NORTH CAROLINA BLECTION RE-TURNS.

Our friends in all parts of the State where the STAR circulates who can unch a Western Union Telegraph , flice by 12 o'clock on the night of the election (Tuesday, November 2d) are requested to send to the nearest telegraph-operator all the election returns they can gather by that hour. These will be forwarded to the Westtern Union Telegraph office in this eny free of expense to the sender.

Those who are too far from such triegraph office to comply with the above request will please mail the election returns to the nearest te legraph office by the first mail which leaves their respective post-offices after the close of the polls, directing their letters "Western Union Telegraph Operator at ---, North Carolina."

In making up the returns state when possible the gains or losses of the Democratic electoral ticket as compared with the vote for the Tilden electors in 1876.

Will Virginia do to bet on for Hancock? What say the Dispatch, State and Danville Post.

The news from Indiana continues to improve. The Democrats of that State are full of hope and are making a courageous fight.

We hope the Democratic business men of Wilmington will close their doors next Tuesday, and give one day to the cause of their country.

A correspondent of the New York Merald (Garfield paper), writing from San Francisco, admits that California is a doubtful State, and that the contest will be very close. Good enough!

The Spanish scholar of the Rich mond State says the dead Indian got his name from the Spanish and it was, therefore, Victoria. Thanks. We are rather rusty in Spanish having never studied it.

On the night of the 26th Generals McClellan and Sickles (one a Democrat and the other a Republican) paraded through the streets of New York at the head of 4,000 Hancock veterans. It was an imposing sight. Meetings were held at Tammany and Irving Halls, where Gens. McClellan, Sickles and Smith spoke. Gen. Siegel presided at the Irving Hall meeting.

Garfield as a speller. The Washington Post of the 27th says:

"Now as to the internal evidence of the letter: The principal objection has been made to the spelling. One prominent real estate broker in this city has letters of Mr. Garfield's in his possession, written to him, in which the following brilliant spelling occurs: 'Advertizeing,' 'indorsment.' And the letters, some half dozen in number, were not scrutinized very closely either. "The following clause is a fair specimen

The Republicans will make a stupendous effort to achieve success next Tuesday. The bread and butter army of 104,000 were never so active. Their patriotism is measured by a feeling sense of grub. Their devotion to principle is dependent upon the great question "how my custom shall be filled." The Radical State stealers and repeater-manipulators are moving on South Carolina. Read this from the Washington letter to the Baltimore Sun of the 26th inst.

"Intelligence reaches here from South Carolina that the Republican managers, acting under the advice and active assistance of the central managers of the party will make a desperate-effort to bring out the entire colored vote on Tuesday next in support of the Greenback State ticket. The Republicans have an electoral ticket in the field but no State ticket. A combination has been formed with the Greenbackers which, if successful, will defeat both the Democratic State and electoral ticket, and in many of the counties the local ticket."

That is it: Radicals and Greenbackers. Did not the STAR warm you long ago that the Greenback movement was only a Radical dodge. K. K.-Kornegay and Kanaday?

The Radicals are smart beyond all comparison. They leave no stone unturned. Their resources in dodges and rascality increase with the desperation of their condition. There is a law in New York which disqualifies a man from voting who makes a bet on the result. This leads the National Conservative Republicans to warn the friends of Gen. Hancock against betting, and they say in their

"It has been definitely ascertained that a systematic effort is being made on the part of Davenport and his men to lead friends of Hancock into small bets in favor of his election. One dollar and five-dollar bets are being offered by those representing atre, was, like all of his efforts, bright themselves to be Republicans, but who, upon investigation, will be found not entitled to a vote for various reasons. The Republican machine is paying more than $5 for votes, and it is their object to employ irresponsible men to place as many of these small bets as possible. It is known that as high as 100 $1 bets have been secured by these sharpers in one ward."

The Paterson, N. J., Radical manfacturers are at work trying to intimi date their employes. They are both threatening them with discharge if they vote for Hancock, and are telling them all sorts of scary lies. The evidence is conclusive. A special from Patson says:

"In some of the mills the other night all the male hands, including the foreigners who have not been naturalized, and the boys under age, were obliged to turn out in a Republican procession. This is causing good deal of dissatisfaction among the Democratic employees, who say they have to turn out and seem to be Republicans for fear that they will lose their work if they do not do so. But they say they will vote for Gen. Hancock nevertheless. Several Republicans have become incensed at the attempted bulldczing and are inclined to vote against the Republican ticket in con-

Ainger, the Radical postmaster at Washington, was caught badly in his lying attempt to discredit the Morey letter. We have given the facts before. His statements, says the Baltimore Sun's special from Washington, "is disproved in tote by numerous envelopes in possession of parties here, stamped with the Washington stamp at different periods from last January until the present time. It is shown by these that neither before nor since the 13th of April have the stamps used in the Washington office been uniform, but that there have been at least four different kinds of stamps employed."

