WILMINGTON, N. C., TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1879.

WHOLE NO. 3,827

Sun has tried to "finish" that grand old party, but the trouble is it won't stay "finished." It is the liveliest sort of corpse imaginable. But the Sun is against Grant any way.

The New York Sun has a doubleleaded special from Washington, dated Nov. 14, in which is mapped out the programme of the managers of the third term. Whilst not attaching any great importance to it. the plan suggested is not improbable. We copy some of the more salient

'At the same time it is asserted that Grant will not be a sectional candidate He expects support from the South, and if elected President be will not be a sectional President. He is to play the role of the great conciliator. This, his presidential managers think, will be most appropriate. They argue that, after the election of 1880 people of the North will be heartily of the sectional issue, and that the South will be perfectly willing to abandon its preference for Democratic doctrines and States rights theories and go in with a will for a great nation, a strong government plenty of spoils. They say that Grant, having been out of the country, is not responsible for the present sectional attitude of the Republican party. * * His tour through the South next spring is to pave the way for this part of the programme. I happen to know that this scheme will be much more acceptable to a greater number of Southern Democrats than is generally supposed to be possible. A conspicuous Democratic Congressman from a Southern State, who was a distinguished General in the rebel army, told me not long ago that he was thrown into close connection with Grant at the close of the electoral count in the spring of 1877, and in this interview his preconceived opinion of Grant was entirely changed. He was satisfied, he said, that the Southern leaders had made a great mistake in keeping aloof from Grant during his eight years' reign at the White House. If they had made the effort they could have had his confidence and saw it announced that Dr. Felton, a Representative in the House black as tar and his head is as white as from Georgia, had kicked out of the traces and gone over to the Radicals. This is a mistake. Dr. Felton has published an open letter, in which he declares that he "is a Democrat and sincerely believes that the principles of the Democracy are essential to the prosperity of our form of civil government." He makes very sharp comments upon the "follies" of the extra session, and denounces caucus dictation. He also notices the unjust charges against the South, and declares that "the Independent movement promises to sweep this State (Georgia) next year." He says:

"I believe our next Governor and a ma jority of our next Congressmen and of our State Legislature will be elected as Independents. The honest and intelligent citizens of this State are determined to throttle and overthrow that organized Bourbonism which has well nigh destroyed the very bulwarks of genuine Democracy; that never earns and never forgets; that stands as a barrier to our material progress. Narrow, selfish and illiberal—its only bond of union a struggle for spoils; its only hope of success, the tricks of the caucus and the last of the party. This coming in contact with the fire about which she was standing, she was soon enveloped in flames, and as she was alone in the house she was so fearfully burned before help reached her that she died in a few hours. She was about twelve years of age.

He paid little attention to the matter, but returning to the car remarked laughingly to a friend, a passenger, that he had been shot at. Yesterday morning, on the return trip, taking out his thick note-book, Capt. Jones found embedded in it a pistol ball which, entering one side of the book had passed nearly through it. The book was in the breast pocket of the conductor's coat, and it was most fortunate for him, covering as it did a vital part, that it

Gone North. We have information to the effect that Antone Swain, the youth who is charged with having broken open Mr. Thos. Mashburn's trunk, near this city, on Friday last, and stealing sixty dollars in money, went off on the train Saturday morning. A. young man who was on the cars at the time, but who had not heard of the robbery, says Swain was dressed out in a new suit of clothes, shoes, etc., and sported kid gloves and a walking cane. He told the young man that he was on his way to New York, and wanted to know how to conduct himself at a first class hotel. A warrant for his arrest, and also a search warrant, were issued Saturday by Justice Hall, and placed in the hands of trusty officers, but of course nothing could be discovered of the boy or the missing money.

The Orphan Asylum.

It has been suggested that a collection be taken up in the churches of this city, on Thanksgiving Day, in addition to the usual one for the poor, for the benefit of the Oxford Orphan Asylum. The beneficiaries of this noble and useful institution, some one hundred and thirty-five or more in number, are in much need of help, so much so tha the Superintendent has found it necessary to send out, at an early day, a chapter of orphans to give entertainments for the benefit of the Asylum. Cold weather is coming on and the necessities of the orphans will be increased. It is expected that collections will be taken up elsewhere for this noble charity, and it is to be hoped that Wilmington will contribute her share.

The Wadesboro Rair.

