The following are the Democratic nominees for the House of Representatives from Virginia: First District, George T. Garrison; Second, John Goode; Third, George D. Wise; Fourth, S. F. Coleman; Fifth, Geo. C. Cabell; Sixth, J. Ran. Tucker; Seventh, Henry C. Allen; Eighth, John S. Barbour; Ninth, not named.

The Democrats of New York are united. The World says that means Republican defeat. The New York Tribune already begins to discern the signs of the times. It says: "The adjustment is a shrowd one for the Democracy. "It will not do for Republicans to underestimate the strength of this coslition. It means a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull of the Democracy all together to carry the brale.'

Senator Wallace thinks the Democrats will gain four Representatives in his State, Pennsylvania. He feels sure of New York, and thinks Ohio possible. We will gain in Pennsylvania. Ex-Gov. Curtin thinks Hancock will be elected, but after a hard fight. He was the great "war Governor" of Pennsylvania and a Repub. lican.

The Republican papers out West have been endeavoring to belittle and slander the Democratic candidate for the Vice Presidency. He is a power in Indiana and in November the Stalwarts will find it out. Here is what the Radical organ of that State said about him before the Cin-ingraded 501@511; spirits turpentine The Baltimoro's Sun's special from Washington says:

"It will be remembered that after the presidential election of 1876 it was discovcred that Republican electors in a number of States were ineligible. It was the occa-sion of much trouble, and in several instances the exercise of doubtful powers was availed of to remedy the difficulty which was caused by this condition of affairs. No such advantageous circumstances as provided in 1876 now exist to help the Republicans out if they should find themselves in a similar dilemna this year. Therefore no pains will be spared to climinate the name of every elector concerning whose eligibility there can be the slightest doubt.

THE STATE CAMPAIGN.

The Democratic Executive Committee for the Sixth Congressional District are to meet at Charlotte on September 7th to act upon Col. Bennett's resignation as elector.

Gov. Jarvis spoke to four or five hundred people at Henderson on Saturday. His speech was well re-ceived. Hon Jos. J. Davis and Col. W. F. Green, both of Franklin, followed in effective speeches. --- Lewis Hanes, the editor of the Lexington Exchange, has been nominated for the Senate in Davidson county. --- It is worthy of remark that State Auditor Love is an independent candidate for Congress in the Eighth District. His platform is "free brandy and total absorption." Charlotte Observer.

Burke county is thoroughly organized, and will give a heavy Democratic majority. We know there are Hancock and Jarvis clubs in every township, and many honest Republicans, like Nathan L. Chapman, who, tired of corrupt Republican rule, are daily coming over. Even the colored people, in Quaker Meadow township, have formed a club.—Burke Blade.

Gen. Leach arrived at Fayetteville by boat from Wilmington after the Convention adjourned, and responded to the calls of the farmers in a speech of wit and humor. At night he again addressed, on the questions of the day, a large audience. -- The two Democratic Senators from the Thirty-fourth district will be Dr. Tyre York and T. S. Tucker, Esq.-Raleigh News.

Close of an Important Case. In the case of D. G. Fowle and S. W. Vick vs. F. W. Kerchner and J. L. Boatwright the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiffs. A motion for a new trial was overruled and defendants appealed. The Raleigh Observer of Saturday, referring to the case, says: "The arguments, which began Thursday, were lengthy and elaborate, and occupied the time until 6 P. M. Court then adjourned until 8 o'clock, when it again met, and Judge Graves began his charge to the jury. This took three and a half hours in its delivery. There were thirty-three issues. This case will always be memorable in the judicial annals of Wake, and will hardly ever be forgotten by the jury in it. It was taken up on Wednesday, the 18th inst. The following were the counsel in the case: For the plaintiffs: Reade, Busbee & Busbee, Ed. Graham Haywood, Merrimon, Fuller & Fuller, A. M. Lewis, George H. Snow. Five or six small children were playing under an old shed on Campbell, between Third and Fourth streets, formerly used as stables, on Saturday morning last, when one of them noticed a cracking noise, upon which he warned the other children, and they had barely cleared the dangerous

Coup's Great Show.

Our amusement-loving citizens, espe cially the younger portion of them, are 'spiling" to see a good circus, as Wilmington has been given the go-by by the professors of the arena for the past year or been the centre of attraction, and now the 9th of September is looked forward to with a good deal of interest. The Richmond State gives the following very complimentary notice of the appearance of the show

Both exhibitions of Coup's Monster Show were largely attended yesterday, the crowd at night being the largest ever seen at a circus in this city. The tent over the arena was the largest tent ever raised in Richmond, and the crowd under it was variously estimated at from five to ten thousand souls. Thousands were turned away un able to gain admission, but the money was promptly refunded to those who had purchased tickets in advance.

As to the show, taken altogether, surpasses any that we have ever seen here, and, of course, it gave great satisfaction. The zoological department was excellent, comprising specimens of most of the rare animals found in zoological gardens, and the circus was splendid. There were several novel performances, and the conventional acts, such as the trapeze, the tumbling, and the riding, were far above the average, Mile Belmont eclipses all aerial artistes, her trapeze swinging being the height of daring. Miss Katie Stokes is a most dashing bareback rider, and is grace itself; while Mr. Watson, the English equestrian, is perhaps the most wonderful success in his line in America. The concluding act, done by the tribe of Iroquois Indians, was exciting to the ut-most degree, and was a fitting finale to the excellent entertainment. The question is frequently asked if Coup's show is owned by a company. The show is not owned by a company, Mr. Coup, the general manager, being the sole owner. He is a very wealthy man and has made all of his money in the show business.
