The entire capital stock of the new Opera House in New York has been taken. It will be a grand affair and will cost over $600,000.

The Democrats in Washington are very indifferent over the squabbles in New York and Tilden's success. They regard him as out of the race. So says the Herald's Washington special.

They called Tilden's meeting "the Circus" and John Kelly's "the sideshow." In the one Uncle Samuel was the Ring-master, whilst John turned the crank of the hand-organ in the other.

Gen. Jo Johnston's purpose not to stand for another election has drawn forth many regrets in Washington, even among the members of the opposition. Virtue and honor are still appreciated in the land.

The policy of conciliation does not conciliate in Russia. Gen. Melikoff is represented as disgusted and finds that gentle means do not work well in dealing with the Nihilists. A vigorous policy will be adopted at once.

"A Study in Colonial History," delivered before the Society on the 26th day of November, 1879, by Hon, George Davis. The lecture, as its title shows, is a treatise on the early history of our State under the proprietary government, and its main object, as its distinguished author intimates, is to correct some of the numerous errors of the his torians in treating of the events of that early period, including the civil commotion known as Carev's Rebellion. It is replete with valuable information to those who desire to be properly posted in the events of the past and obtain some insight into the character and personality of the leaders in the stirring times of which it treats. At this meeting it transpired that a site for the proposed hotel, said to be worth $2,000. had been subscribed, and also $1,400 in money. It was resolved that books of subscription be opened, and that when $2,500 shall be subscribed the company is to be organized, but work not to commence until the whole amount of stock (not less than $10,000), is subscribed. It was also decided to employ a draftsman to draw designs for the building. Our Smithville friends are displaying a great deal of interest in the matter, and we sincerely hope they may succeed in getting the necessary stock subscribed at an early day.
