WILMINGTON, N. C .: WEDNESDAY EVENING, May 12, 1880

EVENING EDITION

THE DOCTORS IN COUNCIL. That ends the strange eventful history -As Fou Like It.

We referred in a brief paragraph yesterday to the meeting of the State Medical Convention in Wilmington. We stop now to remark upon the very manifest improvement in the medical profession, and the number of skilful practitioners there are now located at various points in the State. The progress in the ability, accomplishments, and success of the profession is as marked as are the charges which the theory and practice of medicine have undergone within the last thirty or forty years. There may not be now any physicians of greater ability and skill than there were thirty or forty years since, but the number of skilled practitioners has inereased, whilst the general standard of excellence has been much elevated and improved. So at least it appears to an unprofessional observer. We are glad to be able to say truthfully so much with reference to the facts as we understand them. The whole people are intimately concerned in the triumphs of the medical profession. There can be no possible discovery in the curative science that shall not affect them. There can be no possible advance in the ability of physicians that shall not directly interest the people, for their health, and often their lives, depend upon the skill of the doctor. Whilst quackery, charlatanry is the bane of the profession and an actual curse to the human family, the man of science, of skill, of devotion, of sympathy, is a positive friend and benefactor. Said Lord Bacon, "the poets did well to conjoin music with medicine, because the office of medicine is but to tune the curious harp of man's body." The man of real science is to be honored always. He who can enter noiselessly the sick room and sitting by the bedside can diagnose correctly-can detect precisely the condition of the patient and the ply such remedies as will help nature for God had endowed him with exestablish a cure, is indeed a great traordinary talents that had been blessing to the sufferers. Nature is largely improved by study and reflecthe great medicatrix after all, and tion. In honoring his memory we the man of science will help Nature | honor the noble profession of which in her great work of restoration, of he was so rarely gifted a member. throwing off disease, and will not obstruct or hinder her processes. It is and the man of science exists: it is tect the difference between the bun-

were performing their proper functions. Indeed, the great dramatist said that "by medicine life may be prolonged." If Napoleon had been supplied with thirty grains of lacteopeptine or inglavin he would not have lost one of his most important battles. Bad cooking and a disordered stomach did the work for him. He had the dyspepsia, and his mighty brain and will-power refused to assert themselves.

The great desideratum in this life is health, mental and physical. Mens sana in corpore sano, said the Latins. The skilful doctor is the best friend because he can help to put the human machine-cunningly and curiously and delicately fashioned-in good running order. All honor then, say we, to the man of true science! Al honor to the North Carolina Medical Convention, with its examining boards, that tends to make physicians better in their practice, and to elevate and dignify the profession. All honor to the faithful physician whose mission is mercy, and to whose patient, watchful skill man, "fearful ly and wonderfully made," is so much indebted for health, and even for life itself. Life! what is so wonderful in all this world as life? What is the physical world, grand and beautiful as it is, compared with life? What are the majestic mountains, or "heaven's ebon vault," or the sounding cataracts, or the foaming, crawling, angry sea, or the night and the day, or the carious tides, or the changing seasons with all their wonder-working, compared with life? "Life is the soul of the world, but for which creation were not. It is life which is the grand glory of the world; it was, indeed, the consummation of creative power, at which the morning stars sang together for joy." How sweet is life! What will not a man give for his life? It is dearer to him than all this world contains, save honor and love. It is then with life that the physician has to do. His potent drugs may bring back the roseate hue to the fading cheek of beauty or restore to the wasting frame of the prostrate stalwart the robust currents of life. To

Hudibrastic description,

We have laid aside for the time our political pen to submit these crude reflections. A mere "looker on in Vienna," and knowing nothingof medical books, we only presume to stand on the outside and cheer on the doctors gathered in council. Before closing we would pay brief but richly deserved tribute to one man of genius who 'was born in Granville county; was Professor in Transylvania University, Kentucky; was endowed with a superb intellect which had been finely cultivated; who wrote with admirable elegance and precision; whose conversational powers were of the highest, but who fell a victim to drink and perished when his fine intellect was at meridian. We allude to the late Dr. Loton G. Watson, whose genius for medicine was something to be wondered at. He has been in his grave thirty years. Twenty years before he passed away he had discarded the practice then in vogue. It is not too much to say that Dr. Watson was full thirty years in advance of his times as is well known to the oldest and most eminent physician now living in that county, with possibly one exception. His practice in 1835, for instance, was quite like that of 1880. We merely state the fact without enlarging. He did not learn this from the books, for they were not then written. He did not learn this from his brethren, for their theory and practice were altogether different. He learnt it at the bedside, and drew it from that capacious and ingenious mind that was so richly stored and so causes of his illness, and then can ap- original. He deserves a memorial,

The organs do not like the aspect just here, as we apprehend it, that of the Whittaker case. The two exthe difference between the charlatan perts in hand-writing who were summoned to West Point to dejust here the close observer may de- tect the author of the note of warning sent the colored cadet. gler and the skilful physician. Car- with the hope that it would fasten Tyle bitterly says that "the reign of guilt upon the whites and posquacks has not ended with the nine- sibly upon some youth from the South, have rather surprised the said Shakespeare says "throw physic to organs. They evidently believe that to the dogs," but the greatest of men Whittaker is the author of his own said this no doubt when his liver and note, and, if so, is the author also of the course of time-33 per cent. propose they had said the note was clearly written by Cadet Secesh from Alabama. Would not the testimony of such experts have been deemed sufficient to warrant the most unmeasured denunciation of such Southern barbarity, &c.? We know it would. Then the organs insist that Whittaker had no reason for treating himself as is alleged. But there is the handwriting, besides other evidence, to fasten guilt upon the negro.

A COLORED CANDIDATE. We are delighted to learn that the Republicans in Washington are disgruntled no little over the threatened candidacy of Senator Bruce for the Presidency. It will be the proper thing if such a retribution overtakes the unfaithful Republicans. They have used the negro for their own questionable purposes, and now they are threatened with a penalty the very thought of which produces nau-

'They digged a pit, They digged it deep, They digged it for their brother; But, to punish their sin, They did fall in The pit they digged for t'other."

sea. The poisoned chalice is now commended to their own lips.

The Washington special to the Richmond State says:

"The Republicans are vexed at any menion of Senator Bruce, of Mississippi, as a candidate for Vice President, even though they depend upon his race to nominate Grant and to poll half of their vote on election day. In fact, they declare that Turner, the colored ex-Minister to Liberia, has been bought by the Democrats just because he is urging the claims of Senator Bruce. The Senator will find that white Republicans care no more for him than their sons do for Cadet Whittaker. Senator Bruce presided the other day in the Senate, and discharged the duties of Vice President most acceptably.'

Why should not the colored voters press the claims of their own race for a high office? They are equal before the law. The Republican organs and leaders are eternally prating about the social equality of the negroes with the whites. They swear there shall be equality at West Point. Why not have equality then in the distribution of high and important offices?

The colored people, if self-respectng, will not agree to be snubbed by their white allies much longer. Why should the colored people be required once every year to rally to the Republican flag and do some strong voting, and never get a chance to grease their chops in the Government smoke house or fill their stomachs with bread from the Government corn-crib? Turn about is fair play. Patting on the shoulder, a little bit of hand-shaking now and then butter no parsnips and satisfy no pangs of hunger. It is said to be a fact that in many sections of the South there is an active movement on foot in behalf of Senator Bruce. The Norfolk Virginian reports such a movement in that city. We quote:

"Joseph T. Wilson is very flat-footed when, as it is reported, he demands from the Readjuster element in this city now seeking the negro vote, 'an equal division of office. It must be good half and half, otherwise no combination can be effected. Tom Paige, it is said, raps the nail on the head with a ringing force when he asserts that he sees no reason why the Conservative administration should not remain in office, so far as it affects the colored people, unless there is to be an equal divide of the spoils.' If they do not give this recognition they will run a 'straightout,' or allow matters to remain as they are, and let the white folks fight i out between themselves. 'This line of policy is to be applied to the Republican party, not only in muni-cipal and State affairs, but also in the Naional contest. An important move is now on foot among the negro delegates to the Chicago Convention to secure for Senator Bruce, of Mississippi, the second place on the National ticket."

The leader of this movement as to the Vice Presidency is a distinguished colored man named Milton Turner, who was Grant's Minister to Liberia. We see it mentioned that a Bruce literary bureau is to be opened in Washington and the Bruce boom is to become a reality. So be it.

We have heard of no stir as yet in this section. Whether the colored people want office or not does not just yet appear. Possibly they may be satisfied to sit around and see the white allies eating the roasting ears. The office of Lieutenant Governor is thought to be a good place. Some three Lieutenant Governors have become Governors. James Harris or some other intelligent colored leader would make a good candidate. No man will be estimated higher than the estimate he puts upon himself. If the colored voters are satisfied with voting the Democrats will not

A South Carolina planter, in one of the papers of that State, estimates the cost of producing a pound of cotton under the present system at about six cents. This is the lowest estimatewe have seen in a long time, and we incline to the belief that it is an under estimate. If it does not cost more than six cents then a good farmer will get rich at eight cents in stomach were healthful, and they his own mutilation. The organs say fit annually-and at ten or twelve

> The Grant men- are still whistling loud to keep their courage up. It is evident they are in trouble. The 'strong man" somehow does not appear as strong as he did a week or two ago. The following from the State's special is not without interest: "James R. Young, of the Philadelphia Star, who is an ardent Grant man, and brother of John Russell Young, who accompanied the ex-President around the world, writes to his paper in rather a despondent tone. 'On the surface,' he says, 'it would seem that the Grant lines were about to waver, and that it would be impossible for them to remain unbroken with the heavy fire that is directed against them.' He sug gests that a combination will be necessary now to beat Blaine. "A prominent politician in this city states hat he has letters from two influential Pennsylvania delegates to Chicago, in which they positively declare they will not under any circumstances vote for Grant on

"It is understood that with Grant out of he way Garfield will consent to make the Sherman nominating speech; and no man could do it more effectively than he."

We like to do good and to administer to the necessities of those in distress. The presence in our city of so many members of the Esculapian art reminds us that it is a merciful act to pity those that are afflicted and to relieve the pains of those that are sick. We play, therefore, the part of a good Samaritan, and apply the following porous plaster to the back of the Sherman boom in North Carolina. The Richmond State's correspondent writes from Washington on "Any substantial weakening of Grant will tend to strengthen Sherman, particularly in Massachusetts, Vermont and New Jersey. One of the shrewdest Republican politicians remarked to me to-day that he must admit, though reluctantly, that as soon as it shall appear that Grant cannot be nominated, many Republicans in the New England States would go for Sherman to beat Blaine. Hitherto they have felt it necessary to favor Grant as the best man to put down Blaine, who is regarded by the mass of Republicans in the Eastern States, except Maine, as a very objectionable candidate on account of his vulnerable record."

The attention of botanists is being drawn to the magnificent flora of North Carolina. Prof. Asa Gray, the most eminent botanist of the North, paid our State a visit some time ago. The reader will find a reference to it in our State news department of yesterday. The botanists should visit this section. In Brunswick county, we learn, there are very rare flowers, two specimens of which are now in the Kensington Gardens, in London, and are amongst the greatest curiosities in the wonderful floral kingdom. The late Rev. Dr. M. A. Curtis, who had a fine reputation, as we happen to know, among London botanists, said that in an area of six square miles in Brunswick be found more strange and striking flowers than he had ever known else-

Enniss's North Carolina Farmer is an excellent publication of the kind and is well worth the subscription, $1 a year. It is strictly a farming monthly.

New York is to have another big dog show. There are 219 entries from New York alone. Gen. Roger A. Pryor sends a fine dog.

The Kelly men need $50,000 and are hard at work trying to raise it. This, they say, will be done. But Uncle Sam has "barl's."

The time rapidly approaches for the annual College Commencement. We hope the usual number of D. D.'s will be omitted, unless they are made out of better maerial than the average ones. The title is so often unworthily bestowed, it has almost fallen into disrepute. - Warrenton Gazette.

We agree emphatically with the sentinent that good moral men should be nominated for office, but while this sentiment probably commends itself to a majority o the voters, who has a well arranged plan by which the sentiment can be enforced? We ask the question with solicitude, because we would gladly cooperate in carrying out so important and so necessary a principle. reensboro Protestant.

portant Amendments. [By Telegraph to the Morning Star.] Washington, May 12 .- The Senate Committee on Appropriations this morning received a report of the sub-committee on the Post Office Appropriation bill, and after considerable discussion instructed Mr. Wallace to report the bill to the Senate with a number of important amendments. The committee strike out the whole of the House requirements for reletting the expedited Star Bervice contracts, and also the clause authorizing the Postmaster General to remit, in favor of the colonies of New Caledonia and New South Wales, so much of the charge for overland transportation of the Australian mails as he may deem just. The committee add the following amounts to the House items for the purposes named: $350,000 for railroad mail transportation; $50,000 for steamboat mail service: $25,000 for the pay of mail messengers, and $75,000

The Strike of the Blackburn Cotton Operatives-No Perceptible Influence on the Manchester Market-France and the Unauthorized Religious Communities.

[By Cable to the Morning Star.] BLACKBURN, May 12 .- A meeting of delegates from twenty-five towns in the northern counties, after hearing the result of the Manchester meeting, resolved to recommend operatives to remain at work. A meeting of 8000 weavers, however, resolved to strike. BLACKBURN, May 12.-From 27,000 to 35,000 operatives will be thrown idle this morning on account of the strike. Many lowns in North and Northeast Lancashire have promised support. A protracted struggle is apprehended, and precautions against rioting have been taken.

MANCHESTER, May 12.- The Manchester Guardian, in its commercial article this morning, says the strike of the Blackburn cotton operatives and the "short time" by which it will be accompanied in other districts in North Lancashire, have exercised no perceptible influence on this market. The supply of goods in comparison with the current requirements is ample. and buyers do not seem to anticipate any scarcity. The Masters' Association, Oldham, recommend a week's holiday.

Paris, May 12.—A semi-official note has been sent to the Provincial papers, stating that the directors of unauthorized religious communities appear resolved to await the delay fixed by the decrees, without demanding authorization, and then, if expelled, invoke the law against a violation of domicile and private property. Government has taken measures to meet that emergency. The Prefects, as soon as the Military Councils of Revisions have finished their labors, will be summoned to Paris to receive verbal instructions regarding the carrying out of the decrees.
