year that ended last night at 12 o'clock, we have published more than three hundred columns under this head, possibly three hundred and fifty. If published in ordinary duodecimo volumes it would fill some three volumes, which, if sold at the usual price, would fetch $1.50 each. This is only one feature of the STAR.

But consider further: we actually published of telegraphic news more than one thousand columns of solid brevity type during the year. If published in duodecimo volumes of 400 pages it would make not less than seven or eight volumes. Here in two departments only our readers get from ten to eleven volumes yearly. When we know how much other matter is published in the course of the year we feel warranted in saying that the cheapest reading in the world is a daily newspaper. You get it every morning for two and a half cents delivered at your door in sunshine and in storm, in cold or heat. Subscribers have it mailed, postage paid in the office by us, at $7.00 a year.

We mention this fact to let our subscribers see how much is given for a small sum comparatively. We have recently received very many expressions of hearty indorsement as to the value and interest of the STAR through our correspondents both from editors and citizens of education and intelligence. Being unsought and unexpected we have highly valued them, and they have encouraged us no little.

The STAR will continue to shine for all during the year 1880. It endeavors to pursue the right. It tries to make principle, fairness, justice, candor its end. It does not claim to be infallible in its judgments, but it does claim to be fair and honest. Whenever we discuss a question we write precisely what we think—what we sincerely believe to be right and proper, and do not concern ourselves to consider whether this paper or that man may agree or disagree with us. We have independence enough to advance our own opinions. There is a difference between principles and policy. We hold steadfastly to the great underlying principles of the Democratic party. In matters of party policy there is always room for a diversity of views. We teach what we believe to be best. Others, equally honest and equally competent, will view questions of policy differently and under other aspects.

We have said we do not think Mr. Tilden the man for 1880. This is a matter of judgment and political sagacity. Others think he is the very man—the only man. We do not so see it, and have so said frankly and explicitly. This opposition does not cut us off from the privilege and duty of sustaining him if he should be the nominee. We have also said frankly that Mr. Seymour was the most available man. We are so satisfied of this that we believe honestly and sincerely that if nominated he would be elected. We have used our best judgment, after due reflection and a survey of all the chances. Others disagree with the conclusions we have reached. It is a matter of policy, not a matter of principle.

WE PUBLISH TWO LETTERS TO DAY that ought to interest many readers of the STAR. The Commissioner of Agriculture, Mr. L. L. Polk, desires to see the manufacture of glass one of our industries, and thinks Wilmington an excellent point. The facts set forth in the letter of Mr. Syndell are certainly worthy of the attention of men of capital and enterprise. He gives a number of reasons to show why glass can be manufactured at much less cost in the South than in the North. We do not stop to mention the reasons given by him in this connection, but invite our readers to consider well what he says.

IT WOULD BE A VALUABLE ADDITION certainly to our other home enterprises to have in our little city a glass manufactory. We need a diversity of industries, and if there is money in the manufacture of glass there ought to be capital enough to start one at an early day.

DURING THE YEAR 1879 some distinguished and many very valuable citizens have died. We are unable to give a full list, but we remember that the following are numbered with the dead of 1879, viz: Col. David M. Carter, Maj. Joseph A. Engelhart, Secretary of State, Col. William S. Devane, Dr. W. E. Freeman, Rev. W. M. Wingate, D. D., President of Wake Forest College, Hon. William H. Battle, ex-Judge of Supreme Court, Captain Thomas J. Robinson, Hon. John Kerr, ex-member of Congress and Judge of the Superior Court, Maj. J. P. H. Ross, Dr. A. E. Wright, Dr. Carl Burkhardt, Dr. Edmund Strudwick, Dr. J. Francis King, and Dr. William Little.

Persons old enough to remember the days of 1861, have not forgotten the famous editorial in the New York Herald of Monday, say, in which it encouraged the South to out loose and act as it purposed. The very next day it whipped around and went the other way and was strong for threshing the "rebels." We are reminded of this by some of its discussions on the Maine embroglio. If you would know what the Herald says you must read it at least two days consecutively. It has a Garcelon day and a Blaine-Hamlin-Morrill day. On Saturday it whooped for Garcelon, but on Sunday it talked the other way and in part as follows:

"Maine evidently does not feel that she is ready to have official juggery decide for her those points which her constitution supposes are to be decided by the will of the people. There is a little difference in cases of this kind between an old, well organized State, where opinion is not demoralized on questions of common right, and one of the new Southern States, whose ancient system was torn up in the war, half of whose people were slaves a few years since, whose government is in the hands of adventurers, and in which a distinct conception that one act may be more villainous than another does not exist. Both parties in Maine should be and apparently are of the same opinion on this case, because a distinct issue of right and wrong waits all fair minded men on one side."

