"BRICKS WITHOUT STRAW,"

Tourgee made a hit in preparing his political stories (i. e., lies) for the Presidential year. Anything that injured the South and kept alive the embers of discord and strife was sure to be devoured most readily in any part of the North where Radi calism prevailed. There are a million or two of people in the Northern States who are absolutely ignorant of all that pertains to the South. They have a much more accurate knowledge of Central Asia or Central Africa than they have of the Southern States of the Union. 'They only know us through lying correspondents and novels that are designed to caricature our people. So Tourgee made a success when he sought the North for the sale of his literary wares. The demand for "A Fool's Errand" has been phenomenal. It has sold simply because it was supposed to be inimical to the South and travestied our people. It is not claimed among the intelligent critics of the literary centres that it has any special literary value. Indeed some have rather damned it outright, and yet it has sold something like "Uncle Tom's Cabin" sold, and all because it was a somewhat vigorous, and, it may be, ingenious assault upon a people whose money he pocketed, whose characters he could never understand, whose social circles he could never enter, and whom he hated because they knew him quite thoroughly. He came as an adventurer. During the mighty upheaval consequent upon the war, when socicty was shaken and institutions were uprooted, the sly, cute, able carpetbagger was thrown to the surface, and he appeared as one of the selected fortunates who were to wear the Judicial robes and hold the Courts of North Carolina, Knowing but little law at first this Northwestern carpet-bagger learned fast, and but have made a creditable Judge. When he visited Yanceyville, Caswell county, to hold his court be boarded with a negro. His instincts were low; his traducing the people upon whom he had been forced was an offence; he was not content to conspire against their prosperity and happiness, but he used his facile and acrid pen to degrade and slander the white people of North Carolina. He told the Northern people that twenty-odd Quakers had been drowned in one pond, when it was a lie out of the whole cloth. And now Tourgee is having his re-We never read any of his We tried his first. He called it "Toignette"—the name of a negro wench. We got through a hundred the book aside and have never seen it since. His "A Pool's Errand we never read a line of, although copy was sent us. We could not waste valuable leisure over a vindictive and vile book unrelieved by genius or an admirable art. His third book-his third and most deliberate assault on the South is out. He calls it "Bricks Without Straw." It will sell because the South is the theme, We have not seen it and shall not read it. The following notice from the able literary critic of the Philadelphia Times will give you a good idea probably of the condiments Tourgee has dished up for the Northern pal

"It is chiefly an account of the troubles of the freedmen in the South, whose tack in fitting themselves for citizenship is referred to in the title. The book shows close observation and a keener sense of humor than was apparent in the earlier work. Its pictures of life in the South may be accepted as fairly accurate, and if the author had been content to let his story carry its own lesson be might have done an effective piece of work. But the mixture of fiction and politics, of novel and stump speech, that was so exasperating in A Fool's Errand,' is here exaggerated beyond endurance. For every page of the story there are two or three pages of comments by the author, so that any dramatic effect that might have been produced is altogether dissipated before we reach the next scene. This is a fundamental and irretrievable error, whether we consider the work from an artistic or from a political point of view The book is neither a novel nor a political essay, but there is just enough of each to neutralize the other and make the compound very hard to read."

JOHNNY DAVENPORT AND HIS DEVILTRY.

There has been quite a little stir in New York about the movements of Supervisor of Elections, Johny Davenport. He claims that he and his deputies have the right to retain all alleged fraudulent naturalization papers issued in 1868. He declares he will not recede from this position. He says he knows he is right, has the law on his side and the United States Government to back him. The legality of the naturalization papers referred to was affirmed by U. S. Judge Blatchford, a Republican. So it is Johnny Davenport's opinion against a Federal Judge's opinion. John Kelly became indignant, and advised publicly all naturalized citizens interfered with "to knock down" any Supervisor who undertook to retain all certificates after being presented at the registry places. It is estimated that the number who are interfered with by Davenport is full 10,000. The lawyers of Mr. Kelly advise a milder course. They recommend to have recourse to the courts, and, to that end, Judge Blatchford is to be requested to hold open court during registration and on election day. They also recommend that U. S. District Attorney Woodford (a cantankerous Radical) be considered as primarily responsible for any violations of the rights of naturalized citizens.

But Davenport is not to be deterred. He has issued a very emphatic circular to his subordinates, assuring them that they must not be intimidated in the least, as "the laws of the United States relating to elections will be enforced, peacefully, it is believed, but forcibly, if so it must TO THE PART OF THE PARTY

He does not address his orders to the Democratic supervisors but to the Radical ones only. We see now why it was the Radicals in Congress fought so hard against the repeal of the infamous election laws and why Hayes vetoed the bill repealing. The New York World thus discusses the course of Davenport and the meaning of his circular:

"These instructions fully justify all that Senator Bayard and other Democrats in Congress have said of the despotic spy system of which Davepport is the author. They are arbitrary in tone, and in their wording they show an intentional defiance of law and of legal procedure. For indecided that a naturalization certificate which purports to be genuine and bears the seal of a court and the signature of its clerk, is valid until avoided upon due ex-amination in that court. Dayenport now of his own motion decides that his supervisors must reject it. He promulgates as a court of and in himself the extraordinary doctrine that all certificates of naturalization issued by the Supreme for his unfortunate principles would Court in 1868, on any day other than October 8, are to be regarded as void, and that certain described certificates, if pre-sented, are to be forcibly—and, of course, without warrant of law—taken from the holder. This is simply an act of robbery deputies performing it will simply be robbers, for a naturalization paper is as much a piece of property as a watch or a purse. The hatred of naturalized citizens shown by General Garfield many times on the floor of Congress breathes throughout this private and confidential circular. It is to be observed that Davenport chooses to attack persons who hold certificates twelve years old. Such persons certainly have become entitled to be naturalized twice

The editor of the Indianapolis Sentinel, Democratic, addressed a letter to Fred. Douglass relative to his visit to North Carolina. He has published a card in which he save "he saw and heard enough to convince him that the impression in the North that Its pastiness was worse than there is a conflict between the races French nastiness, because it had none in the South is wrong. CURRENT COMMENT.

- Weaver went to Maine and worked hard to defeat the Fusion State ticket. How much was he paid for that? He is now in Indiana engaged in stumping the State against Hancock and Landers. How much is he to get for that? Weaver is a foul-mouthed hypocrite and a disreputable political trickster. All the world knows that. He has been hired by the Republican National Committee to help defeat General Hancock. The world knows that, also. What is his price? This is what the country wants to know .-Washington Post, Dem.

-A correspondent desires to know how the figures 329-now as current all over the country as sozodont or gargling oil -first became a popular synonym for the name of Garfield. It was not as Dick Deadeve would say-"the cat:" it was the Tribune that did it! February 19, 1873, the Tribune editorially remarked: "James A. Garfield, of Ohio, had ten shares, never paid a dollar, received $329, which after the | One fireman was killed and five injured. investigation began he was anxious to have considered as 'a loan' from Mr. Ames to himself." Other Republican papers denounced Garfield. he figures 329, printed conspicuousy in the Tribune, attracted general attention, and when his unexpected nomination made Gen. Garfield once more a conspicuous character, everybody remembered that he was the branded 329 of the Tribune. - New York World, Dem.

The mystic figures in 329 if added ogether make the sam total of 14. Upon examination we find 14 to be a very significant number. For instance: there are fourteen letters in each of the following:
