WORNING EDITION

We have seen some photographs of General Hancock, that are indorsintered at the Poet Office at Wilmington, N. C. as second-class matter.] ed by the General himself as being good likenesses. They represent a fine looking man with an open, intelligent countenance. But the engravers fail somehow to eatch the expression or the outline. In most of the pictures he looks almost as puffed and as ugly as Absalom Arthur, whereas there is nothing villamous as in Arthur's flabby looks, but he is really a fine looking gentleman. As to Mr. English, no two pictures resemble. He is by no means as fine looking a man as the Chief. In one picture he looks like Brother Jonathan ready for a horse trade. We have not seen his photograph. Get good likenesses or none.

Gen. William O. Butler, of Kentucky, whose death at the advanced age of 87 has been announced al ready, was a man of note. His ancestors fought in the revolution, and he distinguished himself in the war of 1812. He was under Andrew Jackson in the South, and in 1817 was made a Colonel, starting from the ranks. He was in Congress, was a Major General in the Mexican war, greatly distinguishing himself. In 1847 the Congress voted him a sword. When Gen. Scott was recalled from Mexico he was left in command. He was nominated by the Democrats for the Vice Presidency on the Cass ticket. He was a mem ber of the Peace Congress in 1861 This was his last appearance in public life.
