The Democracy of Baltimore had Square on Monday night. Gov. Carroll, Senator Whyte, Wm. T. Hamilton and others spoke. A letter from Mr. Tilden was read. We copy the important part as follows:

"I concur with you in regarding the issue created by the subversion of the election of 1876 as the most transcendant in our history. The example of a reversal of the votes of the people after they have been de-posited in the ballot-box, if successful and followed by prosperity to the wrong, would be fatal to the system of elective govern-ment. The hierarchy of officehelders would maintain their possession indefi-nitely, and every effort of the people to change the administration would be nullified. The government, elective in form, would become imperial in substance, pre-cisely as did that of Rome. Such an issue, involving the very existence of our free go-vernment, is not to be belittled into a per-sonal grievance."

As we have seen it mentioned in Beasley left for Raleigh for the purpose of both a Democratic and a Republican paper, that Mr. Tilden is thoroughly disgusted at Southern repudiation and the shot-gun policy, it is no harm to mention the same. The report comes through a leading Demooratio correspondent in Washington, who is known to be the special friend of Mr. Tilden. His chief is represented as saying that the South had been guilty of political asseminations. and that he did not have the resiest views of Democratic success in 1880. We are not much inclined to credit this. Mr. Tilden cannot afford to insult or attack the South. He is powerless without the aid of Southern Democrats. The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Gazette

"It is thought here that Mr. Tilden's pre-sent purpose in so expressing himself by indirection is to build up the macessary in-fluence to elect Gov. Robinson in spite of the Tammany bolt. It is well known that in the financial circles of New York very great disgust prevails over the manner in which some of the Southern States are repudiating or trying to repudiate their debts, because the capitalists of that city hold a great many of the bonds. If it was known generally among this class of his fellowcitizens that Mr. Tilden had no sympathy with this repudiation, and that he also discouraged the shot-gun policy at the South, would not only help the party in the State out his own Presidential aspirations. It looks as if the interview was authentic and

There is a split in the Democratic party of Louisiana that threatens serious results to its success hereafter. It grows out of an insatiable lust for office. The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun thus refers to the situation:

"The prospect is that the contest over the offices will result in a split in the Democratic party after the nominations are In regard to the office of Governor what is called the Bourbon element is working for the nomination of the present Lieutenant Governor, Wiltz, while the conservative element is struggling to nominate General Ogden, the leader of the White League. The Republicans have not as yet indicated any purpose to put a State ticket in the field, but have intimated that they will support Ogden, either as a regular or an independent Democratic candidate for Governor. Should Ogden win the nomina-tion at Baton Rouge, the Wiltz-Burke party, it is thought, will bolt, and the decent con-servative element of both parties will unite in support of Ogden."

The STAR recently gave a sketch of Colonel Ogden.

The Republican machine politicians of New York are meditating a grand scheme to make capital for subject. He came to this city six Cornell. It is to give Grant a monster mass-meeting. The Herald says

"If any such idea is entertained by the politicians around the Republican Committee rooms, it is to be hoped that the gentlemen who are responsible for the management of Cornell's canvass will promptly suppress it. No greater indignity could be put upon the illustrious traveller than to lead him about the political circus for the benefit of a lot of office-seekers."

- The biggest thing Fred. Robinson could find up in Vermont was an Irish potato which, he claims, weighs one pound and six ounces, and came from a "patch" that was estimated to produce 600 bushels per acre. But it is proper for us to state here that "Aleck" Adrian told us privately and confidentially that the potato, after being picked and gutted, would not weigh a pennyweight over six ounces.

Ford's Juvenile Opera Company. This Company, consisting of about fifty children, well trained to the art of catering to the public, will open at the Opera House this evening. To show the appreciation in which they are held by a Richmond pub lic, we give the following from the Dispatch: Richmond has rarely ever witnessed as charming a performance as that which was presented at the Theatre last night in the rendition of Pinafere by Mr. Ford's company of boys and girls. It was an astonishing exhibition of memory and superior training, as well as an amazing display of remarkable mesical talent. We had read glowing accounts of what these little folks could do, but the splendid audience which wholly unprepared for an evening of such real amusement and delightful pleasure as that which they experienced. It is a very difficult task to give the read er a faithful idea of the merit of these children. To see a tiny little girl scarcely seven years old, well up in the "stage business." with a face as sweet and attractive as one ordinarily finds, and a voice that would do credit to an adult, assuming the rather difficult role of "Josephine," is surprising, but where we find the whole company of children (the oldest only thirteen years.) numbering nearly fifty, equal, if not superior, to any Pinafore company in the country, it is indeed a most astonishing exhibition. Such was the performance of the Juvenile Opera Company last night.

The boys who played Sir Joseph and Captain Corcoran—twin brothers—were as much alike as two peas, and performed their parts admirably. Both have good voices, were perfectly at home in their parts, and charmed the audience. But the most attractive character in the caste was Josephine, a self-possessed little creature, who was irresistible. She is indeed sweet, graceful little child, and no doubt charmed the heart of many a mother who

"Dick Deadeye," as portrayed by Master Coverdale, was an admirable character, and reflected the highest credit upon the boy's training and vocalization. Rackstraw, too, Master Minchin, sang and acted admirably, and came in for a large share of the approbation of the audience. "Buttercup"—little Miss Walters—was perhaps the best voice in the company, and charmed everybody present. Master George Lehnert, the "Marine," was a great acquisition to the opera, and convulsed the audience with his grimaces and curious performances. "Cousin Hebe"—Miss Myers -who at the close of the opera was so kindly patronized by Sir Joseph, sang very sweetly, and was heartily applauded for her part in the interesting entertainment. In fact, all did well, and as a whole the opera was admirably rendered.

