EVENING EDITION.

THE MONROE DOOTEINE IN CON-

There have been reported in the House some resolutions concerning the celebrated Monroe doctrine. The well informed correspondent of the Richmond Commonwealth says of

"They embody the result of careful study and investigation by eleven gentlemen specially charged with the subject, among whom are some of the best intellects of the House. Every assertion of principle and every word was carefully weighed, and the result is a series of resolutions which assert the old American and Democratic doctrine on this subject."

Among the Democrats Messrs. Reagan and Stephens are not satisfied with the resolutions in their entirety. The Republicans will be united on them. The committee is composed of seven Democrats and four Republicans.

In this connection it is in point to refer to the proposed grand Democratic mass meeting in New York, to be composed of Democrats of every shade of opinion. The object, as we mentioned before, is principally to heal the breach, if possible, now existing in the party, and, secondly, to sustain President Hayes's message in which he favors the application of the Monroe doctrine to the Isthmus Canal which Count De Lesseps proposes to construct. The New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger - an Independent paper-

"The idea is that here, at least, is one great question upon which all good Democrats can cordially unite, and if they thus can be brought together under one roof on a question of national policy, it is thought quite possible that, with a little careful diplomacy, the door may be open for restoring a better feeling as regards home politics. The speakers, of course, will be evenly apportioned between the friends of Mr. l'ilden and those of Mr. Kelly, and the moral effect of seeing these long estranged brethren on the same platform supporting the same resolutions, it is believed, would immensely facilitate subsequent overtures for harmony and peace. True, there would be something anomalous in the speciacle of a Democratic popular demonstration in favor of a policy marked out by a Repub-lican President, but this can be put up with on the theory that, after all, it is a Demo-cratic principle which he has espoused."

We noted the other day that for the first time there was agreement between a Democratic House and the de facto President, a Republican. As been concocted wherewith to tickle ing cry of Polk and Dalias in 1844, __ the close of his article : "54-40 or fight."

The President takes the ground that the Panama Causi should be controlled by this country because it is virtually an extension of the coastline of the United States. But may not Mexico and Central America set up the same plea, specially as they are nearer to the scene of operations? We find in a Republican paper, the Philadelphia Weekly Notes, the fol-lowing comment which is worth reading, and suggests a nut or two to

PUBLISHER'S ANNUNUMMENT. I done, we do not understand. Do they desire to forbid the Freuchmen to undertake the work, or do they invist that Americans shall own a controlling interest, or do they wish the route of the canal to become American territory? The second of these proposals is easily met. America, either by private subscription or public appropriation, can secure a majority interest in the stock, and can thus transfer the property of the company by sale to any American cor-poration at any future date. But we see no indication of such a desire; the oppo-nents of the canal do not talk about money, and, for that matter, neither do its friends to the extent necessary. The $168; 000,000 needed to cut a ship canal at sea evel across the Isthmus is still far from

"The third plan, that of virtually or for mally annexing the Isthmus, would be very unwise. It would give us no advantages in peace, and great responsibilities in war. Our present frontier is hard enough to defend, without adopting outlying spots at a distance, with no road for reaching them by land, and no ships to get at them by

INLAND NAVIGATION.

Owing to the demands made upon our space recently by railroad topics we have not been able to copy the dispatch sent from Washington to the New York Times, of the date of the 7th, relative to the inland water routes from Norfolk, Va. to the Cape Fear River. The STAR has many times discussed the importance of this route both as a measure of protection to the country in time of war as well as affording a grand commercial water communication. ..

