Gen. Tom Ewing, of Ohio, has declared his purpose to support Tilden in preference to Bayard. The declaration mitigates somewhat the regret felt that Foster defeated him.

Leading Indianians-one of them an old time Abolitionist-declared before the Senate Exodus Committee that the supply of labor in Indiana is greater than the demand.

Mr. Sala passed through North Carolina, but did not stop. Let him be specially invited to come and see. He went by way of Danville, Greensboro and Charlotte. His only reference in his letter is to Greensboro, and he thought that place was in South Carolina.

There is one good thing that can be said of the present session of Congress-it has been refreshingly dull. We hope it will keep up the same lick all the way through, and that by April the members, like good boys, will go to their homes quietly and be good citizens.

There is danger ahead, we fear, in Virginia and Georgia. What a great disaster it would be if after all there should not be a "solid South" in 1880. In Georgia there is trouble brewing. The Augusta Chronicle declares that the Independents in Georgia are conspiring with the Republicans to destroy the Democratic organization. Mahone is Virginia's evil genius, and Grant or some other Stalwart may yet capture it through his machina-

The Vicksburg Herald is suspected of being but slightly affected with Democratic principles. But be this as it may, it says that in Monroe county, Mississippi, applicants for positions as school teachers are required to sign certificates that they have supported and will support Democratic candidates for office

The example of the New York Herald in contributing so liberally for the relief of Ireland is having an excellent effect. Contributions are pouring in, and the Herald says it expects to receive contributions from every village and city in the United States and Canada. A New York special to the Washington Post says:

"Among the latest contributions acknowledged by the Herald are the following: August Belmont, $500; Smith, Churchill & Scribner, $500; E. A. Buck, editor of the Spirit of the Times, $1,000, and Harry Hill, $100. Politicians, firemen, actors, actresses, school children and others are among the contributors. Dion Boucleault suggests that every theatre and music hall in the United States should devote St. Patrick's day to a performance in aid of the Herald's Irish relief fund. Contributors to the Herald's fund who live out of the city can send their subscription by Adams Express Co., which has consented to perform this service free of charge. The Master Stevedores' association has resolved to give its services in loading all provisions intended for the starving poor of Ireland, and the members of the Cotton Exchange have just subscribed $500 for the relief of the Irish distress, and more money will be raised soon. James Keene, the millionaire broker, it is announced on good authority, is preparing to send to the distressed people in Ireland a ship-load of grain, his contribution to their relief. J. W. Donahue, treasurer of the Parnell Irish famine relief fund, acknowledges the receipt of $933 33 up to date."

Wilmington began the good work early, and probably pearly $1,000 has been contributed by its citizens.

Gen. J. B. Kershaw gives an authentic account in the Charleston News & Courier of the manner with which a Confederate soldier at the battle of Fredericksburg risked his life to give water to his dying foes. The soldier's name was Richard Kirkland, of Kershaw county, South Carolina. His father was a substantial farmer of the olden time. We copy an interesting and inspiring para-

"For an hour and a half did this ministering angel pursue his labor of mercy, nor ceased to go and return until he relieved all the wounded on that part of the field. He returned to his post wholly unhurt. Who shall say how sweet his rest that winter's night beneath the cold stones! "Little remains to be told. Kirkland distinguished himself in battle at Gettysburg, and was promoted to lieutenant. At Chicksmauga he fell on the field of battle, in the hour of victory. He was but youth when called away, and had never formed those ties from which might have resulted a posterity to enjoy his fame and bless his country; but he has bequeathed to the American youth, yea, to the world, an example which dignifies our common hu-

The Henderson Review has a grievance. It complains that an extract taken from that paper, upon which we commented, was credited to the Hendersonville Courier. In the body of the comment the Review was called by name. The mistake was awkward. We do not see any other good grounds of complaint on the part of the Review. We had a right of the oxygen of the air, which is set free to complain that an original paragraph was copied from the STAR without credit. No one this way knows of the Border Review. We give the names of towns to designate

The fellow Simmons, over whom the Georgia delegation are split up, an ignorant, narrow, illiterate preacher, who wants to be supervisor of the census "just to triumph over the secesh traitors." The Richmond State's correspondent says of the fight: "It strikes outsiders as worthy of notice that Senator Hill and Mr. Stephens are fighting the battle of those who have defeated the regular Democratic organization in Georgia. The fight seems to draw the line between the regular Democrats and Independents in Georgia, and designates Gordon as the leader of one and Ben. Hill of the other.'

Shot Himself.

Intelligence was received in this city last evening that Mr. E. F. Riddick, a telegraph operator at Charlotte, N. C., had shot and killed himself, at his home in that city, yesterday afternoon. Whether it was a case of accidental shooting or suicide was not stated. It is supposed, however, that it was intentional. All that is known is that after attending to his duties at the Telegraph office he went home to dinner at the usual hour, and whilst in a room at his house shot himself through the left breast, dying almost

Mr. Riddick was well known in this community, having been stationed here several months as one of the operators of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was of a lively and genial nature, and held in high esteem by many friends.
