EVENING EDITION.

THE SELECTION OF DELEGATES TO THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

The Charleston News & Courier, the Atlanta Constitution, the Mobile Register favor the election of Southern delegates to the Cincinnati Convention without any instructions. They think that they should be left free and untrammelled so that they can take the course that will best unite the party and thereby furnish the strongest guarantees of success. Under the circumstances this will be probably the wisest course. It is almost certain that the South will not vote for Tilden under any circumstances. The opinion is widespread and wisely founded that if nominated he could not carry over half, if so many, of the Southern States. The Southern delegation will, therefore, not be influenced in their judgment by any pressure that may be brought to bear by the Northern Tilden men. The South has had quite enough of him. He has no popularity per se among the Southern people, and it would be a very grave error if he were to be forced upon the country again as a candidate. We agree with the Atlanta Constitution in this opinion:

"The plain duty of the Southern States is to select their best men to represent them in the Convention and to leave them with-

Men ought to be selected who are not "machine politicians," who are not seeking office and have no axes to grind, and who have at heart the good of the country as well as the success of the Democratic party. True, honorable men should be chosen. It sometimes happens that men are selected as delegates because they are men of fortune. We need not say that men should be chosen upon some other test of qualification. A man might have money and be a fool or even corrupt. Let the wisest, most discreet, purest men possible be selected, and then let them have free scope to act for the best. The following from the Charleston News & Courier is in accordance precisely with what the STAR has said before:

"The Southern vote, and none other, will elect the Democratic candidate, and the South will be the chief sufferer if the Republicans wis. While then the Southern delegates should not dictate who shall be the candidate, they should unhesitatingly tell the Convention that Mr. Tilden cannot carry the Southern States, and that the South cannot afford to go into the fight with the certainty of losing."

The true end that should be sought is victory. It will not begin to do to allow personal favoritism, or sectional dislikes, or sentimentality to control or influence the choice of candidates. The man to be selected is the man who can beat Grant or any Stalwart. for none other will be nominated by the Republicans. Who is the man? The STAR unwaveringly believes that instance, is popular in the South because of his bigh personal worth, his great purity of character, his constant sympathy for our people. But the very things that make him s favorite in the South will make him weak in the North. After Seymour probably Judge Field would be the most available candidate. We do not agree with our Charleston contemporary when it says that "the man corthiest of election is the man to nominate regardless of any other consideration." This would prove fatal as a general rule. In the particular case in view it would not, for it happens that Mr. Seymour is at once as worthy as any other and the most available. In the matter of nominating candidates it is wise to consider another question besides personal worth. It is wise to inquirecan he be elected. In politics the object is to have control of the government. To do this you must have your men elected. To have them elected they must be popular as well as worthy. In the elections held in this country for President and other officers it has turned out very often that the "worthy" man has been left at home, whilst the popular man-the available man--has gone into office. It s judicious and proper and sagacious that in selecting candidates you seek to combine personal worth with availability.

THE COST OF PUBLICATION AND

The Charleston News & Courier has an editorial upon the extraordinary increase of expenses in publishing newspapers. It says that paper, within a few months, has advanced from 6 to 10 cents a pound. That is to say, a paper that paid out $6,000 s year for paper must now pay $10,000. Where is this extra $4,000 to come from? None but the rich papers can stand such an increase. Advertising is not as good now in Wilmington as it was six or eight years ago. The people in this section of the State are probably not as able to take a paper now as they were then. The field is North Carolina is limited. You can only get so many subscribers whatever may be your efforts to extend your circulation, and however you may incur expense in making a better paper. If the STAR paid out annually double what it does, thereby increasing its value in some respects, it could not extend its circulation in any proportionate degree. The number of accessible readers is comparatively small, and no efforts can increase it very greatly if you look steadily at the question of

What then is to be done to meet the unreasonable rise in printing material? The people, or some of them, must have, will have a paper, daily or weekly. They must have the commercial, political and general news. If publishers cannot get an nerease of advertising, and a very large increase of circulation, what must they do to meet the necessary expenses to be incurred in publishing a paper that meets the demands of fair-minded and intelligent people?

The papers in the North and in many parts of the South have advanced their rates already. Two of the New York dailies have been constrained to put up their subscription rates. When sugar or bonnets or ready made clothing advance the additional cost comes out of the consumers-out of those who eat and wear. Is there any good reason why a similar advance in printing material -in the cost of publishing a newspaper, should not come out of the consumers-out of those who read and enjoy and are profited in one way or another?

The STAR will neither increase its advertising nor subscription rates at present. We hope the price of paper, &c., will decline before very long, and thus obviate the necessity of an increase. It is true that for some months the entire cost of the advance is upon us, but we are unwilling to resort to unusual methods of meeting the difficulty until we have seen that the advanced prices are to be maintained. As our Charleston contemporary says: "This is sure to be an unusually active year in newspaper circles. Thousands who pay no heed to the press in ordinary times read newspapers diligently during the months when the President is to be nominated and elected. The only thing likely to check this is an advance in subscription rates." The STAR will try to keep up to its present standard as a newspaper and to be efficient in the approaching campaign. It will do this at the old rates if possible. Our friends ought to appreciate our practice, and to show it by sending us subscribers for

75 per cent in the cost of printing

We judge that Mr. Montgomery Blair is in the way of the attempts to reconcile the two Democratic factions who are waging such a bitter war against each other. At any rate the members of what is known in New York as the "Democratic Union Association," whose chief mission it is to bring about a good understanding between the antagonizing wings, have written to Mr. Blair asking him to desist from letter writing for the papers in which he attacks John Kelly. They plead for harmony. The New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger says of the efforts of the Association referred to above to heal

"What they especially protest against is Mr. Blair's allegation, in his last published communication, that 'the Kelly bolt has been instigated by the Southern leaders, in order to defeat Tilden.' If the Kelly faction is so powerful as this accusation implies, 'the Democratic Union' says it is a much more important body than they have peretofore believed. But Mr. Blair is informed that he exaggerates the importance of Mr. Kelly with the Southern leaders, and that these exaggerations must have the effect, not only of repelling the Southern eaders from alliances with the Northern Democracy, but of making trouble generally. Finally, it is suggested that, if Mr. Blair can do nothing to help restore the unity of the party in New York, he is ap-pealed to at least to refrain from making a bad state of affairs worse."