In 1878 an act of Congress provided for the survey of this route, and we learn from the Times that full reports of the surveyors have been made to Congress. We will copy the main portions of the special to the Times as furnishing the information needed by the people of this section. The distance is 292 miles By the proposed route Hatters can be avoided. We quote:

There are already two inland routes from Norfolk to Albemarie Sound. A cana runs southward through the Dismal Swamp to the Pasquotank river, and another—the Albemarie & Chesapeake Canal-connects Norfolk harbor with the North Landing

The distance of each is 72 miles. We quote again:

"It was proposed to secure in these two routes a depth of nine feet, with a channel 80 feet wide at the bottom, and to provide feet in the clear. The necessary improvements in the Dismal Swamp Canal would cost $1,483,646; the improvement of the natural waterway approaches of this canal would call for $8,976 more. The work to be done on the Albemarle & Chesapeake Canal would cost $509,702, and its natural waterway approaches could be put in the required condition for $200,629, $70,000 of which has already been appropriated. From Albemarle Sound the route is clear to the mouth of the Neuse River and the lower extremity of Core Sound. Several lines were surveyed from these points to the Cape Fear river. * * The engineers in charge of the work now under consideration laid out an inland route from the Trent river—a branch of the Neuse—crossing White Oak river and New River at tide water, and intersecting the northeast branch of the Cape Fear river at Lane's Ferry. A canal on this line would about 60 miles. They also laid out a shore route. This runs from the Neuse to the Newport river, by way of the Clubfoot and Harlow Canal thence by Newport river and Pettiford's Creek to the mouth of White Oak river, and then to Masonboro Inlet by way of the narrow sounds, which lie along the coast. The route would be continued to the Cape Fear river below Wilmington by an open cut across the peninsula, by way of Whiskey and Barnard's Creeks. Nearly 60 miles of this shore canal would be constructed through marshes and islands, and would lie about three miles from the outer line of Sand Islands, which would protect it from the ocean. The engineers express a preference for this short route, the length of which would be 102 miles. The cost is estimated at $5,695,000, or about $55,750 per mile. The cost, therefore, of constructing a water route 9 feet deep and 80 feet wide, from Nerfolk harbor to the Cape Fear river below Wilmington, would be, by way of the Dismal Swamp Canal, $6,405,331, and by way of the Albemarie and Chesapeake Canal $7,187,622."

The engineers recommend the Albemarle and Chesapeake. The cost to improve it is placed at $36,800 per mile. The work could be done in a

The State owes a duty to her taxpaying citizens in this matter that cannot be evaded, and a special duty equally imperative and unavoidable to her people beyond the Blue Ridge."

There never was a time before in the history of North Carolina when the office-seeker, the office bolder and the lawyer manifested such a deep, such a warm, such a wide-

the body politic-the long-suffering and heavily burdened and long op pressed taxparer.

The paper manufacturers are doing their best to secure a continuance of their monopoly, but they will be whipped out probably. We are glad to see that the Ways and Means Committee are not unfriendly to the newspaper men. The duty on paper and printing material ought to be removed, and not merely reduced. The tax is a tax on intelligence. It is a restriction—an embargo placed upon the education of the people, for the larger part of the people make newspapers their only mental aliment. If the paper manufacturers are allewed to exercise their exorbitant proclivities without restraint the price of papers, periodicals and books must advance proportionately. Sugar, coffee, clothing, &c., have advanced already. So will it be with reading matter, it of the total perfect of the contract of the contrac

The proceedings of the meeting held at Lockwood's Folly, and published in the STAR of yesterday, are not without interest to Wilmington. It is another movement to secure more speedy and direct water communication with our city. The people of that section appear to be in earnest, and they have taken the most certain way of accomplishing the end in view. Judge Russell has charge of the matter in the House, and General Ransom will no doubt use his influence in the Senate in behalf of the memorialists. The STAR did not publish the memorial, &c., because of the pressure on our columns. It was thought best to hand the papers over to Judge Russell who left for Washington on Saturday

Strikes ordinarily are not profitsble. The men of wealth can always triumph if they so elect. Witness the failure of the piano workmen in New York. Four thousand are without employment, the manufacturers preferring to shut up rather than yield to the demands of the employes. It matters not how much of justice there may be in the demands labor can never fight capital successfully where the latter is resolute. A half losf is better than no bread, and it is unwise to give up one place until you have secured another one that will answer. It is wiser "to bear the ills you have than to fly to these you know not of." We notice that strikes are becoming quite common again. This is owing to the rise in the cost