It would not be strange if the action of Governor Garcelon, of Maine, and his confederates, was inspired by the Republicans, who want some such action as this to plead as an excuse for subsequent villainy. It is in reason that the Governor and his Council have fallen into the pit which their adversaries have dugged.—Columbus (O.) Democrat.

IT IS ALLEGED IN JUSTIFICATION of the action of the Democrats in Maine that the popular elections there are exceedingly corrupt. We do not doubt it, but the method chosen to remedy that state is not a wise one. So far as we have been able to see the grounds on which votes are thrown out they are trivial, technical and frivolous. We do not doubt the corruption of New England politics. States have been kept as Republican States by wholesale frauds, and the solid New England differs from the solid South only in the fact that in the South it was a pressing necessity, a matter of life and death, a case of self-defense. But that does not justify the counting-out process. The more it is discussed the less tenable will it appear, if the rest of the grounds are similar to the samples already furnished.—Nashville American.

THE WHOLE ARGUMENT is based on legal technicalities and irregularities, and while it demonstrates that the Governor and Council had the power to pursue the course they did, it does not justify them in it; nor could any combination of circumstances justify a dominant party in overthrowing the unmistakable will of the people in an effort to remain in power. The Democratic party cannot be true to itself and to its vigorous and manly protests against the great Presidential fraud of 1876, if in any way seeks to excuse or defend the misguided officials of Maine. Honesty is the best policy in public life as well as private, and in politics as well as anywhere else, and a departure from the path of right has its sure punishment.—West Chester (Pa.) Jeffersonian.

GOV. GARCELON and his advisers have made a serious political, and a not less serious moral mistake. They have nullified the will of the people of Maine, as expressed at the latest election, on account of technical errors and oversights. These errors and oversights were committed, not by the electors, but by the local canvassers. The voters were, in fact, thrown out on account of informality in the manner in which they were returned. There is no pretence that this informality was such as to leave the intention of the voters in doubt. The tenor of all statutes, judicial decisions and treatises which deal with elections is, that every presumption should be made in favor of giving effect to the real intention of the voters. The canvassers in Maine have unquestionably nullified the real intention of the voters.—New York World.

THE WAY THE DEMOCRATS in Maine have been acting seems to indicate that they are condoned fraud.—Philadelphia Times, Ind.

IT IS A SIGNIFICANT fact that in Washington, where Gen. Grant is best known, there was no enthusiasm over his arrival.—Baltimore Gazette, Dem.

IF THE FUSS IN MAINE is settled without bloodshed—as we expect it to be—no thanks will be due to the bellicose Maine preachers. The Prices of Peace seems to have some remarkable servants in that part of the country.—New York Sun, Ind.

BEFORE THE RETURN of Mr. Hayes to-day, Gen. Grant will have gotten the hippodrome on the road headed Southward. The Stalwarts have managed very shrewdly to keep their idol from contact with illegitimacy in the Capital.—Washington Post, Dem.

OUR STATE QUOTATIONS.

THE APPLICATION of what some are pleased to term the "Hill and Crag" or, in other words, an indefinite continuation of appropriations for the extension of the Western North Carolina Railroad, has had one good effect. It has clearly demonstrated the fact that it is a question with which the Democratic party, as a party, has nothing to do, and that it is a matter upon which, as a body, it does not propose to express an opinion, pro or con. The discussion has abundantly shown that in the next campaign the party cannot afford to be handicapped with any measure concerning which there is such diversity of opinion among the members, and that any allusion to it in the State Convention would not only be impolitic, but dangerous.—Oxford Free Lance.

THE LAST LEGISLATURE passed some acts that were doubtless unwise, and that should be repealed or changed. Yet, while this may be so, it did much to better the condition of the people of the State. Wisdom dictated that Democrats, who are Democrats from principle and not upon policy, shall seek to remedy errors of the past and hold on to what may have been wise for their guidance in the future. When taken as a whole fit, did, as well as its friends could have expected.—Goldboro M. Int.