The Wadesboro Agricultural Fair opens to-day. To-morrow the match game of base ball for the championship of the State takes place. The Champion Club, of this city, expects to go up to-night for the purpose of participating. A silver cup is to be played for in addition to the championship. We hope friend Patrick, of the Herald, will take charge of the boys.

We understand that Capt. Frederick G. Robinson, Major E. S. Martin, and Quartermaster John L. Maffitt left here last night on a little trip on the C. C. Railway. Presume they will return as soon as the game alluded to above is played.

Glad to Hear It. Mr. Wm. The Frayne-Tiffany Combination.

The performance at the Opera House last evening progressed smoothly and successfully , judging by the enthusiasm of the audience, until the fourth act, when just as the curtain arose the lights were noticed to grow dim, then to brighten, and then to go out entirely, leaving the building in utter darkness. At first the audience could not tell whether this was a part of the play, or a real sensation not on the programme. Efforts to relight the gas soon convinced all that this time there was no acting, but fortunately nearly every one remained in their seats, and thus a panic, which could so easily have been precipitated in the crowded theatre, was prevented. The management, after repeated efforts to get the gas relit, came before the curtain and announced its impracticability, but offered to go on with the performance by the light of two kerosene lamps and several candles that had been obtained. The decision of those present was to go on, and the piece was played through without further mishap, but of course with numerous incidents unavoidable under the conditions. The reason of the occurrence was the failure of the gas metre, a wet one, to work, and on examination it was finally decided by an expert that it would be impossible to fix it last night, though of course numerous attempts were made. Much credit is due the Company for their action in the premises, and the audience took every opportunity to testify its appreciation of their pluck, and of the clever manner in which they played their parts under such dispiriting circumstances. The acting of the dog Jack was certainly remarkable and almost beyond belief. Mr. Frayne's wonderful feats with the rifle were made more extraordinary-and we could but think foolbardy-by the fact that they were performed almost in the dark. He shot the pipe out of a man's mouth, ap ples off heads, etc., but before the final effort of shooting an apple off Miss Tiffany's head, with his back to her was at-

The company apparently gave great satisfaction, the applause being frequent and terrific, and, all in all, we think that few who were present regretted their attendance. Of course numerous scenes and incidents occurred that we have not related. but the late hour at which the performance closed gives us no time to recall them.

A Beadly Assault.

A colored man by the name of Mike Hooper was the victim of a deadly assault at a house on Dickinson's Hill, on Saturday night last. The house, it seems, is occupied jointly by Hooper and a colored woman named Julia Miller, one living on the first floor and the other on the second. On Saturday night there was a noisy crowd there, composed principally of quarrymen from the neighborhood of Rocky Point, and somehow a difficulty originated between Hooper and the woman, Julia Miller, during which the latter seized some sharp instru ment and struck Hooper over the head with it, cutting a deep gash. Blood flowed freely from the wound all Saturday night and Sunday, but had ceased yesterday morning. The physician who examined the wound pronounced it a dangerous one. At one time blood was stopped from flowing from the wound, when it commenced oozing from the ears of the injured man.

A warrant was issued by Justice McQuigg on Sunday, and that night about 10 o'clock, Julia Miller was arrested by Officer Whitney, and subsequently committed to fail without benefit of security, to be held for her appearance before Justice McQuigg when called for,

The wounded man was resting somewhat easier yesterday morning.

To-Day's Indications. For the South Atlantic States, falling barometer increasing southeasterly winds, slightly warmer and generally cloudy weather, with numerous rains, followed Tuesday afternoon or night by rapidly rising barometer, brisk to high northerly winds, and colder clearing weather. More Meteors.

Prof. Richard A. Proctor, who delivered a series of lectures on astronomical subjects at Chickering Hall, New York, last week. told his audience, on the occasion of his second lecture, to look out for a shower of meteors on or about the 27th inst., the remnants of the dissipated Biela Comet, which sometime since for its erratic carrying-on was kicked out into the immensity of space, and has since been traveling around loose, pelting the other planets with red-hot meteors, and kicking up the deuce generally, until it has "gone all-to pieces," so to speak. To save his reputation, perhaps, the Professor told his hearers that the shower may not happen, after all, for the reason that the "Lost Comet" may be "out of rocks;" but he felt pretty certain that there would be a display.

We advise our readers to keep a weathereye open, for there is no telling what may happen, especially on Thanksgiving Day.
