The topic of the time-the Democratic Returning Board of Maine.

Gen. Grant only travelled eighty days when he made his trip around the world.

Mr. George Augustus Sala, famous London journalist, is to be at Richmond, Va., in a day or so.

Twenty-two women in New York are now engaged in the refined business of a walking match. There are a million or two also engaged in a talking match.

Mr. G. W. Childs, of the Philadel phia Ledger, gave Grant a dinner, to which ten thousand people were invited. George, suppose they had all come, what would you have done?

It beats the sea-serpent to hear the organs crowing over the "great Maine fraud." Said-organs made lively music when the Returning Boards of Louisiana and Florida did their dirty work. Oh, the hypocrites!

Allen Mathis, colored, who was sentenced at the late term of the Superior Court for this county to be executed for the murder of one Reuben Herring, of Pender, on Friday, the 9th of January ensuing, begins to realize the near approach of his almost inevitable doom. First along he seemed to be buoyed up to some extent with the idea that his sentence would eventually be commuted, but he is gradually losing his confi dence in this chance of escape from the halter. His appetite continues excellent. but in manner, to use the words of the jailor, he is becoming quite week. One or more of the colored clergy call to see him every day, and seem to be doing their best to prepare him spiritually for the great change awaiting him in the near future.

It seems to be understood that the execution will be private, the gallows to be erected in the yard back of the jail, and a high fence built on the East so as to obstruct the view from Fourth street.

That Leap Year Bail.

The young ladies, we are told, have not yet made a definite selection of the night for the leap year, hop which they propose to give early in January, but will decide at meeting to be held in the next few days. Nearly all the arrangements are perfected, and there is no question but that the affair will be both brilliant and memorable. Already the boys are pondering the important question as to what they shall wear on that interesting occasion, while every other group of ladies you pass on the street are earnestly discussing the coming event and the multifarious preparations incident

Mayor's Court.

Matt. Moore, a badly dilapidated colored damsel, was up for disorderly conduct. The prosecuting witness, a man named Gulley, with no little eloquence and elaboration, proceeded to inform the Court as to the extent of the woman's offence, which consisted in raising frequent disturbances at his house on the pretext that he was harboring her husband. He couldn't stand it any longer, and asked the protection of the Court. When she was "in good order,' remarked the witness, there was no better woman, but her conduct and language on the occasions complained of were in very bad form. He was willing, if she would behave herself, to "extend the right hand of fellowship," &c. At the close of the testimony the woman made a statement, but as she was suffering from the effects of a fractured jaw-bone, the result of one of her tilts with her husband, as she declared, an interpreter was needed to give the Mayor an adequate conception of her real sentiments on the interesting subject. On the promise of good behavior in the future she was told to go and sin no more. A number of hucksters were summoned before the Court to answer to the charge of failing to comply with the city ordinance in reference to hucksters, which requires them to pay a weekly license. They were called up one at a time, and severally gave in their excuses for failure as aforesaid, and the Mayor finally let them go on condition that they would settle up with the Clerk of the Market before night, upon failure to do which they were to be brought before him again, when the penalty would be enforced.