The Indians in this country have but few friends. Secretary Schurz made a bargain, it seems, with the Ute Indians, but the terms did not meet the approval of the Colorado delegation, they regarding the terms of that bargain as too liberal. That our readers may see how generous and munificent are the terms objected to by the Colorado delegation we copy the following from the New

"The Utes are forced to surrender, in this compact, about twelve millions of acres of land, a large part of which, as Schurz exultingly says, is mineral land of great value. They are to be paid for it an annuity of $50,000, which is at the rate of 2 2-5 acres for a cent annually. There are about four thousand Utes, so that, as it is provided that the annuity shall be per capits, they would each realize one four-thousandth part of a cent annually for each portion of 225 acres, or a total-dividing the $50,000 into 4,000 shares of $12 50 annually.

"The Colorado delegation hold that this is quite too liberal; that the Utes will rapidly become millionaires under the arrangement, and instead of being enormous real estate holders, as now, that they will simply be converted into capitalists without his counterpoise of a severe income tax."

We do not detain our readers with a statement of the changes demanded by the delegation from Colorado aforesaid. The Schurz terms were mean and illiberal enough in all conscience. The other terms are meaner.

The late Bishop Gil Haven was much addicted to writing very harsh things concerning the South. He made Atlanta, Georgia, a sort of headquarters when in the South, and took special pleasure in dipping his pen in soids and in sending out malicious and cruel slanders upon our people. He rarely found anything to commend. He seemed full of spites, and did all he could as a bishop in a great dominant church in the North to poison the minds of his people against us. Bishop Simpson is a dignitary of another type. He is the great orator in Northern Methodism. He is a man of very exceptional powers. He, too, has been in the South. He, too, has been "takin' notes" and has written concerning the South. He views us through kindly, christian eyes, and says:

"I cannot but think it is almost a miracle that even so much of quiet, good order and kindly feeling prevail (in the South) so soon after the total revolution which occurred in Bouthern society."

Major W. A. Hearne is addressing series of letters to the President of the Cincinnata Chamber of Commerce on the subject of North Carolina seaports and their railway connections with the Northwest. We have not had time to read his first letter, which we find in the Raleigh Observer of the 7th inst., but will do so, and probably have something to say in these columns.

The Iowa Democrats, in their State Convention, are for maintaining the old Democratic rule of two-thirds to make a nomination. They also instructed their delegates to vote as a Democratic Senators in Cancus on the Spofford-Kellegg Case-Meeting of the House Judiciary and Blections Committees.

[By Telegraph to the Morning Star.]

Washington, April 7.—The Democratic Senators met in caucus to-day. They were nominally called to consider the order of business, with the view of arranging matters for an early adjournment, but really for the purpose of considering the Spofford-Kellogg case. No action was taken, and the caucus adjourned to meet again at 4 o'clock P. M., if the Senate adjourned in time, if not to meet in a day or two. The sentiment was in favor of postponing the case until the appropriation bills are passed and other necessary legis-lation had been attended to.

The House Committee on the Judiciary discussed at some length this morning the question of the power of the S nate to prignate appropriation bills, and pending discussion adjourned. The House Elections Committee will hold a sessian to-morrow to take action in the case of Yeates vs. Martin, of North On Tuesday nextes report on the Donnelly Washburne case will be presented to the committee and Representative Manoing expresses the intention of immediately calling the matter up in the House, with a Loss of the Stilles Steamer Syria-Arrival of the Crow at New York. By Telegraph to the Morning Star.]

New York, April 8.—The steamer Gel-lert, Capt. Kuhleween, from Hamburg, which arrived yesterday, reports that on April 4, at 5 o'clock in the morning, lst. 41.35, long. 59.38, she met the British steamer Syria, Capt. Johnson, from New Orleans for Liverpool, with rudder lost, and stern-post and main discharge pipe broken, which rendered the vessel entirely unmanageable. The captain came on board and asked to be taken in tow. Gave them one of our steel hawsers, and took one of her eleven-inch hawsers and secured them well, and started slowly ahead. The Syria, not being under control, went from one side to the other, which floally parted both hawsers. Finding it impossible to tow the vessel, signalled Capt. Johnson to that effect, and a boat with a portion of the Syria's crew, with their luggage, then came aboard, and soon after Capt. Johnson, who made every effort to induce his men or a portion of them to return to the ship, but all refused, and also refused to do duty on the Gellert, in case any of her men would volunteer to go with him and try to save his ship. Capi, Johnston applied to Capt. Kuhleween to give him some men, when Capt. K. sent an officer and an engineer on beard the Syria to examine her. They reported that in their opinion it was not safe to send the men on board, as the vessel could not possibly float much longer, consequently Capt. Kuhleween refused the men asked for.

The Syrian was then abandoned by her entire crew, except Capt. Johnson, who remained on board and again asked for men to help save the vessel, which was refused. Capt. Johnson at last seeing the utter uselessness of his remaining aboard alone, consented to come aboard the Gellert, and all were brought to this port. The Syria's cargo consisted of four hundred bales of cotton and two hundred tons of oil cake