Modern scholarship is playing havon with old ways of spelling ancient names. The latest change, or correction, if it be such, we have noticed is the spelling of the great Latin poet's name in a recent work by H. Nettleship for the Classical Series being published under the editorial supervision of the English historian, John Richard Green. Mr. Nettleship writes Vergil. We also notice that John Addington Symonds, in his two splendid volumes on the Greek Poets, spells the name of one of the great Greek sculptors-Pheidias. The old familiar way is Phidias.

Henry Ward Beecher is so familiar with Renan's 'Lafe of Christ' that he can recite the whole of it from memory,— Worlden Mariba Washburnblow We describe on this with the description than indignation that Maj. Wilson, the President of the Western North Carolina Railread thompson has issued his usase to the Carolina Central Railway, by which higher rates on all freights are demanded from people resident on the line of the Western North Carolina Railbe cracked. It says:

"Exactly what Mr. Hayes and these in spread, such a lofty interest in the Congress who agree with him, want to have welfare of that important member of connection of the Carolina Central

Railway, than if they ship via Morehead or New Berne and the Rich-words, State Policy, se called, dictates that our friends in the West shall only have the privilege of using one port of this State, however inferior may be its facilities, because foregoth it is desirable to make reveaue for the Richmond & Danville Railroad; we beg parden, we should have said the Richmond & Danville Company's leased North Caro lina Division. We erred in only discovering one pocket to both the North Carolina Division and the main stem. But apart from all attempt at est, the case stands flagrant, and we desire our readers not only in this our seaport city, but also in the West, to understand the true position of affairs. Maj. Wilson says ship your freights via Morehead or Newbern, or pay more. Why is this? Why are our fellow citizens of the West deprived of all communications open to them save one? Why is Wilming. ton to be deprived of its position as an entrepot for the trade of the western part of our own State! We have nothing to say against Morehead or Newbern We wish them all success; we would not close their doors if we could; but in the name of common justice and right we ask the same as is meted out to them, and we denounce it as a wrong to our Western people that they should be deprived by Maj. Wilson of the right to ship their produce as they will or receive their goods as they may elect. We of this Cape Fear region remember how this Railroad Company defied State law and broke gauge with our system of roads on the State Road which they had leased, and now we warn our people, that the next move may be averted. Non-intercourse by this port will be followed by non-intercourse with it. The bands of iron which bind the mountains to our North Carolina seaports at least will next be so distorted by Maj. Wilson that connection will not be recognized, and we presume Gov. Jarvis approves in the name of a North Carolina system. CAPE FEAR.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- National Republican politics are in a singularly chaotic condition at present, and it is difficult to make any estimate of the strength of the forces that will operate upon the nominating convention or of the probable action of that convention. One thing is certain, that the Grant movement is manufactured, and not spontaneous. All the arts and appliances of machine politics have to be brought into use in order to secure votes for him, and it will require an extraordinary amount of labor and audacity to secure his nomination. The man who has the greatest popular strength is, indisputably, Blaine. -Balt. American, Rep.

-- One of the most serious issues dependent on the result of the next Presidential campaign is the reconstruction of the Supreme Court. In all probability three, perhaps four, new Judges of that court will have to be appointed by the next President. Should the latter be a Republican we may expect the present partisan character of the court to be sustained by the appointment of Stalwart politicians. Should be be a Democrat, as we believe and ferventy ly trust he will, the composition of the court will be rendered as nearly non partisan as is possible under the present system of appointment. Thomas Jefferson once asserted that whenever the Supreme Court came to be controlled by a bigoted partisan majority it would be transformed from the chosen guardian of popular liberty to its greatest, most dangerous foe. The wonderful prescience of this declaration is conspicuously illustrated in the recent decisions of that tribunal, which, as we have already shown, practically destroy the autonomy of the States .- Baltimore Gazette Dem.
