Fowier, the rampant Northern Methodist preacher, played four with Grant and made the "silent man" become a mere babbler of vain and foolish things.

The Richmond State praised high ly "Van the Virginian," written for Frank Mayo by Bartley Campbell. Mayo's acting was fine, and the audirace were melted to tears.

Governor Colquitt has been amply vindicated against all charges. The people of Georgia have just given him a rousing majority that will range between 30,000 and 50,000.

Rumor says that Jay Gould, who owns the New York Tribune, has bought the World paying something less than $400,000 for it. The World will have to change its politics or it will be less trusted than ever.

Moscs P. Handy, of the Philadelphia Times, writes on the 5th inst., from Columbus, Ohio, that both sides are uneasy with the chances in favor of the Republicans. It is conceded by the acting Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Mr. W L. Scott, that Ohio will go Republican by at least 5,000 majority. He says hundreds of thousands of dollars have been sent within a few days by the Republicans of New York, Philadelphia and Boston, and that between 300 and 500 professional repeaters have been sent from New York alone, besides 150 from Philadelphia.

Grant's assault upon General Haucock caused great pleasure in officeholders' circle in Washington. The Democrats were indignant. The correspondent of the Baltimore Sun writes:

said to-night that several of the most important statements made by Gen. Grant are wholly false, as the Republican political hand-book itself shows. Gen. Grant himself, at the time he refers to, was intriguing for the Presidential nomination and coquetting with both parties, The Radicals in Congress had quarrelled with President Johnson for striving to carry out the policy which Lincoln had inaugurated, and in order to win Gen. Grant over they went so far as to cripple the constitutional powers of the President as the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy, and to confer them on the then General of the army. As President Johnson sustained Gen. Hancock, and as the Radicals could only reach him through Gen. Grant as his superior, they used the General to serve their revenge, and he made Hancock's position so uncomfortable that he asked to be telieved. When he came to Washington after this treatment, caused solely by his refusal to carry out the Radical programme of the military subjection of the South in time of peace, he declined to hold personal relations with Gen. Grant."

INDIANA.

We give some Indiana notes. The Democrats have a list of 800 ballot box stuffers from other cities who have been imported by the Radicals. The Philadelphia Press's Indianapolis special correspondent telegraphs on the 5th:

"I am satisfied that much of the money which will actually be spent on election day will go into the pockets of the men who last year voted the Greenback ticket. Converts from this element seem to be what each party is largely building upon." He says the Republican prospects have improved in two or three days, and they are feeling more hopeful than at any time since the canvass began. But on the other hand he says: "Mr. McDonald is one of the fairest, most popular and powerful Democrats in the State, and his judgment is perhaps as valuable as that of any man in his party." Well, what does he say? He says the Democratic majority will be 7,

The Philadelphia Times's staff correspondent writes on the 5th that the Democrats express themselves as well satisfied. English is emptying his "bar'l," and thus far $30,000 is out and more will roll out if necessary. There are any number of professional repeaters on hand and both sides have their detoctives on the watch.

"The belief is general that Hancock will than Landers! It is upon this weakness of Landers that the Republicans are pretty generally basing their hopes. It does not seem likely, however, that Landers is going to run behind, as is calculated. The Democrats have been made to understand that they are not electing Landers Governor merely, but that they are electing Hancock President and they cannot afford to lose

According to the New York Herald Conkling did not desire to visit Garfield with Grant and Logan, and almost as good as said he would not but Casar said it must be done. We copy from the Herald's report :

"Grant felt that the time for decisive action had come. Conkling must be cociced. In a stern voice he said, looking straight into the face of the magnificent New Yorker and addressing him by his itle instead of his last name, as was usually is custom

'Senator, we go to Mentor.' "Corking essayed to continue his objec ions, but again Grant's voice spoke firm! and clearly :

" 'Senator, we go to Mentor.' "Conkling then succumbed to his regard for Grant and the trio took the train for Mentor and called on Garfield."

We have received the full, proceedings of the Brunswick county Democratic convention. They are too long and their chief interest has been loss by the publication in our columns already of the names of the nominees of the convention, all of whom we trust will be elected.

Several of the failures in New York are said to have been brought nessee, telling of negroes who have recently left for this State. The Democrats cannot ago by iron speculations. Brunswick Superior Court. Brunswick Superior Court, which has been in session at Smithville since Monday last, adjourned Wednesday night. The most of the cases on the civil docket were continued over for the term. The criminal docket was unusually large, but there were no cases of special importance. The only delegate to Raleigh is Robert Nixon, colored, convicted of false pretense and sentenced for one year in the Penitentiary. The Wilmington lawyers returned by the Passport last evening.

OPERA HOUSE.

Frank Mayo in "Davy Creckett." Mr. Mayo could hardly have expected a more cordial greeting than that given him at the Opera House last evening on his first appearance in Wilmington. He long ago made a hit in the piece, "Davy Crockett," and it has since brought him both fame and fortune. The piece in itself is simply nothing, the whole interest nearly centering in and revolving around the one character of Davy Crockett.

The acting of Mr. Mayo in the titular part is worthy of high praise as a natura and forcible portraiture of the true backwoods man, and we wonder not that it has been so successful before the public. The attendance last night was quite large and the audience was certainly exceedingly enthusiastic, Mr. Mayo and Mr. Weaver having been once called before the curtain. The acting of Miss Weaver as Eleanor Vaughan was generally excellent, though at times there was an unevenness that marred her rendition seriously. Mrs. Sandford, as Dame Crockett was very good, and the male support was fair, though the characters did not call for very decided ability to correctly portray them. We hope Mr. Mayo will visit Wilmington again and give us his new piece, "Van, the Virginian," which we see very highly spoken of by our exchanges.

Like many other merchants in the South they lost heavily, stock, railroad investments, real estate and outstanding accounts going together. After the war was over the firm managed to secure possession of their real estate again and continued their business up to the spring of 1871, since which time both brothers have resided here.