Sale of the W. C. & A. Railroad. Under a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of North Carolina (Fourth Judicial District), Major D. J. Devane, Commissioner, sold at the Court House door, yesterday at noon, the property known as the Wilmington, Columbia & Augusta Railroad, including rolling stock, &c. The road was purchased by a committee on behalf of the first mortgage bondholders for $860,500.

To the credit of the Company, be it said, that the bondholders voluntarily paid off every cent of its floating indebtedness to cross-tie laborers and others, although the law would have absolved them from the obligation to do so.

Road Troubles. Horace Moore, colored, was before Justice Gardner, yesterday morning, on the charge of failing to attend and work on a read when summoned to do so by the proper authority. He was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $2 and the costs. Defendant appealed from the judgment of the magistrate and was required to give a justified bond in the sum of $50 for his appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court.

Harbor Master's Report. From Capt. Joseph Price, Harbor Master, we have the following report of the arrival of vessels at this port, &c., for the month of September:

American-Steamers 7; schooners 7 barques 1, brig 1; total 16. Tonnage 7,903. The Fire Yesterday Morning-Fur- To-Day's Indications.

The destructive configuration at the Wilmington Compress Company's wharves, yesterday morning, was the almost universal theme of conversation during the day. The origin of the fire remains a mystery. The watchman, Mr. Williams, says he first discovered it among a lot of cotton just in the rear of the machinery. The engineer and fireman say they stopped work at about 7 o'clock, and that when they left the premises a few minutes before 7 o'clock, everything had cooled off. The watchman at Messrs. Chadbourn & Co.'s mill, and also the watchman on duty on board the British barque D. H. Bills, lying at one of the wharves of the Compress Company, say that they first discovered the fire bursting from the shed in rear of the warehouse.

The D. H. Bills, as we have stated, was lying at the wharf when the fire broke out, and the flames, which speedily got under good headway, were driven by the very light breeze blowing directly in the midst of the rigging of the vessel. Fortunately Captain Jones had so arranged his fastenings that they could be speedily removed, and he therefore slipped her moorings and had her in the stream in a very short time. This vessel was to have taken on a cargo yesterday, and a lighter was to have carried off six hundred bales at 6 o'clock in the morning.

It is estimated that the number of bales destroyed, or partially destroyed, amounted to 1,320, of which Messrs. Williams & Murchison lose 1,100, Mr. E. Lilly 170, and Messrs. Kerchner & Calder Bros. 50. This. estimated at $50 per bale, which is a little n excess, would make the loss on cotton $56,000. From this amount, however, is to be taken the salvage, which will probably amount to about 50 per cent.

The loss on the press and warehouse is estimated at about $25,000, the machinery being considered by the company but little damaged.

The fire companies were on duty during the greater part of the day playing upon the smouldering cotton, flames from the midst of which would ever and anon burst

The damaged cotton was being removed as speedily as possible to points on the shore near Hilton, where it could be spread out and be convenient to the water. The contract for rebuilding the warehouse, &c., has already been let out to Mr. R. B. Wood, who will commence work immediately, and it is hoped to have the press running in three weeks. welcomed the company last night were In the meantime the Tyler press, which was not touched by the fire, will continue at work, probably commencing with to-day, so there will be no delay in pressing The loss on cotton and the property of

An Explosion and Its Result. Three young gentlemen were on the way home at a rather late hour, a few nights since, when one of the trio came to the conclusion that he would indulge in a smoke. It seems that during the day he had been using a parlor rifle and had several of the cartridges loose in his pocket, while in the same receptacle was also a quantity of loose smoking tobacco. In filling his pipe, which was an ordinary clay one, he accidentally got one of the cartridges in it, and didn't observe the fact until he had lit his pipe and walked a short distance, when the three young men were suddenly startled by an explosion. The effect was bewildering. The boys thought they had been fired upon by some villain in ambush, and, fearful that their enemy might take another crack at them, they straightway commenced seeking a place of safety, one taking refuge behind a big tree, another jumping a fence, and the third making a rush for an open gateway. Then, after a moment's reflection and examination, the cause of the explosion was made manifest to the owner of the pipe, who proceeded at once to relieve the anxiety of his friends. Singular to say the pipe was not burst by the explosion.

The Empire Sectional Dock.

The new Sectional Dock, recently con structed for Messrs. J. R. Blossom & Evans, under the superintendence of Mr. DeLancy Evans, a son of the junior member of the firm, is now in good working order, a small vessel having already been taken in the dock and repaired. The dock is in three sections, or water-tight compartments. It is sunk by valves worked from the top of each section, and each compartment is supplied with four steam pumps, fifteen inches square, by the use of which water is conducted to each section in such quantity as may be required to keep them level. Ordinarily it will take but a very short time to submerge the dock to a proper depth to receive a vessel, or to relieve it of the surplus water when required. Now, as those who work it have had but little experience, extra caution is observed. We learn that one skilled in such matters will soon be here to take charge of it. The dock has keel capacity for a vessel one hundred and forty-seven feet in length, with an additional projection at each end for longer vessels, and has a lifting capacity of twelve hundred tons.
