WALLACE'S REPORT ON THE ELECTION LAWS IN RHODE ISLAND.

The report of Senator Wallace's special committee concerning the election frauds perpetrated in the little State of Rhode Island is well calculated to provoke discussion.

The South has been abused and slandered about bull-dozing, Massachusetts has practically disfranchised some one hundred and twenty thousand of its white men, and "little Rhodey" has gone into the business on a scale far too great for such an unimportant speck on this ball of earth.

It is believed that she has one more member of Congress and one more vote in the Electoral College than she is fairly entitled to. Foreign born citizens are not allowed to vote in this Republican State.

Land being scarce it is consequently very high. This practically excludes a great many voters and places the power in the hands of the rich. The Washington correspondent of the Richmond Commonwealth says:

"A senator honored for his high character, prudence and conservatism, remarked the other day that he was satisfied that nearly every office in the gift of the people of Rhode Island was a purchasable and purchased article, and he attributed this to the corrupt influence of a few men who control the political destinies of the State."

What Congress will do about it we cannot say, but it is certain that if such a condition of affairs existed in any Southern State there would be an endless howl in every Republican paper, and you would never hear the last of it until the gross evils complained of were remedied.

Rhode Island has not a republican form of government, and we hope the Democrats will not let the matter rest. The Philadelphia Times takes this view of the Rhode Island despotism:

"We have had much Congressional discussion, some violent legislation and more despotism of revolutionary laws in the reconstructed States; but when the organic and statutory laws of the States are carefully inquired into, Rhode Island stands single and alone as insolently defying the spirit of the fundamental law of the nation."

"Mr. Thomas Davis, once a large property owner and a member of Congress from that State, subsequently lost his fortune and is now voiceless in the selection of a successor to the seat he filled with credit. The native-born citizen, black or white, can vote without property, but the naturalized citizen must possess a freehold to be any part in the direction of his own government."

"Rhode Island every day, small and contemptible as she is as to size and influence, defies the Fourteenth amendment to the Constitution, and her laws are as unjust as unconstitutional. The Times thus shows how the election laws of that State operate. It says:

"Our friend of Hale's Weekly says we are at fault as to the fact of a second letter by Mr. Banks, formerly of Fayetteville. Very likely. We are sure that we have met with other evidence but we do not now remember where. We are sure we read the two letters by two British officers, written immediately after the battle to their respective families at home, and that long afterwards these letters were published. But unless we can find them our recollection amounts to nothing. We may after awhile be able to throw some light upon Guilford Court House from another source. The editor of Hale's Weekly knows whereof he affirms in the following interesting paragraph:
