The publication of a daily newspaper is a matter of great ex-pense; much greater than those who have no experience in it will think. I have been forced to sustain my paper from my own private means, and from such resources as it could earn. These have been small. It has swept away very nearly all that I had been able to save from the practice of my profession during the preceding years since the war. I am left to-day very nearly where I was when I commenced life. The Commonwealth, therefore, fails for want of means to sustain it."

MRS. But of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing byrap we can speak from knowllow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge; in our own family it has proved a blessing indeed, by giving an infant troubled with colic pains, quiet sleep, and its parents unbroken rest at night. Most parents can appreciate these blessings. Here is an article which works to perfection, and which is harmless; for the sleep which it affords the infant is perfectly natural, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." And during the process of teething its value is incalculable. We have frequently heard mothers say they would not be without it from the birth of the child till it had finished with the teething siege, on any consideration whatever.