If you wish to see what sort of a fellow John Sherman is read the follewing from his speech in New York last Saturday night :

"Sometimes I have thought in these later times that we ought to have hanged Jeff Davis to that sour apple tree. (Applause.)
The old apple tree should have been ornamented by his body, so that the song could have been made true, and John Brewn's soul go marching on.'

If John had his deserts he would be in the penitentiary breaking rock and with clipped ears and striped shirt. Much smaller rogues have broken into that place.

Mr. A. J. McCabe, of New Jersey, sends a sworn certificate to the New York Sun which tells of 100 roughs who went to Flerida on the steamer Western Texas that left New York October 1. He was a passenger. They said they were not going to work on any railroad as was given out. He saw them afterwards at gives other evidence, which fully confirms all Chairman Barnum has when he sent those tell-tale specials about the 350 repeaters he was only trying to head-off Democratic repeaters, he proves one of two things or both: first, that he is either a fool himself as well as corrupt, or that he takes the people of the United States to be fools.

Garfield has denied the Morey letter three times since he was telegraphed to that Morey was dead, and still the people are no more convinced that he tells the truth than when he swore about that $329.

The speech of this distinguished son of the Old North State (Colonel D. K. McRae), last night at the Theas a Damasous blade. Logical in its construction, brilliant in its imagery, elegant and impressive in its phraseology, and forcible in its delivery, it captivated his large and cultivated audience, and held it as by a magic spell. Colonel McRae is what is usually called a magnetic speaker. He has, what is first of all necessary to a successful orator, pertinent and convicted thought. The logical formation underlies all his splendid passages. He then possesses the full and descriptive language of the scholar, combined with an impulsive, distinct manner, which flashes into the nerves of his audience like the fluid from a well-charged battery. His effort last night will compare favorably with his ablest and most eloquent lectures and addresses of the past.-New Bernian.

Bokkelen, Wm. L. DeRosset, George Harriss. President Van Bokkelen submitted his report to the Chamber, which is as follows: PRESIDENT'S REPORT. Gentlemen-Since the last annual meeting of this Chamber such business as came within the line of duty has been as fully considered and acted upon as was possible for advancing the interests of commerce and this community. At the time of the last annual meeting the important work being done by the United States Government toward closing New Inlet and increasing the depth of water from the city to the ocean, was at a stage where a feeling of uncertainty as to its successful completion was entertained by some persons. All cause for such apprehension has been fully removed-the massive rock dam which closes New Inlet has been brought up to its proper height, the sea face of immense granite blocks has been laid, leaving only the capping to be done with similar material as the sea face to perfect the same.

This dam has given full evidence of permanency, and will remain an enduring monument of the wisdom of those who protected this mode of effecting a closure, and the efficiency of the engineers and assistants who planned, directed and executed this great work to its successful tending the same. The Carolina shoals have sufficiently increased in height to render them bare of water, except at high tide, for a considerable distance; at the same time Fort Fisher beach is rapidly extending towards the shoals, which will no doubt result in the formation of a beach from Fort Fisher point to the heach beyond, thereby creating the second barrier to New Inlet and breaking off from the rock dam the force of the ocean, which of itself it is capable of effectually resisting. The line of beach extending from New Inlet southwest to Cape Fear has greatly increased in width and strength. The only swash across the same, while slowly depreciating, is by its counter currents gathering material for its complete and durable clo-

The operations of the steam dredge Woodbury in deepening Bald Head channel have been attended with results beyond what was at first considered probable. When she commenced working, during the spring of 1879, the depth of water was reported nine to ten feet at low tide—she has been efficiently worked, only losing time when prevented working by too rough weather and in receiving necessary repairs. The soundings made during the month of September past show thirteen feet three inches on inner ledge and fifteen feet six inches on outer ledge of bar at low tide, with greater depths between and beyond these two ledges. This increase in depth has been much greater in proportion during the latter portion of the time the Woodbury has been employed, caused by improvements brought about by those directing her operations; also by the increased scouring resulting from the greater volume of water passing through the enlarged passages with more

The intended dredging of the river to Wilmington has been deferred in order that the early completion of the rock dam and continued operations of the Woodbury would be assured. To have had the deepening of the river keep pace with that of the bar might have been advantageous at the immediate time, but it would have resulted in giving only the depth of water first provided for, while the thorough closure of New Inlet and the continued operations of the Woodbury on Bald Head channel have developed the practicability of procuring and maintaining such depth of water through Bald Head channel to the ocean as will justify a depth of twenty feet at low water in the Cape Fear river from its entrance to the city of Wilmington. The depth of water in the river at the present time is not sufficient for the passage of such class of steamers and sail vessels as are needed to do the business which will seek this outlet; this alone retards the large increase of business which has been hoped for, and will certainly be realized when the bar and river are both of sufficient capacity.

