Conkling has the ague in a bad form. The shaking began some time ago in Rhode Island.

Rowell only made 524 miles instead of 530 as reported. This was owing to the track being 59 feet 4 inches short of a mile.

James Wilde, Jr., the oldest wholesale clothing merchant of New York, is dead. He began his business in 1848. He was 61 years of age.

New York has gone crazy over the six days' walk for the O'Leary belt. There are 35 contestants. Three thousand people witnessed the start.

Tammany bolted again in New York, when the Democrats nominated a candidate for Congress in the Twelfth District, in place of Alexander Smith, deceased.

Pat Donan succeeded in getting an outfit for a daily, shipped it to Deadwood, and arrived there just in time to see the town ablaze and his office a mass of ruins. He appears to have hard luck.

The nomination of John Quincy Adams for Governor of Massachusetts by the Democrats will give a quietus to any prospects Ben Butler may have had. This at least is an important achievement.

Longfellow's son, Irish King, was the largest winner in the late races at Louisville. He won $6,355. The races, numbering twenty-seven, that were run during the fall meeting, are said to have been remarkably fast.

John Sherman is about to try his hand again in the Ohio campaign. The boys plied him so heavily before with questions concerning his financial operations he would not stand the pressure. Give him the same physic.

Next Tuesday is an important day for Ohio and the Union. It is the highest importance to the famous inventor. Mr. Hidden also discovered a mineral, anastase, which was not bitherto known to exist in this State, and another which is entirely unknown to the scientific world. He remarked, in the course of the conversation, that North Carolina was absolutely the best field for minerals in the world; that nowhere is there anything like the variety which she furnishes, and, as a rule, they are by tar the most perfect specimens known."

There is not the slightest doubt of the failure to reestablish the Southern Republican Association in Washington. The men who had it in hand, as the STAR predicted, could not weather the storm. They were for the most part broken down party hacks of the scalawag kind, or impecunious carpet-baggers who had failed to get rich some how in spite of "the good stealing," as one of them said of South Carolina. The Washington correspondent of that stalwart sheet, the Baltimore American, says of the results of the effort referred to above:

"Nearly all the effice holders who participated in the preliminary meetings have abandoned the project in disgust, and nothing remains of the movement but a half-dozen veteran office-seekers, who appear determined to organize for no other purpose than to further their personal interests. They will doubtless endeavor to make as much noise as can possibly be expected from six or seven hungry men."

A New York letter of the 4th in stant says of the trade outlook: "General trade has been very active throughout the week, both wholesale and retail. A noticeable feature is the increase of foreign importations, especially dry goods of the more costly kind, such as silks, velvets, etc. This is accepted by some as a proof that our people are again drifting back into extravagant habits. The optimists, on the contrary, contend that it simply shows they are in a position to obtain more of the luxuries of life than at any time since the panic. The activity in the iron trade continues, but prices are now so high that more caution is observed. Hides and leather, boots and shoes, drugs and chemicals, are all doing well, as likewise the vari-ous markets that are represented at the Produce Exchange.'

Evarts says Hayes offered him the English mission, but he means to remain where he is. He does not feel flattered at the President's effort to get him out of the Cabinet, and does not believe that he really wishes him to go. He thinks he is a viotim of a conspiracy, and that the main plotter is John Sherman. The Baltimore American's Washington correspondent says a well-known journalist assures him that he got this from Evarts himself.

The papers are writing so much Judg about Judge Settle if they do not cases.

The Raleigh Observer says the Wilmington STAR is one of the best newspapers in the South, and tells the truth. — A neighbor of M. Afidrew F. Apple, living about fourteen miles from the city, informs us Chairman, Jos. Hoskins; Secretaries, F. S. Blair and H. C. Brittain. A motion was made and carried to raise three thousand dollars by taxation on the property of the township, in annual instalments for three or more years, provided the road be located on the route surveyed through Bruce's township. There was only one dissenting vote.

- Chapel Hill Ledger: The Wilmington MORNING STAR has just entered upon its twenty-fifth half-yearly volume. Its aim, it says, is to elevate, to teach and to bless. All of these it has done, and we trust may long continue to do. - Students of the University are required to get written permission from home in order to attend the Fair. - On University Day President Battle will continue his biographical and historical sketches of the men and events connected with the University in its inception and growth Rev. Mayor's Court.

Daniel Lucas, colored, was arraigned on the charge of acting disorderly and resisting the police on Monday night. As it was his first offence judgment was suspended, the defendant being informed by the Mayor that if he was brought before him again, on a similar charge, he would get double punishment.

Carl Gurtney, a "frowsy-headed" seaman, charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct and resisting the police, about half past 1 o'clock Monday night, was ordered to pay a fine of $10 or be imprisoned for twenty days.

A Kicking Horse.

The greatest excitement that has been witnessed on our streets in a long time was created in the vicinity of Southerland's stables, yesterday afternoon, by a kicking horse. Mr. Dan Quinlivan, in attempting to shoe the animal, was badly kicked on the leg. He was determined to conquer the vicious beast, however, and he was finally thrown flat upon his back and tied "hog-fashion," when the work of shoeing him was successfully performed. Before he was finally subdued he created great diversion among the large crowd by his kicking propensities, in which he excelled anything in the shape of a horse we have ever seen.

A certain young man, well up in was discovered at the corner of Third and Cheanut streets, a few nights ago, pretending to be playing a fiddle, using one arm for the violin and the other for a bow, when he was asked by a passing friend what he was doing? "Oh, nothing," asid he, "only trying to play a waltz for this house to turn round by !" It should be understoed that the house in question has been on the rollers for some weeks past, but is now

"turned round."

A little boy named Harry Chatman, whose father is employed at the Navassa Guano Works, fell from the upper piazza of a residence on Third, between Mulberry and Walnut streets, a distance of aboot twenty feet, on Monday last, and narrowly escaped death. His head struck the ground first, but, fortunately, he was only badly stunned and shocked, and at last accounts his condition was improving.
