnessed the accident pro nounce his escape from instant death almost miraculous. The latest news received by his parents in this city reports him und that too before the illew golob.

Mr. Thompson, in company with his sister, Miss Nora Thompson, arrived at Glen Alpine on Wednesday morning, the 23d inst., expecting to remain there only a few days, but in consequence of his injuries he will necessarily be compelled to remain longer than he expected. At the time of his father's severe illness in February last, he took charge of his office as Secretary and Treasurer of the W. & W. and W., C. & A. Railroads, and owing to his father's continue ! ill health he had, in addition to his own official duties as Paymester, discharged, in a very creditable manner, most of the onerous and up to the time of his departure for the Springs. It is hoped he will soon be able to return to his official duties.

Recovery of a Wilmingtonian's Watch-A Gong of Thieves.

The Charlotte Observer of Saturday says When Walter Albright, colored, was arrested a few days ago on the charge robbing the dwelling house of Mr. W. I Bailey of money, he was discovered in the act of concealing a gold watch in his boot leg. The watch was taken from him by the policeman, and subsequently he confessed to the officer that it had been stolen from Mr. H. Nutt, of Wilmington. He told all about the manner in which it had been gotten and implicated another party, a colored man, in the robbery. A letter was written to Mr. Nutt usking for a description of the watch, and yesterday Policeman Farrington received a raply fully describing the watch now in his possession. and also a purse containing about $26 which was stolen at the same time. It was the purpose of the police authorities to send an officer to Wilmington to arrest the negro implicated by Albright, but owing to some difficulty about transportation, this idea was abandoned, and it was decided to telegraph the Chief of Police of Wilmington to make the arrest. This will accordingly have doubtless been accomplished before these facts are published." Chief of Police Brock has had officers in search of the party referred to, but they have been unable to discover any one answering to the description forwarded.

Mayor's Court. The Court met yesterday morning for the first time in three or four days, Mayor Fishblate presiding.

Nancy Jackson and Jane Williams were arraigned on the charge of being engaged in an affray. The latter was dismissed, and in the case of the former judgment was suspended on the payment of costs. Daniel Dore, a jolly young tar, was called up for engaging in a fight, in an alley near Mr. J. C. Heyer's store, on last Saturday night. The police broke up the fight and one of the combatants escaped. Dore, upon being asked by the Mayor what he had to say for himself, stated that he hood when a visitor spoke very disparagingly of America and Americans. He (the prisoner) was an American, and resented the implied insult to his nationality. . The result was a bargain between the two to adjourn to the alley and fight it out. They did so and were about to settle their difficulty by a resort to "fist and soull." when the police interfered and he was arrested. The Mayor remarked, "You stick up for America, do you?" "Yes, sir," replied the patriotic son of Neptune, "I'll fight for America as long as I have got a drop of blood in my body!" "Case dismissed," responded the Mayor, and the future "John Paul Jones." alias Daniel Dore, walked forth with as