At the next session of Congress steps wil be taken to have appropriations obtained looking to the deepening of the passage from the ocean to Wilmington to twenty feet at low water. A special meeting of this Chamber will be called to arrange for bringing before Congress the results already secured, and the practicability of obtaining the desired depth of twenty feet. The closure of New Inlet has proved some inconvenience to that class of small vessels from other parts of this State trading with Wilmington as used that passage. Such trade should be retained; a survey of the sleus near to Bald Head, over Frying Pan Shoals, should be made and buoyed out, so as to admit the use of the same by this class of vessels. I have learned that such survey was intended. Wilmington as a cotton port is steadily advancing. The receipts from the present crop to this date are largely in excess of any previous year. The facilities for compressing and handling cotton with light expense would give this port equal, and, in some cases, additional advantages with other ports, creating demand and drawing large quantities for sale and export as soon as our navigation is improved partially. With twenty feet, as desired, Wilmington will be able to compete with any port for general business

WHOLE NO. 4,121 Meeting in the First Ward.

Notwithstanding the numerous discomforts incident to attending an outdoor speaking last night, the crowd assembled at the corner of Fourth and Brunswick streets was quite large and equally as enthusiastic. The meeting was first addressed by Mr. John C. James, who was to have addressed the Second Ward Club at the Court House, but it was decided to have the affair a joint one of the two wards. Mr. James was introduced very handsomely by Major John W. Dunham, and was greeted with much enthusiasm. His speech was one of great depth and thorough research and as instructive an address as we have heard this campaign. He was evidently perfectly familiar with all the questions he referred to, and the manner of arrangement and delivery of his arguments was forceful and impressive. His ability as a speaker is well known and recognized by our citizens, and notwithstanding the several disadvantages under which he labored his speech last night must greatly increase his reputation. There was none of the claptrap of the politician about his re-contest next Tuesday. As Mr. James retired loud calls were made for Mr. Shackelford, and Mr. J. I. Macks arose and very gracefully introduced the gentleman as the next Congressman from the Third District of North Carolina. Mr. Shackelford was warmly received and spoke most efficiently and agreeably for about an hour. In the two speeches delivered here he has made a most favorable impression both as a man and a speaker, and his labors have been of great service as the result will prove. We do not doubt but that he will hear a good report from New Hanover after the votes shall be counted on the 2d of November, and our people are to be congratulated on their representative.

Mr. D. H. McLean, district elector, was also present by invitation, and when Mr. Shackelford's speech was ended was appropriately introduced by Mr. Robert H. Mc-Koy. Mr. McLean's speech was a fitting finale to the occasion and rounded up the work of the evening most acceptably. He has been heard with much pleasure each time he has spoken here during the canvass, and has most flatteringly established himself. Whenever he shall be with us in the future he can confidently expect a hearty welcome and warm reception.

Business Suspension on Tuesday -A

Good Suggestion. The suggestion of the speakers Wednesday night-Messre. Shackelford and McLean-that the stores and business houses should be closed on Tuesday next, and that everybody should give that one day to his party and to his country, is a good one, and we are glad to find that it meets the approval of several of our business men, who announce themselves willing and anxious to carry out the suggestion, provided it meets with any degree of unanimity among our merchants and others. Such a course would no doubt result beneficially, as it would stimulate all to renewed and increased exertions in behalf of our candidates, constitutional liberty and good government.

A "Devil Fish." A gentleman who was present at the Democratic meeting at Macumber's Store a few days ago, says he was shown a genuine "Devil Fish," which was captured at the Sound some time since. It was in every way similar to the representations of the one lattached to Coup's circus, except that it was much smaller, being probably a a very young one. President Battle, at Chapel Hill, has been written to concerning the strange specimen, and it will probably find its way to the Cabinet of Curiosities connected with the University. This is not the first "Devil Fish" that has been caught on our coast.

A DOWN TOWN MERCHANT, having passed several sleepless nights, disturbed by the agonies and cries of a suffering child, and becoming convinced that Mrs. Winslew's Soothing Syrup was vinced that Mrs. Winelew's Soothing Syrup was just the article needed, procured a supply for the child. On reaching home and acquainting his wife with what he had done, she refused to have it administered to the child, as she was strongly in favor of Homosopathy. That night the child passed in suffering, and the parents without sleep. Returning home the day following, the father found the baby still werse, and while contemplating another sleep-less night, the mother stepped from the room to at tend to some demostic dates, and left the father with the child. During her absence he administered a portion of the Soothing Syrup to the baby and said nothing. That night all hands slept well, and the little fellow awoke in the morning bright and happy. The mother was delighted with the sudden nappy. The mother was delighted with the sudden and wonderful change, and although at first offended with the deception practiced upon her, has continued to use the Syrup, and suffering crying babies and restless nights have disappeared.
